FINDS GROSS CRUELTY IN AUBURN PRISON

SICK WOMEN NEGLECTED

Dr. Gerin Accused of Brutality—Case Recommended to Grand Jury—New Warden Needed.

ALBANY, April 27.—In a report made public to-day George W. Blake of New York, who has been investigating the administration of Auburn Prison for Gov. Sulzer, urges that a change be made in the Wardenship as quickly as possible.

The present Warden is George W. Benham, a Republican, who has served since Dec. 15, 1905. He was continued in office by Col. Joseph F. Scott when he became Superintendent of Prisons, following the resignation of Supt. C. V. Collins. Mr. Benham's resignation has been on file in the office of the Superintendent of Prisons since Jan. 1, but until the Senate confirms the nomination of a Superintendent no appointment of a Warden can be made. Charles F. Rattigan of Auburn, a member of the Democratic State Committee, is a candidate for the Wardenship. Col. Scott's refusal to appoint Mr. Rattigan was a factor in bringing about the Superintendent's removal from office. Gov. Sulzer has nominated John B. Riley of Plattsburg as Col. Scott's successor, but the nomination has been held up by the Senate.

Mr. Blake, in his report filed with Gov. Sulzer, says he found "brutality, violation of the law, waste, and general incompetency in the prison. He says twenty-eight prisoners have become insane during the past year, and that the testimony of trustworthy witnesses "indicates that cruel punishment deprived some of these prisoners of their reason, that the prison doctor is careless and unfeeling, and that he has repeatedly refused to attend upon women during confinement."

Referring to Dr John Gerin, the prison physician, Mr. Blake says:

"He is an autocrat. Abundance of evidence shows that he is brutal in his treatment of the sick, neglectful of their needs, and that he flagrantly violates that section of the prison law which defines his duties. No effort has ever been made by any of his superiors to compel him to moderate his severity or to curb his intolerant and incompetent administration."

Mr. Blake says he did not call Dr. Gerin as a witness. "I feel," he says in the report, "that his administration of the hospital should be the subject of a thorough investigation by a Grand Jury."

"Every nook and cranny of the prison reeks with tales of cruelty of this man," continues the report. "I was not able to discover that either the Warden or Col. Scott or any of their subordinates ever made any attempt to protect the defenseless sick from this treatment. Once under this doctor's care the men are in a desperate plight.

"If he desires he has the power of ordering into an isolation cell any sick man he pleases, and the unfortunate prisoner immediately falls under the suspicion that his mind is unbalanced.

"Refractory prisoners put in cells for punishment have only two gills of water every twenty-four hours. The doctor fixed this amount and declared it was sufficient to maintain life. I weighed the measure used in supplying the prisoners with water, and found that its weight was eight and one-half ounces. If these punishment cells were light and sanitary the punishment would be very heavy; but—the fact is—that these cells are only eight feet two and one-half inches long, four feet seven inches wide, and eight feet high. They are perfectly dark, and the only ventilation comes through the iron doors. There is no furniture whatever in the cells, except a quart can into which the scanty supply of water is poured. The floor has four rows of iron rivet heads that make a recumbent position practically impossible, so that a man is deprived of his sleep and rest as well as his food, drink, air, and light. This punishment is worse than the old stringing-up machine and other modes of physical torture that have been abandoned by the State, because it affects the victim's nerves as well as his brain and body.

Women's Treatment "Horrible."

"The treatment by the doctor of some of the unfortunate women prisoners confined in the women's prison is even worse. In some respects it is horrible. During the last twelve or fifteen years there has been an average of one childbirth a year, and sworn testimony, amply corroborated, proves that in these cases the unfortunate women have been left entirely to the care and mercy of convict nurses, some of whom were convicted for abortion. One of the women who served in the capacity of nurse and physician was Augusta Nack, who was convicted of complicity in the brutal murder of Guldensuppe. Although the women prisoners are bad women, no man with a humane feeling or imagination can fail to realize the terror of a woman lying in childbed and being attended in the dim watches of the night by such a woman as Mrs. Nack."

Mrs. Nack was released from the prison July 18, 1907. Dr. Gerin has been prison physician since May 8, 1898.

Concerning the commissary department of the prison, Mr. Blake says that more than 3,000 pounds of food are thrown away every week. The waste, he says, has been going on for two years at least. As to this waste, the report says:

"There were many acts that plainly displayed a criminal disregard of the public money. Staple articles have been purchased in the highest markets, in the most expensive and inconvenient forms, and with a total disregard of any kind of method or system. There has been an entire lack of any kind of supervision on the part of the managers of the prison, or of any proper management whatever. Employes in the various parts of the prison, competent to advise better business methods, have been ignored completely and made to understand that their help in any administrative capacity was not wanted.

"In every branch of the commissary department there has been a riot of wanton waste and extravagance and a flaunting display of gross inorance concerning even the most ordinary business knowledge."

Mismanagement Charged.

Mr. Blake charges gross mismanagement of the industrial department of the prison, which he says "has been conducted in opposition to the public interest and solely in the interest of individuals. He believes that the alleged mismanagement has not been due "solely to carelessness or incompetency."

The State has invested in the workshops of this prison $535,492. The proceeds from the sale of manufactured goods, Mr. Blake says, are decreasing. He recommends a special investigation of the whole industrial situation.

TALK OF BIG ERIE STRIKE.

Road's 1,300 Telegraphers Demand More Wages—Resent Telephones.

Special to The New York Times.

YOUNGSTOWN, April 27.—Unless the telegraphers of the Erie Railroad system get 12 per cent. increase in wages and the operators on the Susquehanna and Delaware Divisions, who lost their places when telephones were put in, are restored to duty, the entire system from New York to Chicago probably will be tied up by a strike. A large majority of the men now voting on the question are said to favor a strike if their demands are not met. Thirteen hundred telegraphers are involved.

A meeting of the telegraphers of the Mahoning Division was held to-day and attended by nearly 150 operators. J. Newman, First Vice President of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, and other members of the order made speeches.

The installation of telephones on some of the divisions started the trouble.

"There is no question of the outcome of the vote," said Mr. Newman. "It will be for a strike, if the demands of the men are not acceded to. What we ask is an increase in wages which will place the Erie operators somewhere near on an equality with the operators of the other lines. At present the average pay on the Erie is $53 a month."

WIRELESS MEN'S STRIKE.

Seattle and Oregon Ship Operators Quit Organizing Here.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—Wireless operators on several steamers plying from Seattle, Wash., struck for better pay and shorter hours on Friday. The strike then spread to Astoria, Ore., where several men refused to report for work to-night either on ships in the harbor or at the station ashore. Several operators at this point are now on strike, and others are expected to quit as their vessels arrive in port.

The Wireless Operators' Union has organizers in New York, New Orleans, Boston, and all the principal Gulf and Atlantic ports. The organizer here is in touch with the Eastern situation, and efforts are being made to include the Atlantic and Gulf operators in a general strike.

SQUIRREL UPSETS HOME.

Historic Jardiniere Broken, Man's Throat Cut, and the Dog Worries.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., April 27.—While Police Sergeant Murphy was shaving this morning Mrs. Murphy prepared a bowl of water to receive the ferns which he had brought home in a basket from a fishing trip in the Orange Mountains yesterday. She opened the basket, and as she did so shrieked with surprise, for out jumped a gray squirrel. Away it went, with Shamrock, Murphy's prize Irish terrier, in noisy pursuit, and at the hubbub out came Murphy, razor in hand and lather on face, to see what the matter was.

Into the fleeing squirrel Murphy ran. He tripped as it ran between his legs, and, still razor in hand, fell down stairs cutting his throat within a tiny distance of the jugular vein, and, while falling, upsetting and smashing a jardinière. Murphy is now in bed, the squirrel is believed to be back in the mountains, but Shamrock is looking under all the sofas and chairs for it.

The dog was given to Murphy by Edison, to whom the mother was given some years ago by a "crowned head of Europe," according to Mrs. Murphy. The jardinière also has a history. It was brought from China by the late Gen. McClellan, for whom Murphy's father used to work.

LITTLETON'S GLOOMY VIEWS

Says Universal Suffrage Will Fail Because All Cannot Be Taught.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 27.—Speaking before the Beacon Society last night, Martin W. Littleton of New York deplored the success of the Belgian strikers in overthrowing the principle of plural voting, which he called the most intelligent system of voting ever known. Universal suffrage is bound to fail, he said, unless every man and woman is educated on how to use the suffrage with intelligence, and he asked how it was possible to teach them all.

Already, Mr. Littleton said, representative Government has been destroyed in the United States Senate by providing that the Senators shall be elected by the people, instead of by the Legislature. Henceforth the Senate will be a proletariat and not a body of men who understand Government and will run it on a basis of intelligence.

He asserted that the more intelligent citizens were not honest with the average man, because they did not tell him, as they ought, that his prime need was congenial and constant employment and nothing else. He held that the average man should be told the view of Hamilton, "that the Government should be run by the intellectual members of the community, who alone are capable of ruling."

LAWYER TRIES SUICIDE.

J. S. Conover Overworked After Death of His Partner.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., April 27.—Joseph S. Conover, a young attorney of this city, attempted suicide at his home in Second Avenue this morning by shooting himself three times. He is in the Long Branch Hospital, with little chance of recovery. Overwork, following the death recently of his partner, Aaron E. Johnston, is given as the reason.

The firm of Johnston & Conover was well known in the county, and the sudden death of the senior member put upon Mr. Conover the responsibility of many matters with which he was not familiar. His attempt to catch up on the work led to a nervous breakdown. He had been ordered to take a month's rest by his physicians, and was preparing to leave town to-morrow.

Mr. Conover is a graduate of the New York Law School. He is 34 years old.

SEEK IDEAS IN ALBANY.

Connecticut Legislators Will Visit Capitol in Tour of Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, April 27.—A number of State officers and members of the Legislature will leave this city in automobiles to-morrow morning for Albany, where they will endeavor to get some new ideas in State Government. Among those who will visit the New York Capitol are Lieut. Gov. Tingier of Vernon, Albert Phillips of Stamford, 27 years old and the youngest Secretary of State in the Union; Controller Dunn of Windham, Speaker Webster of Harwinton, Senators Miner of New London, Johnson of Montville and McGrath of Waterbury, and Representatives Koppelman of Hartford, Mead of Greenwich, Mitchelson of Simsbury and Lamb of Tariffville.

The delegation will look into the methods of the Legislature. In this State some antiquated rules still prevail.

REPORT THE SHERIFF GETS TOO MUCH PAY

WANT CITY TO GET FEES

And Take Over County Jail—Say Mileage Is Not Accounted For—Harburger Accepts Plans.

Conditions which are described as "most unwarranted and unbusinesslike" have grown up and exist in the Sheriff's office, "causing much inefficiency and great waste of public funds," according to a report of Commissioners of Accounts Jeremiah T. Mahoney and Harry M. Rice to Mayor Gaynor, which is now made public by the Mayor. The Commissioners of Accounts have just concluded a long investigation of the office of the Sheriff, and in submitting the results of their work say that the object of the report is not to criticise either Sheriff Harburger or his predecessor, Mr. Shea.

Among the recommendations the Commissioners make is one that the Sheriff receive a flat yearly salary of $12,000, while instead of his receiving half the fees, as is now the case, that all the fees collected by the Sheriff shall revert to the city. The abolition of the county jail and its transfer to the Sinking Fund Commission to be sold or used for other purposes is another of the many recommendations.

The fees in which the Sheriff and the city are joint participants from Jan. 1 to June 30, 1911, in the administration of Sheriff Shea, amounted to $47,838.92, the city and the Sheriff each receiving $23,919.54. From Jan. 1 to June 30 of last year, in the administration of Mr. Harburger the total of these fees increased to $60,894.47, the city and the Sheriff each receiving $30,447.30.

"The highest salaried official in the City Government," the Commissioners say, "is the Mayor, who receives $15,000 a year. This appears rather disproportionate when compared with the remuneration of the Sheriff, particularly when a comparison is made between the duties and responsibilities of the two officers."

"It cost the city of New York $48,394.75 net in the first six months of 1911, and $52,059.92 net during the same period in 1912, to maintain the office of the Sheriff of New York County. Had the fees paid to the Sheriff's Office for these two periods been paid to the city instead, it would have reduced this excess of cost over income in the first six months of 1911 by $23,919.38, and in the same period in 1912 by $30,447.17, and the Sheriff would still have received a salary of $12,000 per annum, which would appear to be adequate for the services performed."

The report goes on to show that the Sheriff maintains 15 deputies whose salaries total $37,500 a year, and 15 assistant deputies whose salaries total $22,500, and that 28 of these deputies and assistants are utilized in the serving of papers.

High Cost of Jail.

Of the Ludlow Street Jail the report says that the cost to the city for the maintenance of the prisoners for the period ending June 30, 1911, was $13,423.91, which means a daily cost for each prisoner of $6.11. For the same period in 1912, the daily cost for each prisoner was reduced to $4.20. The report says that about the only use the Ludlow Street jail is put to is accommodation of the members of the "Alimony Club." Federal prisoners committed to the Sheriff's care by the United States Marshals, prisoners committed by City Marshals and National Guard delinquents.

"The United States Government," the report says, "allows 70 cents a day per prisoner for those prisoners committed to the county jail by the United States Marshals. For the six months ended June 30, 1911, there were eight of such prisoners for 266 days, for which the City of New York collected from the United States government $186.20, although it cost the city to maintain these prisoners $1,625.29. For the six months ended June 30, 1912, there were 10 United States Marshal's prisoners for 471 days, for which the city collected from the Federal Government $329.70, although it cost the city to maintain these prisoners $2,019.88. It will be seen, therefore, that by reason of the excessive cost of operation of the Ludlow Street jail, the city expends more than $3,000 annually in excess of the money received from the United States Government for the care of Federal officers."

In 1911 there were twenty-four officers and employes of the Ludlow Street jail, who cared for a daily average of twelve prisoners, the lowest number on any one day being eight and the highest number on any day being seventeen.

In 1912 the daily average of prisoners for the first six months was seventeen. In the budget for 1912 the Board of Estimate provided for only six keepers in Ludlow Street, in place of eleven.

"As a matter of fact, however," the report adds, "there were ten keepers on duty during January, February and March, nine during April, and eleven after April for the entire year. On April 25, 1912, the Board of Estimate provided, through a revenue bond issue, funds for five extra keepers from Jan. 1 for the year. Consequently, the force of officers and employes was practically the same as in 1911."

Tickets Not Accounted For.

Under "mileage and maintenance," the report says:

"Under the law certain mileage and maintenance fees are designated as payable by the State to the Sheriff for the transportation of prisoners. The Sheriff received from the State for this purpose and paid over to the City Chamberlain, from Jan. 1, 1911, to June 30, 1911, $1,795.46, and from Jan. 1, 1912, to June 30, 1912, $2,432.35. The Sheriff does not participate in this revenue, as it is advanced by the city out of the money appropriated for the operation of the Sheriff's office. With this money taken from his contingency appropriation, the Sheriff purchases single trip tickets for convicts, New York to Ossining, at 67 cents each, and family tickets of fifty single trips each at $24.80 per ticket, or 49.6 cents per single trip, for deputies and guards. No record has been kept of the tickets used or to whom issued. During the first six months of 1911, forty-six trips were made to Ossining to transport 323 prisoners. During this period 368 tickets for convicts and four family tickets of 200 single trips for guards were purchased. This in itself shows an excess purchase of forty-five single trip tickets for prisoners, but it is impossible to show the number of guards required to accompany them. During the first six months of 1912 there were fifty-two trips made to transport 389 prisoners, and during that period there were 450 single trip tickets purchased for convicts, or sixty-one more than the number of prisoners transported. Seven family tickets, of 350 single trips, were purchased for the use of guards."

It is also stated that the Sheriff always has on hand $30,000 to $75,000 in the shape of a balance which has not been distributed to litigants, and that it

KILLED IN WILD RIDE IN GREENHUT'S CAR

Chauffeur Testing It Loses His Life and Mechanician Is Mortally Hurt.

One man was killed and another is in the Jamaica Hospital in a dying condition as a result of an accident to an automobile belonging to Nelson W. Greenhut, the Sixth Avenue merchant. The machine crashed into a telephone pole near Springfield, L. I., late yesterday afternoon. The man killed was James Cramond, the chauffeur, who was hurled over the front of the machine, his head striking a telephone pole. The other man, who is in the hospital with a compound fracture of the skull in addition to fractures of both wrists, and with all his fingers and both thumbs broken, is Thomas Conroy, an automobile mechanic. Conroy during a moment of consciousness said he and Cramond lived at 2 East 107th Street.

The number of the car was 13,041, New York, which the police found to be the number of a 60 horse power machine owned by Mr. Greenhut.

At the time of the accident, which was 6:24 P. M., the automobile, according to Charles Stevens, a farmer living on the Merrick Road, near Springfield, was traveling east at about fifty miles an hour. The machine had been stripped of the body, and Cramond and Conroy were seated on boxes attached to the chassis.

Stevens was standing at his front window when the automobile came in sight. Almost opposite his house another car going west was sighted, also going fast, but not so fast as the Greenhut machine. Cramond, according to Stevens, swerved to get out of the way of the other car, and on the instant crashed into the telephone pole. The pole was moved eight inches nearer to Mr. Stevens's fence by the impact.

Stevens rushed to the side of Cramond and Conroy. Cramond, he said, was dead, and Conroy unconscious. A few moments later Policeman Finnegan of the Jamaica Station arrived and sent in a call for an ambulance. Conroy was hurried to the hospital, where the doctors said he would die.

Attached to the telephone pole was a fire alarm box. The collision caused the alarm to be set off, but as it rang only once the firemen did not respond. Five rings were necessary to sound an alarm.

Nelson W. Greenhut did not learn of the accident until late last night. He said that the car, which was a new one, had been taken out with his permission, and that Cramond and Conroy were testing it.

At 2 East 107th Street, Mrs. Conroy, wife of the man who is dying in the Jamaica Hospital, said that her husband was employed in the Greenhut-Siegel-Cooper garage. Cramond, she said, was her brother-in-law, and he was the personal chauffeur of Capt. J. B. Greenhut, the head of the Greenhut-Siegel-Cooper Company. Cramond leaves a wife and three children.

CHAUFFEUR HURLED OUT.

Woman at the Wheel When Car Is Wrecked in Collision.

An automobile owned by Irving Strauss, of 678 Tenth Avenue, Brooklyn, and operated by a woman whose identity was not revealed, ran into the rear end of an east-bound Bergen Street trolley car at Bedford Avenue and Bergen Street, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon at a time when Bedford Avenue was thronged with Sunday crowds out for a promenade.

Many persons on the avenue noticed that the woman driving the automobile was leaning over the steering wheel after the collision. Carl Gunnison of 1,113 Eighth Avenue, chauffeur for Mr. Strauss, was thrown out of the machine on the left side, and he landed on his head. He was picked up in a half dazed condition by persons who rushed from the sidewalk to his assistance and carried into the Union League stables at the southwest corner of Bedford Avenue and Bergen Street.

Ambulance Surgeon Post of the Swedish Hospital found him suffering only from a deep scalp wound.

The attention of Ambulance Surgeon Post was next directed to the woman. Beyond a few contusions she was not injured. She was in a highly nervous state, but declined medical assistance.

The police did not get her name. At the Grand Avenue Station the report on the blotter gives the name of Gunnison, the chaufefur, as the owner of the machine at the time of the acident.

The reporter was informed that Mr. Strauss was not at home, and no one was there who knew anything about the accident.

DIKE OUT, MANY HOMELESS.

Long-Expected Levee Break Comes in Mississippi Flood.

NATCHEZ, Miss., April 27.—A long-threatened break in the main line Mississippi River levees along the west bank in Upper Louisiana came early today when the Lake St. John dike, twelve miles north of Ferriday, La., went out, turning the flood waters loose on fine farming lands and villages of lower Tensas and Concordia parishes. Twenty thousand persons will be driven from their homes in a region of 900 square miles. The property damage will total several hundred thousand dollars.

The break developed at 3:20 o'clock this morning. People living nearby were warned fully two hours before the crash came. Most of the live stock had been moved to the hills on the Mississippi side of the river.

Six river steamers and a score of motor boats were dispatched to the scene of the crevasse from Natchez and Vicksburg to rescue persons from the flooded district.

LIONS ROAR AT OPERA.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, April 27.—When "Haensel and Gretel" was sung here by the Chicago Grand Opera Company mysterious roars were heard during dramatic climaxes of the opera. The noises startled the conductor, children in the audience were frightened, and even the singers were surprised by the strange noises.

Not until later was the mystery solved. A small circus, preparing for its Summer season, was practicing in the basement of the City Auditorium, and the roaring which startled the audience was the protest of the lions, tigers, and elephants against the music on the floor above.

LOVE LETTER A TRAP AND HE FELL INTO IT

Sent to Samuel Kalisch, Wrong Samuel Answered and Was Extradited for Theft.

Samuel Kalisch of 210 West Eleventh Street, who was arrested in this city last December, held in jail for nearly a month, then extradited and taken to San Francisco on a charge of embezzlement, telegraphed on Saturday to his lawyer, Abraham Sarasohn of 309 Broadway, to forward copies of the records of all the proceedings in the case. Kalisch has begun a suit for $100,000 for false arrest against the City of San Francisco.

Kalisch got into trouble, his lawyer says, through letting his heart be set on fire by the flaming pages of a love letter intended for another man of his name. It was while he was in Chicago last November that Kalisch received a passionate document signed "Your Ever Loving Anna." It was vaguely reproachful, but offered full forgiveness and begged him to return. The blurred and spotty condition of the writing gave the effect of tears. Kalisch, however, did not cause the stains to be analyzed for traces of salt, and while he did not distinctly recall Anna he assumed that he had unconsciously caused great suffering to some young woman, and his heart throbbed for her.

So he wrote informing Anna that she had interested him and asking her to send on a photograph and description of herself. He also notified her that he was leaving Chicago to join his brothers in New York, and would live here at 210 West Eleventh Street. He held out hopes that in time he might go back to San Francisco, where he had been for some time about a year before.

Kalisch had hardly arrived in this city when he was arrested by Detective Frank Campbell of the Sixteenth Precinct. He was charged with embezzling $800 from one Lydia Anna McCarty of 1,222 Folsom Street, San Francisco. The following morning he was held by the Magistrate in the Jefferson Market Court on a telegram from the Chief of Police in San Francisco. Against the protest of his lawyer, Mr. Sarasohn, Kalisch was recommitted for periods of two days for nearly two weeks.

Mr. Sarasohn got a writ of habeas corpus for his client from Supreme Court Justice Seabury. The case went before Supreme Court Justice McCall and was the last case he presided over before his appointement to the Public Service Commission. Mr. Sarasohn pleaded that his client had been arrested through a blunder and was being held on insufficient ground. The third telegram arrived from San Francisco by this time, however, asserted that Kalisch had been indicted and that the papers were on the way. Kalisch was thereupon returned to his cell.

A few days later a detective sergeant arrived from San Francisco with the requisition papers. He explained how Kalisch had been trapped. On the advice of the police Miss McCarty had written a score of copies of a love letter with more than an ordinary punch, sprinkled them liberally with a garden pot and directed them to most of the large cities of the United States addressing them to Samuel Kalisch.

At the hearing on the extradition papers Detective Sergeant William Minahan of San Francisco said that he identified the prisoner as the Samuel Kalisch named in the indictment. Kalisch was accordingly given over into his custody. The mistake was not discovered till Kalisch had been locked up in jail in San Francisco. When he was brought out to confront Miss McCarty she threw her hands up and said he was the wrong man.

FIRED BROWNSVILLE SHOT.

Negro Confesses He Killed Private Lightfoot in 1906.

SHARON, Penn., April 27.—Ernest Dye, a negro, under arrest here, in a confession to the police, alleges he shot and killed Private Lightfoot of the United States Army in the Brownsville, Texas, riots in 1906, and that he killed a policeman in Winston-Salem, N. C., in 1911.

The negro was arrested here when, after he walked into the police station, he attempted to drink poison. The statements of the prisoner were not clear. He insisted, however, that several persons, one named Green, were being held for the murder of Lightfoot at Brownsville.

The War Department and authorities of North Carolina have been notified.

NO "PING" TO 12-INCH SHOT.

Bathrick Says One That Grazed the Dolphin Had Voice of Thunder.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Representative Bathrick of Ohio, who was on board the dispatch boat Dolphin, with two Senators and eight other Representatives, when her rigging was struck by a twelve-inch shot from the monitor Tallahassee at target practice on Thursday, described to-day how it felt to be grazed by a cannon ball.

"We knew the signal for firing had been given," said he, "and were standing on deck, with our glasses on the target. We heard the dull rumble of the gun and the scream of the shot. I cannot describe that sound except that it was a combination of a roar, a shriek, and a buzzing sound such as might be made by a giant bumblebee. Then our eardrums were almost split by the 'thunder' caused by the air rushing into the vacuum behind the shot. Eight hundred pounds of steel, driving through the air at meteor speed, can create quite a vacuum, so that with us it was like standing within ten feet of a thunderbolt.

"Before the brain could form an idea of what had happened the shot struck the water with a hissing splash. A column of spray shot 100 feet in the air, and in descending showered several of us before we could get under cover."

HEARS AUSTRIAN ARMY IS MOVING

Berlin Rumor That 10,000 Men Have Sailed on Warships to Seize Montenegrin Towns.

INVASION BEGUN, IS REPORT

All the Powers Are Agreed on Policy of Compelling Him to Evacuate Scutari.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, April 28.—Special importance attaches to the meeting of the Ambassadors to-day, as it is understood that Austria's full statement of her position in regard to Scutari will be discussed.

Reports are current in Berlin that Austrian troops on warships have already sailed south to seize Montenegrin towns. While these are not confirmed, they emphasize the critical state of affairs.

Since the meeting of the Ambassadors of the powers here on Friday the Russian Minister at Cettinje has been instructed to join his colleagues in calling upon King Nicholas of Montenegro to evacuate Scutari. The promptness with which Russia has associated herself with the other powers in this step will, it is hoped here, strengthen the influences now working at Vienna against separate action by Austria-Hungary.

According to the Vienna correspondent of The London Times no irrevocable decision is thought to have been made yet, in spite of the statements of the press that Austria-Hungary is determined to wait no longer. Important conferences have been held by the Emperor with Count Berchtold and the Chief of the General Staff, and also with Archduke Francis Ferdinand. Of the result of these consultations there is no authentic information, but it is reported from Hungarian sources that orders have been given to make all necessary preparations for separate action, though the moment of taking such action is not fixed.

Russia Urges Delay.

The correspondent says that the Russian Government has made verbal representations to Vienna, deprecating precipitate action and pointing out that the powers have not yet exhausted the means of pressure and persuasion.

This is the view held by a majority of the powers, who, while agreeing with Austria-Hungary that King Nicholas cannot be allowed to retain possession of Scutari, are anxious not to use force to turn him out until every other means has been tried and failed.

At any rate, it is felt that Austria sould await the effect of the formal summons to evacuate that city which is about to be made to King Nicholas by the representatives of all the powers.

The correspondent adds that Austria-Hungary has little confidence in the gentler but slower methods favored by the other powers, and that the fate of the concert depends upon whether she can be persuaded to give them a fair trial. As the whole of Europe is pledged to see that its will ultimately prevails over King Nicholas there is reason to hope that she will consent to exercise patience.

Essad Bey Seeks Throne.

A fresh complication is introduced into the situation by the action of Essad Bey, proclaiming himself King of Albania. He has with him the Scutari garrison of 30,000 Turkish and Albanian troops, who are now marching on Tirana in Central Albania, where, it is stated, the remnants of the Turkish Army of Macedonia, some 10,000 men under Djavid Pasha, will join him. Djavid, it is added, will become Essad's War Minister.

The Daily Mail's correspondent at Belgrade states definitely that King Nicholas and Essad Bey are in alliance, but the report that the Montenegrins will hand Scutari back to Essad Bey is at present incredible. Whatever plot may be hatched between King Nicholas and Essad, it is not expected to alter in the least the international status of Albania, as agreed upon by the powers.

AUSTRIAN FLEET ON WAY.

Kaiser Said to Have Heard Montenegro Has Been Invaded.

LONDON, Monday, April 27.—An Austrian naval division has left Trieste with 10,000 troops, with the intention of occupying Antivari, Dulcigno, and San Giovanni di Medua, and advancing against Cettinje, according to a report published in Berlin.

The Strassberger Post asserts that the German Emperor has received a telegram to the effect that the Austrians have already entered Montenegro.

The reports are not officially confirmed, but there is great warlike activity in Austria, and it is felt certain here that Austria will act quickly unless the Ambassadorial conference in London to-day decides on a drastic policy to compel the Montenegrins to evacuate Scutari.

The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Mail hears that after a war council at which important decisions were taken Emperor Francis Joseph exclaimed that he had done his utmost to preserve peace because he wished to spend in tranquillity the last span of life Heaven had allotted to him, but that Europe wished to force him into war.

The Ambassadors of the powers presented a note at Cettinje yesterday for-

THE BORDENS IN MEDFORD.

Father Worried Only Because Ramona Is Near Nervous Breakdown.

BOSTON, Mass., April 27.—Gail Borden and his daughter, Ramona, who was restored to him here on Saturday, after a sensational search lasting for days, are recuperating near Boston. A reporter found them in Medford this evening as they returned from an automobile ride into the suburbs. Mr. Borden said to the reporter:

"You want the last word in the case, eh? Well, I'll talk to you, if you won't give away my good friend here, who is keeping us for a few days."

Mr. Borden looked happy and said he felt almost so.

"There is just one thing disturbing me," he said. "My little girl, who has stood it all very nicely up to this evening, now shows signs of possible nervous breakdown, and I am worried."

Mr. Borden does not propose to prosecute anybody. He won't make trouble in any direction. He said:

"It is all right, now that I have found the girl."

BARRACKS AFIRE; FIVE DIE.

California Sergeant Unable to Save Family in Presidio Blaze.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 27.—Two women and three children were burned to death in a fire that destroyed two frame barracks occupied by non-commissioned officers of the Sixth Infantry and their families at the Presidio here last night.

The victims were members of the family of Sergeant Schail—his wife, her mother and his three children, aged 5, 7 and 9 years. Schall made a frantic effort to save his family, and when at length he was dragged from the burning building he lost control of himself and was taken to the hospital under guard.

A sentry discovered the blaze shortly before midnight. The barracks, located in the west cantonment, were occupied by four families. The flames swept the frame structures, and the sentry could only warn three of the families in time. When he reached Schall's quarters they were a mass of flames.

The great rapidity with which the fire spread was caused by the explosion of a quantity of gasoline in one of the barracks.

W. GOADBY LOEW ROBBED.

Daughter's Cries Scared Burglar from Wheatly Hills Residence.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., April 27.—While plundering the home of W. Goadby Loew, in Wheatly Hills, early this morning a burglar aroused Miss Margaret Loew, 16 years old, who screamed for help as she caught sight of him. The thief jumped through an open window, landing on the ground twelve feet below, and made good his escape. He took with him cash and jewelry valued at about $800.

How the man got into the house is a mystery to Mr. Loew. There are several dogs within the house and a couple of watchdogs about the grounds, but the thief managed to get by them all. For that reason the authorities believe the thief was some one whose presence about the place was not unusual.

Miss Loew says there was only a dim light in her room, and she was not able to get a good look at the intruder before he jumped from the window.

NEW YORKERS IN WRECK.

Two Among Six Hurt in Rutland Train Derailment.

RUTLAND, Vt., April 27.—Six persons were badly injured at 6 o'clock to-night, when the northbound Green Mountain flyer on the Rutland Railroad was derailed while running about forty miles an hour near Beldens, four miles north of Middlebury.

Two Pullman cars, two day coaches, a baggage car, and the tender of the engine left the rails. The cause of the derailment is not known. The injured were in one of the steel parlor cars containing fifteen passengers, and were removed through the windows of the Pullman, which went about ten feet down a seventy-foot embankment.

The most seriously hurt is Miss Clara Munger of New York City, who received injuries about the head and on the left leg. The other injured passengers are O. S. Bresley of Burlington, Vt.; Charles M. Williams of New York City, Mrs. George R. Henderson of Montclair, N. J., and Miss E. Derrick of St. Albans, Vt. All the injured were taken to hospitals in Burlington.

REMNANT SALE A SUCCESS.

Chicago House Manager's New Plan Fills the Theatre.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 27.—A radical departure in the management of a theatre was inaugurated to-night when the first "remnant" sale of theatre tickets was concluded. The sale was a success. At 7:30 o'clock to-night hundreds of persons stood in line at Power's Theatre, where "The Money Moon" is being played. The tickets remaining unsold at that hour were offered at 30 cents each, and every one was sold.

Of the 1,000 persons who filled the theatre, 583 had purchased their tickets at the "remnant sale."

"We have found the real solution to the theatre problem," explained Harry Powers, "and it is successful financially. The other day I happened to enter a department store and saw a remnant sale in progress. That gave me an idea. Remnant sales in tickets at this theatre from now on will be conducted nightly."

Hereafter it is the plan of the management to sell for 50 cents all tickets not sold at 8 o'clock. It will be impossible for ticket scalpers to operate under this plan.

LIGHT TO CALL POLICE.

Caldwell Has a Plan to Save Salary of Fourth Man.

Special to The New York Times.

CALDWELL, N. J., April 27.—Arrangements have been made whereby a light displayed in the window of the central telephone station will serve as a signal for the three policemen who are on night patrol duty here. The plan will go into effect on May 1. Any resident who needs a policeman at night will call up the telephone central, and the night operator will display a light. The beats of the three policemen, including Chief John Harkey, are so arranged that one of the three passes within sight of the telephone station at intervals of fifteen minutes.

The system was devised because the borough authorities had been importuned to employ a fourth policeman, who would be on duty at the Town Hall at all hours of the night. It was decided that the maintenance of an extra policeman for this purpose would be too expensive, and Councilman Bloch's scheme was adopted instead.

NO CHECK ON BRYAN IN LAND BILL TALKS

RUMORED ROOSEVELT VIEWS

One Report Says the Colonel Told Johnson Not to Have Law Passed Until the Canal Was Ready.

Special to The New York Times.

SACRAMENTO, April 27.—At a conference of Progressive leaders this afternoon in the office of Gov. Johnson, attended by half a dozen members from each house of the Legislature, it was agreed that no decision concerning the method of holding the conferences with Secretary Bryan should be made until that official had expressed his desires after arriving to-morrow morning. This action was taken because of the hostile comments by members of both houses that the Governor's clique was trying to bottle up the visitor and not allow him to get at the real facts regarding the Alien Land bill.

Gov. Johnson said after the gathering that everything in regard to discussion of the alien land bill hinged upon the desires of the State's visitor.

"I cannot tell when our conferences will be held with Secretary Bryan, or what their nature will be, whether public or private," said the Governor. "In the matter of arrangements of that kind we are agreed that Mr. Bryan's wishes will be scrupulously and cheerfully observed, whatever they may be."

May Bring Private Advices.

There is much speculation as to the manner in which Secretary Bryan will impart his message from President Wilson. It is generally agreed that if the Secretary has information of a private or diplomatic character he will disclose it to the Governor only or to an executive meeting of the two houses of the Legislature sitting together. That such a joint meeting would be called at his request is indicated by the statements of Gov. Johnson and others.

Many, however, think that the Secretary comes only to protest in the name of the Federal Government against a violation of treaties of the United States, and that he will be content with a formal presentation of such a protest.

Mr. Bryan will arrive at 6 o'clock, and as his expressed desire not to waste time will be heeded, he will probably be able to present his views before noon. If these views concern the Legislature, Gov. Johnson will send at once official messages.

"There is no occasion for the slightest delay," said Senator Thompson, one of the leading advocates of alien land legislation, to-night. "Secretary Bryan undoubtedly understands our position thoroughly, and we are fully prepared to listen to him. All further action in the matter depends entirely upon what he has to tell us."

It was stated by several Administration leaders that the disposition to pass a law refusing land ownership to aliens who are "ineligible to citizenship," remains unchanged. Senator Thompson has completed the final draft of his new bill, which is to be presented to Secretary Bryan as the concrete expression of the sentiment of the majority. It is brief and makes no attempt to dodge the point at issue—the ineligibility of the Japanese.

Under the proposed measure no alien, who is ineligible to become a citizen, may hold land for a period longer than one year, under penalty of having the property escheat to the State. Leases are to the State, and are limited to three years.

The Democrats have given up the idea of having a committee meet the Secretary on his arrival as was first planned, and will not see him until after he has reached the Executive Mansion. They will not try to raise any political issues in connection with his visit, according to a statement of their leaders this afternoon.

Nevertheless leading Democrats from nearly every part of California are coming here to consult Secretary Bryan on the question of alien land legislation. Hotels are flooded with telegraphic requests for accommodations.

The Democrats here are pointing out the change of policy of the leaders of the majority in the Legislature. At the two previous sessions, when they were Republicans, they yielded to the appeals of Roosevelt and Taft and killed anti-Japanese legislation. Now when the President is a Democrat and they are Progressives they advocate a drastic Alien Land bill. The Democrats think that this change of front is only an effort to embarrass the National Administration.

Several versions are current here of the message sent by Col. Roosevelt last week to Gov. Johnson, which the Governor has refused to make public. One story is that the ex-President cautioned Johnson not to pass any Alien Land bill until the Panama Canal was fortified, as in case Japan resented this action she would be able to destroy all the work that had been done at Panama. Another version, which is said to come from a very good source, is that Col. Roosevelt approved the passage of such a bill at this time, as it would compel Congress to make liberal appropriations for a strong navy, which he thinks this country needs now more than ever.

It leaked out to-day that David Starr Jordan, President of Leland Stanford University, had been asked by Secretary Bryan to meet him here and give him the aid of his intimate knowledge of affairs in Japan and of Japanese sentiment in regard to the Alien Land bill. Dr. Jordan is strongly opposed to the passage of such a measure, as he regards it as a breach of National faith, since Japan has done everything in her power to prevent emigration to this country.

Thank Bryan for Wineless Banquet

OGDEN, Utah, April 27.—Utah members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union informed Secretary Bryan to-day that his "diplomatic dinner" was to their liking. Mrs. E. E. Shepherd, State President, and a delegation of white ribboners, representing the State organization, met the Secretary at the railway station and, after presenting to Mr. Bryan a monster bouquet, Mrs. Shepherd formally thanked him for his course, and praised his courage.

JAPANESE HOLD PROTEST MEETING

TELEGRAPH TO PRESIDENT

No Bitterness in Their Speeches and Wilson and Bryan Messages Are Those of Thanks.

Four hundred Japanese residents of New York met in Carnegie Hall last night, heard speeches denouncing the contemplated action of the California Legislature aiming to deprive Japanese of the right to acquire land, and adopted resolutions appealing to the authorities and fair-minded citizens of this country and Japan to solve fairly the question arising between the two nations. Telegrams were sent to President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan thanking them for the friendly spirit they have shown toward the Japanese. The resolution was as follows:

> Whereas, The Land bill pending in the California Legislature is of a nature that injures the right of our countrymen in that State, ignores humanity, violates the spirit of the American-Japanese treaty of 1911, and impairs the friendship existing between the two countries,
> Therefore we resolve to appeal to the authorities of America and Japan and to the fair-minded citizens and subjects of both countries to solve the present Californian troubles with fairness.

Riusen Yasui, editor of The Japanese-American Commercial Weekly, presided. The majority of the gathering were young Japanese employed in this city in Japanese business houses. There were present also a number of Japanese students, travelers, professional men and newspaper men. Most of the speeches were judicial in tone. The criticisms of California were voiced very mildly. Some of the speakers discussed the legal points involved in the question and others took it up from the standpoint of international relations. No remarks of a belligerent character were made by any of the speakers.

The man who attacked the California legislators most severely was Yumito Kushibiki, a promoter of Japanese enterprises in California. Some of his words translated from the Japanese are as follows:

"The real cause of the California trouble at present is the demagogues. I lived in California for many years, and I know the political conditions in that State. There are dangerous men who are powerful behind the California Legislature, and innocent Californians are being misled by these demagogues. When the good people of the State understand the real conditions of Japanese farmers and their love for that State they will learn to respect them. The trouble will then be entirely swept away."

Yasuziro Hayakawa, a life insurance man of New York, made the point that the United States, while even going so far as to abrogate its treaty with Russia to secure the rights of American subjects in Russia, were in a question of a similar nature, taking up the attitude of Russia.

"One State in this country," he said, "is attempting to destroy the ideals upon which the Nation was founded."

Yoshihiro Yamakawa, a staff correspondent of the Tokio Nichi-Nichi, said that there were only three ways to solve an international question. One was war; the second was the submission of the weaker country; the third was diplomatic adjustment.

"Can we solve this question by war?" he asked. "I think not. I am not a military expert, but when I was in Japan I had several interviews with naval and military authorities. When war was discussed, every one of them told me that war between the two countries was geographically impossible. After I came to this country I had interviews with American army and navy men, who held the same opinion. Neither country could successfully invade the other. If they told me what they really thought, I believe that no question between the two countries will ever be solved by war.

"Can we solve this land bill question by submission? I think not. Both America and Japan are so strong that neither would submit meekly to injustice.

"Therefore the third means alone remains—that of diplomatic negotiation, and I hope this question will be solved by that method."

Besides those to the President and Secretary of State, telegrams were sent to the America-Japan Society of Tokio, Viscount Chinda, Japanese Ambassador to Washington, and the Japanese Association of California at San Francisco.

ROBINSON MAY CONFESS.

Patrolman Stunned by Sentence—Ex-Inspectors' Trial To-morrow.

Before the trial of the ex-Inspectors Hussey, Thompson, Murtha, and Sweeney begins to-morrow, the District Attorney may have valuable aid in his fight, in the confession of Policeman Thomas F. Robinson, who is in the Tombs awaiting the trip to Sing Sing, where he is to serve from six to ten years for extorting a bribe.

While Policeman Robinson's testimony would not be of service against the four ex-Inspectors in the first trial, which is on a specific charge of conspiracy, it would greatly strengthen the cases against one or two of the ex-Inspectors.

The heavy sentence imposed on Robinson has stunned him. During the last few days he has refused to receive visitors outside of his own family, and the members of his family, it is said, have been endeavoring to persuade him to make a confession and ask for a reduction of sentence.

A member of the District Attorney's staff said yesterday that he believed a confession was sure to come from Robinson before the Sheriff started with him on the way to Sing Sing.

While counsel for each of the four ex-Inspectors would co-operate as far as possible in their defense, it was learned yesterday that each defendant would offer a different set of facts to prove his innocence. There will be no attempt of one to throw the guilt upon another, and a joint attack will be made by all four on the case for the State, but each will have different witnesses and a different defense to offer.

INDIANS SHOOT TWO.

Wardens Wounded in Battle with Game Law Violators—One Killed.

SUSANVILLE, Cal., April 27.—Frank P. Cady, Deputy Game Warden, and Joseph Milligan, his assistant, were shot and severely wounded yesterday by Indians whom they had arrested at Tule Lake, this county, for violations of the game laws. An Indian was killed in the fight.

The officers had arrested eleven Indians and were taking them to Madeline when one of the prisoners struck Cady on the head, and snatching his rifle shot him through the body. Milligan was shot four times.

The Indians, carrying the body of their dead comrade, were pursued by a posse headed by Sheriff Smith of Modoc County.

SUSANVILLE, Cal., April 27.—Six Indians who were placed in the Lassen County jail late to-day, charged with the shooting of two officers at Tule Lake yesterday, are in danger of being lynched. A crowd surrounded the jail to-night, and Sheriff Huntingser and a large force of deputies are on guard.

SLAIN GIRL'S BODY FOUND.

Discovery in Atlanta Plant Causes Two Arrests.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 27.—The body of fifteen-year-old Mary P. Hagan, who evidently had been murdered, was found here to-day in the basement of the National Pencil Company's plant, in which the girl was an employe. A handkerchief knotted about the neck caused death by strangulation, according to physicians, though there was an open wound in the back of the head as well as bruises and lacerations elsewhere on the body. A rope tied to the handkerchief had served, the police think, to lower the body through a trap door in the floor above.

Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, who notified the police, is under arrest, as is a youth who gave the name of A. Mullanox, and who, the police say, was seen with the girl at midnight. Both prisoners assert their innocence.

Two scrawled notes found beside the body accuse a "long, lean, tall black negro, hired here," of the crime.

SOCIALISTS HEAR GRAYSON.

Ex-Member of British Parliament Sympathizes with Strikers.

Victor Grayson, Socialist and ex-member of the British Parliament, who arrived here two weeks ago, made his first public appearance last night by addressing 200 Socialists in the branch headquarters at 360 West 125th Street. He advised them to assist in the care of the strikers' children in Paterson, N. J. He told them that it was the duty of all Socialists to take care of the children of Socialist strikers everywhere, or at least to contribute to the fund for their care.

"Conditions here under a high protective tariff system are no different so far as the workers are concerned from the conditions in free trade England," he said.

He suggested that any methods that could be resorted to by the strikers were within their right to use to win the strike. He criticised clergymen generally. Half of his audience were women, and among them was his wife. She was Miss Ruth Noryes, an actress.

BRICKYARDS UNDER GUARD.

Trouble Feared When Strikebreakers Start Work at Mechanicville.

TROY, April 27.—The brickmakers' strike at Mechanicville has reached an acute stage. An attempt will be made to-morrow to put strikebreakers at work, and Sheriff Grippin has sworn in twenty-five deputies to guard the yards.

The arrest of Mrs. Ella Reeve Bloer of Philadelphia, who was a member of the Roosevelt commission which investigated the meat packing plants of Chicago, has stirred the strikers to anger. Mrs. Bloer was making a speech to the men on Saturday night when William A. Campfield, the town President of Mechanicville, ordered her to stop. She kept on talking and was arrested, and placed under a $200 bond.

MINERS TO RESUME WORK.

Long Strike in West Virginia Coal Fields Practically at End.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 27.—The miners in the Paint and Cabin Creek districts, where a strike has been in progress more than a year, probably will return to work to-morrow. Gov. Hatfield submitted the proposal whereby the strike was settled.

Thomas Cairns, President of District 17, United Mine Workers of America, said to-night that he would send his officials into the strike field to-morrow to advise all idle men to go back to the mines.

DR. ELIOT FOR VICE BOARD.

Gov. Foss Asks Him to Head Massachusetts Inquiry.

BOSTON, April 27.—Gov. Foss said to-night that he has asked Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard, to be Chairman of the State commission which is to investigate vice in Massachusetts.

"To my mind," said Gov. Foss, "he will be an ideal man to direct the work, and an ideal man to evolve remedies. I have notified him that if he is willing to accept he may name the other members of the commission."

HEARS AUSTRIAN ARMY IS MOVING

mally demanding the evacuation of the city.

The Montenegrin Ministers excused themselves from consideration of the note until after the Easter festivities, but it is understood that the reply when given will be an emphatic negative.

In the meantime King Nicholas has issued a proclamation at Scutari, taking formal possession of the town.

Essad Pasha, who has made a dramatic move in proclaiming himself King of Albania, is a native chieftain of the type that earned for the Albanians a reputation for barbaric simplicity, approaching savagery. He was always opposed to the Young Turks' repressive measures in Albania. In Vienna and Paris his surrender of Scutari is now regarded as having been an arranged matter with King Nicholas—a coup de theatre to deceive Europe.

ROME, via Chiasso, Switzerland, April 27.—The Italian Government has put a ban on all references to demonstrations in favor of Montenegro. Students in Rome recently displayed enthusiasm over the recent Montenegrin victory and addressed Queen Helena as the daughter of King Nicholas. This information was not permitted to be sent out of the country over the telegraph lines.

While most of the people, by reason of sentiment, traditions and bonds of nationality, applaud the Balkan successes and condemn what they term "the overbearing action of Austria," the Italian Government, for reasons of state and because of pledges to the Triple Alliance, is obliged to co-operate with the administration at Vienna. In this way the royal family, with its close connections with the Montenegrin sovereign, is placed in an embarrassing position which has aroused popular sympathy.

PARIS, April 27.—The Duke of Montpensier in a letter to a member of his family, announces that he has decided to decline the throne of Albania, because if he accepted he would lose the two titles he was proudest of—"French citizen" and "French prince."

TOURISTS IN WAR ZONE.

Those on the Laconia Held Up Three Times Near Constantinople.

Daniel D. Bidwell, a well-to-do business man of Hartford, who returned yesterday on the Carmania, was one of the tourists on the Clark cruise of the Laconia, which sailed from New York on Feb. 12, and was the only tourist cruiser, he said, that got to Constantinople or Piraeus this season, owing to the war.

"When we stopped at Madeira," said Mr. Bidwell, "we took on board Deputy United States Consul Louis Peck of Constantinople, and I believe that is the reason we got through and saw the city.

"Going through the Dardanelles the ship was stopped by a blank shot fired from the fort on the European side. After hoisting signals stating that the Laconia was a tourist steamer we were allowed to proceed. A short time after that a shot was fired from a fort on the Asiatic side, and we stopped again. The same signals were hoisted, and all was well. The steamer had gone ahead only a few minutes when a solid shot was fired across her bows from a water battery. Then the Captain stopped and anchored, and a rowboat came off with a Turkish naval officer sitting in the stern.

"Capt. Irvine, as commander in the Royal Naval Reserve, had a blue ensign flying at the stern instead of the familiar red British ensign, and this, the officer told him, had caused the Laconia to be mistaken for a warship.

"As there were the full number of warships belonging to Great Britain in the Dardanelles at the time, the officer informed the commander that unless he lowered the blue ensign and hoisted the red flag of the merchant marine he could not go in. Capt. Irvine complied with as good grace as possible, and we went in and anchored near the warships of the various nations off the Golden Horn."

Frank C. Clark, who was also on the Carmania, said that Constantinople was full of disabled and maimed soldiers, and the feature of their appearance to the Americans was the resigned way in which they took their injuries.

In Athens the tourists from the Laconia went to the hotels Grand Bretagne and D'Angleterre, opposite the Royal Palace, and were surrounded with Greek soldiers after dinner who apparently had all come from America to serve in the war, and who hailed them with "Any one here from Kansas City?" "Who's from Chicago?" "Any news from good old New York?" and similar queries. There were few wounded soldiers in Athens.

FREE SCOPE OFFERED TO AMEND TARIFF

Underwood Against Gag When This Stage Starts To-morrow—Debate Ends To-day.

BUT CHANGES ARE UNLIKELY

Except Those House Committee Chooses—Only Fifteen Defections Expected—Bill to Senate May 15.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The five-day general debate in the House on the Underwood Tariff bill will end to-morrow night. On Tuesday the bill will be taken up for consideration and amendment under the five-minute rule. Ten days or two weeks will elapse before the final vote on the measure is taken by the House. The bill is expected to be ready for consideration by the Senate Finance Committee on May 15.

The deluge of talk which leaders of the House have faced the last four days has not had any influence upon the probable result in the House. Since the Democratic caucus approved the Underwood bill and made it binding upon the party members in the House, it has been a foregone conclusion that the bill as framed by the committee will pass the House practically unchanged. The only changes made in the measure will be such as may be recommended by the Ways and Means Committee as the consideration of the bill under the five-minute rule proceeds.

Under this method of pocedure it will be in order to offer unlimited amendments. Any member who wishes to propose a change will have that opportunity. But he may not discuss the amendment more than five minutes. An average of at least ten minutes will be given to every paragraph under the five-minute rule. Some items, where many amendments will be proposed, will consume much time. It is not the purpose of Chairman Underwood to ask for the adoption of any special rule to govern consideration of the bill. He feels that every member should have the right, freely and without interference, to offer amendments and ample time for their discussion. He believes that the bill can be sent to the Senate by May 15, and has taken a stand against the adoption of any "gag rule" to expedite the passage of the bill.

The Ways and Means Committee Democrats will meet almost daily while the Tariff bill is under consideration for the purpose of determining whether any changes should be made in the bill. From time to time they will propose changes in some of the items, and some of the amendments may be based on suggestions from the Finance Committee. These will be submitted to the House as committee amendments.

Fifteen Democratic members of the House have been released from supporting the bill under the resolution adopted by the recent caucus extending that privilege to them because of pledges which they had given to their constituents to oppose some of the provisions of the bill. It is not expected that more than fifteen Democrats will vote against the bill on its final passage. The Democratic majority is so great in the House that the loss of a few votes will not be felt.

SCOUTS FLORIDA PROTESTS.

Senator Bryan Won't Voice Citrus Fruit Men's Plea for Protection.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Senator N. P. Bryan of Florida, a Democrat, has declined to voice the demand of the citrus fruit growers of his State that the protective tariff of 80 cents a box on oranges be retained in the pending tariff bill. In a statement issued to-day Senator Bryan tells the Florida orange growers that the Democrats are pledged to a revision of the tariff on a revenue and not on a protective basis.

"If the Democrats in Congress are true to their platform and pledges," he says, "it is inevitable that a rate will be established inviting importations of foreign oranges, even though there may be no importations, just as there will be rates on other articles of foreign production now barred by the Republican protective tariff wall. If the Democrats are not true to their pledges and platform, the protective wall will be maintained, the people will be unrelieved of the burdens under which they have labored, and the party will be judged unworthy of trust, and its destiny determined."

Then Senator Bryan puts the following question to the Florida citrus growers:

"In 1912 Canada imported 3,218,030 boxes of oranges and grape fruit, of which the United States supplied 2,950,287 boxes, or all but 267,743 boxes. If Canada, which admits citrus fruit free, imports so insignificant a quantity from countries other than the United States, how can it be fairly contended that the United States, with a tariff of 35 cents a box, would be deluged with foreign oranges and the industry destroyed? Frankly, I am of the opinion that the Florida orange needs no protection, and I doubt if the bill, at 35 cents a box, will raise any but an insignificant revenue."

PASSAIC FEARS CUT TARIFF.

Industries There, Especially Woolen Mills, Protest to Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—President Wilson, the Finance Committee of the Senate, the Ways and Means Committee of the House, and the New Jersey Senators and Representatives in Congress, have received copies of a resolution adopted unanimously by the Board of Trade of Passaic, N. J., together with briefs submitted by Passaic manufacturers, asking that certain changes be made in the pending tariff measure so as to prevent injury to Passaic industries.

The resolution, which is signed by C. F. H. Johnson, President, and R. E. Lent, Secretary of the Board of Trade, recites that the woolen, cotton, handkerchief, chemical, metal and paper industries of Passaic represent an aggregate investment of $40,000,000, and give employment to 20,000 men and women, with an annual payroll of $10,000,000, and furnish trade and livelihood to a total population of 60,000, most of whom are absolutely dependent upon the prosperity of these industries.

The resolution endorses the briefs submitted by the Passaic manufacturers, and sets forth that "the harm caused by insufficient tariff rates in depriving many of the city's workers of employment will be greatly aggravated by the fact that many of these workers have purchased their own homes and are gradually paying for them, and are entirely dependent upon the prosperity of the local industries."

It is maintained that the proposal of the Ways and Means Committee to reduce the rate on woolen and worsted articles from 100 per cent. to 35 per cent. would be ruinous and confiscatory. The assertion is made that under the 100 per cent. rate fine goods have been imported amounting to more than 90 per cent. of the total imports of woolen cloths and dress goods. A schedule of suggestions for the committee to follow in the proposed change of rates is contained in the brief.

The woolen and worsted manufacturers who sign one brief are Forstman & Huffmann Company, the New Jersey Worsted Spinning Company, the Gera Mills, the Pitkin-Holdsworth Worsted Company, the Passaic Worsted Spinning Company, the Garfield Worsted Mills, and the Roberts Ford Worsted Mills.

Other Passaic manufacturers who have forwarded briefs protesting against the proposed tariff changes are the Brighton Mills, for pneumatic tire fabrics; the Acheson Harden Company, for cotton and linen handkerchiefs; the Passaic Metalware Company, for metal cans, boxes, and advertising signs, and the Paterson Parchment Paper Company.

Another brief accompanying the resolution was forwarded by the employes of the Athenia Steel Company of Athenia, N. J.

MISS CONGER'S ODD DEATH.

Was Niece of Former Envoy to China—Coroner Investigating.

Special to The New York Times.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., April 27.—The sudden death here last night of Miss Lena Conger, daughter of Edward Conger, a retired business man of Adel, Iowa, and a niece of a former Minister to China, Edwin H. Conger, is the subject of a Coroner's inquiry. A hemorrhage of the lungs and kidneys is given as the cause of death by the attending physicians, but an autopsy ordered by the Coroner, performed after midnight, failed to throw any light on the cause of the hemorrhage.

Miss Conger, who was about 25 years old, arrived at the Alamo Hotel three days before her death, and registered under the name of Mrs. C. B. Hutchins of Des Moines, Iowa. She appeared ill and last night summoned Dr. Otto E. Zillman. He called in another physician, who arrived just as she died.

LAMAR, Col., April 27.—Mrs. Charles B. Hutchins, wife of an engineer here, who is a sister of Miss Conger, is at a loss to account for her death. She said that her sister was subject to violent headaches when on a visit to her here a few weeks ago, and that perhaps she took some strong headache medicine which caused the hemorrhage.

"Why did she assume the title of a married woman, giving her name as Mrs. C. B. Hutchins?" she was asked.

"I told my sister to use my name, because I believed that it would be a protection for her in traveling. You know a married woman is less molested than a single girl," Mrs. Hutchins replied.

ABUSE AN AGED WOMAN.

Stripped in Park by Boys, Who Overlooked Her Bankbook.

Surrounded by a jeering mob that gathered about the park enclosure in Delancey Street, near Eldridge, last night, Patrolman Coleman found at old woman lying on the ground. Street arabs had tipped her from the bench on which she sat and stripped off her clothing. This lay scattered about her. In the Clinton Street Station she was clothed and locked up for intoxication.

In a pocket of her skirt the police found a bankbook showing deposits of $884 that had been depleted to $500 by withdrawals during the last two months. On Saturday $50 had been withdrawn. This book was in the name of Mary Tietgen.

Late last night the same station received a general alarm for a Mary Tietgen, reported as having been missing since Saturday morning from her home at 1,122 First Avenue. Her age was given as 77, and the notice was sent out by her daughter, Mrs. Hannah Sheu of 1,074 First Avenue.

293D DANCE MAY KILL HER.

Polish Bride Collapsed in the Midst of Wedding Festivities.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., April 27.—Mrs. John Kuzlus, a bride of three days, is in a critical condition and may die as a result of dancing too much during her wedding festivities. The Polish custom of dancing with the bride for $1 a dance is responsible.

During the 293d dance, with 293 silver dollars to her credit, Mrs. Kuzlus collapsed.

REPORT THE SHERIFF GETS TOO MUCH PAY

is practically impossible to determine to whom these funds belong for the reason that "no ledger or controlling account is maintained."

This is a summary of the findings of the Commissioners of Accounts.

> The methods of accounting for the financial transactions of the office are extremely crude, and in need of revision as to books, forms, and methods of operation.
>
> Erroneous methods in the retention of poundage fees prevail, entailing incomplete returns to plaintiffs' attorneys.
>
> An erroneous practice in the collection of interest on amounts of judgments exists, entailing additional cost to defendants.
>
> There has been no control until recently over the use of railroad tickets provided for the transportation of prisoners and guards accompanying them.
>
> Affidavits of correctness transmitted with remittances to the City Chamberlain are valueless, in that they embody no record of amount remitted.
>
> The daily cost of the supervision and maintenance of the prisoners at the county jail is exorbitant.
>
> The city maintains Federal prisoners committed by the United States Marshal at an annual loss to the city of over $3,000.
>
> An unnecessarily large force of officers and employes is maintained to care for the prisoners committed to the county jail. Often times they are in excess of the number of prisoners incarcerated.
>
> Two engineers employed in the jail at per diem rates have been allowed vacations of twenty-one days each, with full pay, in violation of Charter provisions. The services of these engineers do not appear to be necessary in the operation of the jail.
>
> The cost of collections as compared with the fees received by the city is exorbitant and unnecessarily excessive.
>
> The compensation of the Sheriff is in excess of equitable compensation for the labors and responsibilities of such an official position.

Specific Recommendations.

These are the recommendations:

> That the accounting and recording methods of the office be revised in accordance with the forms and directions submitted with this report to the Sheriff of New York County.
>
> That the retention of excess poundage fees on interim payments be discontinued.
>
> That the calculation of interest on judgments be confined to the existing unsatisfied amount.
>
> That the amount of each remittance to the Chamberlain be specifically stated in the accompanying affidavit.
>
> That if the county jail is continued under the jurisdiction of the Sheriff, the force of officers and employes maintained therein be reduced, and that the services of at least one of the engineers be terminated.
>
> That legislative action be instituted, limiting the compensation of the Sheriff to his present salary of $12,000 per annum, and that all fees collected revert to the city.
>
> That the county jail be abolished, and the property turned over to the Sinking Fund Commission to be sold or used for other purposes for the benefit of the City of New York, and that provision be made whereby the Department of Correction may care for such few prisoners as the Sheriff is called upon to look after from time to time, either by assuming direct responsibility for their safekeeping or setting aside some part of one of the city jails for the use of the Sheriff.

Sheriff Harburger said last night that he indorsed every word in the report, and that he would see to it that every recommendation made by the Commissioners of Accounts was carried out.

"This is the first examination made since 1004," said the Sheriff, "and had there been examinations every year what has now turned up would not have been possible, for the conditions referred to could not have existed. I sustain the report in its entirety and will carry out every recommendation."

The Sheriff said he had already dismissed one of the employes of his office as a result of the report. The man, a clerk, is now under indictment.

KEEP ARMY ACTIVE IS GARRISON'S IDEA

Secretary Urges Importance of Giving the Troops More War Training.

FEWER AND LARGER POSTS

Believes in Theory of Utilizing Times of Peace in Preparation for Strife.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Secretary Garrison, in a statement to-night, urged the importance of assembling brigades and divisions periodically for war training in times of peace.

"I hope war may never come," said he, "but in the present stage of civilization we must recognize the possibility; and it is with this idea in mind that I say I believe it would be well if our legislators would make provision for the annual assembling of at least one army division as a school, wherein our officers might get practical and necessary training.

"We may not need a large army, but it should be as nearly perfect as it is possible. Otherwise, whatever is spent is not bringing its full efficient return, and this applies to thought, skill and training, as well as to money."

Discussing the question of a future military policy for the United States, Secretary Garrison said there were entirely too many army posts and that many of them were not where they should be.

"Whether this situation should be remedied by concentrating the army at a few large posts or a larger number of regimental posts, I have not as yet formed any definite conclusion. Much may be said effectively upon each side of this question. I hope, when I get the time, to give this matter my most earnest consideration, with a desire to reach a conclusion that is best for the country."

The statement set forth the primary objects which impelled Mr. Garrison's predecessor to reorganize the army into the existing scheme of brigades and divisions as follows:

"First, the definite assignment of commanders, their staff officers and organizations, to the higher tactical units, which heretofore had always been done in times of stress and confusion, and after war had been declared or hostilities begun; and, second, the higher tactical training of the commanders, their staffs and the organizations, so as to make them effective.

"The purpose of the order, in so far as the first object is concerned, has beeen accomplished," the statement continues. "The accomplishment of the second object of the order will not be so immediate or easy of execution. Owing to circumstances over which the army has no control, it is stationed in many posts and in many commands. This scattered condition prevents that practical training of brigades and divisions and their commanders and staffs which is so essential for war purposes.

"Until some such plan can be worked out, it will readily be seen how important it is that at times the larger units be assembled temporarily for the purpose of what may be called war training."

Irrespective of the purpose of the temporary concentration of the present division in Texas under command of Major Gen. William H. Carter and considered only as a school, the Secretary said: "The expense will be more than repaid in the practical training received by officers upon whose shoulders will rest the responsibility for the lives of our soldiers in camp and their conduct in the field."

No better illustration of the value of divisional organization and training can be given, he added, than to compare the prompt and easy concentration of the present division in Texas with the cumbersome and slow assembling under the old organization of the provisional division sent to San Antonio two years ago.

HIT GIRL, STABBED FATHER.

Then Neighbors Sought to Mob Man Caught by Police.

Fourteen-year-old Lena Piacente ran into her father's undertaking establishment at 561 Morris Avenue, the Bronx, last evening, and told him that a man on the sidewalk outside had jostled her and, when she complained, had struck her in the face. The girl pointed out the offender to her indignant father. There were high words between them, and a moment later Detectives Hazlett and Bruckman, summoned by the girl's screams, found Piacente nursing a stab wound in the shoulder, and saw a young man running away.

They gave chase, and four blocks away caught the fugitive. Meanwhile the word spread through the Italian section, where Pasquale Piacente is a leading citizen, that he had been murdered, and that his daughter had been attacked, and when the detectives returned with their prisoner they found a vengeful crowd waiting. The more impetuous of Piacente's neighbors seized the frightened man and mauled him some before the detectives, with the aid of their guns and reinforced by two bluecoats, could get him into the undertaking shop. There they waited for the patrol wagon, and when it came they succeeded only with great difficulty in making a path to it through the clamorous crowd.

The prisoner said he was William Beltiga, a laborer, of 213 East 150th Street. He said he had not annoyed the girl.

Bought Cleaner Instead of Auto.

TRENTON, April 27.—Miss Lily Dale Atkinson, Superintendent of the City Tuberculosis Hospital, disregarded her personal convenience when she bought a vacuum cleaner for the institution with an appropriation made by the City Commissioners for an automobile for her. The hospital is on the outskirts of the city, and cannot be reached by trolley lines.

STAGE FRIGHT AT WEDDING.

Mayor of North Bergen Refused at Last Moment to Unite Couple.

When Alexander Moore, living on Hudson Boulevard, North Bergen, N. J., told his brother-in-law, Mayor Adolph Asmus of that place, that he was going to marry Miss Mabel Mape of Brooklyn, he asked the Mayor, as his best friend and in his official capacity, to perform the ceremony. Mayor Asmus straightway consented to do so, and a score of the friends of the young couple were gathered at the home of the Mayor yesterday afternoon for the wedding.

A hush fell upon the wedding guests when Mr. Moore entered the room with his bride-to-be. As they faced the Mayor of North Bergen, he suddenly dropped his prayerbook, and, to the surprise of the guests and the bewilderment of the couple waiting to be made one, exclaimed:

"I won't do it! I won't start any young couple on the road to trouble!"

The wedding guests and the couple could not prevail on the Mayor to go ahead with the ceremony, which, it was afterward learned, was his first attempt to officiate at a marriage. Finally a messenger was dispatched to Recorder George Medina, who went to the house of the Mayor in a hurry and made Mr. Moore and Miss Mape husband and wife.

Mayor Asmus would not further explain his refusal to marry the couple.

HAYWOOD ASKS FOR CASH.

Urges Direct Action as "Shortest Way Home" at Schenectady.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 27.—William D. Haywood, under indictment at Paterson, N. J., addressed a mass-meeting in a local theatre this afternoon. His appearance here was unexpected. Carlo Trescka and Miss Elizabeth G. Flynn, leaders in the silk mill strike, were scheduled to address the meeting, but being under arrest they could not come, and Haywood offered his services as a substitute.

He made a plea for financial assistance to support the Industrial Workers of the World defense at Little Falls and at Paterson. He characterized New Jersey as a "stench in the nostrils of American tradition." He assailed Chief Bimson, told of the labor troubles in Paterson, and advocated "direct action" as the "shortest way home." He predicted that the mill owners would either "come down from their high horses" or else "go without clothes."

Prominent Socialists, including Mayor George R. Lunn, were conspicuous by their absence. The Mayor recently denounced Haywood from the same stage.

Haywood left here for Paterson to face arrest there.

THE HERO SLIPPED AWAY.

No One Identified Man in Overalls Who Saved Woman from River.

A man dressed in overalls and believed to be a longshoreman dove into the North River off West Fifty-ninth Street yesterday afternoon, and rescued Mrs. Josephine Brouki from drowning. While the doctor who was called was working over her he hurried off in his wet clothes without leaving his name.

Mrs. Brouki lives at 547 West Fifty-ninth Street. She was walking along the stringpiece when she fell into the water. Her rescuer swam to her side, and brought her back to the pier, where a rope was thrown to them. She was brought to shore almost unconscious. The rescuer leisurely awaited his turn to be hauled up.

While Dr. Prior of the Polyclinic Hospital was pumping the water out of Mrs. Brouki the life saver disappeared. Mrs. Brouki was revived and taken home.

KILLED BY LONG FALL.

Servant's Body Found in Court of West End Avenue Apartment.

Miss Delia Potts, a maid employed in the family of Edward F. McManus, a banker, living at 465 West End Avenue, fell from the window of her bedroom on the seventh floor of the apartment last night and was instantly killed when her body struck the stone courtyard. The police found the body there at 11:40 P. M. The clothing was wet with the rain, and it was thought she had been dead for some time.

The window of her room was open, but the police could not discover whether she had fallen out or had jumped to the courtyard in the rear. She was 30 years old, and is said to have a sister living at 517 East 165th Street. The body was sent to the Morgue.

HUNT MRS. FRANK HARRIOTT

Police Asked to Find Missing Wife of New Haven Railroad Clerk.

Frank Harriott, a clerk in the passenger department of the New Haven Railroad, reported to the police of the Morrisania Station yesterday afternoon that his wife, Winifred, had been missing from their home at 419 East 153d Street since 9 o'clock Saturday morning.

Harriott left his wife at breakfast, making an appointment to meet her at home in the evening and go shopping. On his return his wife was missing. As his wife had complained of pains in her heart, Harriott feared she might have been taken ill. Police communication with all the city hospitals, the Coroner's office, and the Morgue failed to reveal the presence there of anyone answering Mrs. Harriott's description.

Mrs. Harriott is described as 29 years old, weighing 118 pounds, five feet four inches in height, brown hair, light complexion. She was dressed, when last seen, in a purple shirtwaist, black skirt, shoes, and stockings.

agent who was dismissed by Col. Scott on recommendation of the Governor's Commission of Inquiry, had full control over the shops, according to the report, and was recognized as master in all industrial matters. "Under his control the shops were kept busy making articles that were not salable," the report says. "Complaint has been made of the lack of storage room. There are about 18,000 Warren desks stored in the prison grounds now, and 12,000 more are in course of manufacture, and yet the cry is for more money to increase the operating space. The desks which they make are those upon which a royalty has to be paid. Any other kind of desk would be just as satisfactory."

Mr. Blake cites this incident in industrial management:

"Baskets weighing about thirty pounds that were made in Auburn Prison were shipped to the Riverside Hospital in New York. The charge for the baskets was $15. The cartage from the Grand Central freight yard in New York City to the hospital was $12, and the bill was O. K.'d by F. H. Mills. It appearing certain that the hospital would object to this charge, the amount for cartage was reduced to $3 and the remaining $9 was charged up against the cost of manufacture. It did not seem to occur to anybody here that the bill of the truckman should be disputed. He is allied with a strong political faction in New York."

Concerning a contract for renovating and repairing newly made articles shipped to New York from the prison, Mr. Blake observes: "The man having this contract is also allied with some strong influence in New York City. If the men in charge of this prison did not share in this graft, they certainly permitted its creation and continuance."

"A glaring feature of the wrongs inflicted upon prisoners is that of fines," according to Mr. Blake, who says the "entire administration of the prison is lacking in almost every essential for efficiency."

The pro rata cost of feeding the prisoners, as it appears in the record, he says, is "a false pro rata, because it includes food consumed by others than the convicts."

Mr. Blake recommends the creation of a bureau for the purchase of all supplies used by the prisons and reformatories. He also recommends that the prisons be kept as units, "so that each one may have its own appropriation, its own allotment of supplies, and be compelled to stand upon its own feet." He believes that the cost of maintaining Auburn Prison could be reduced $75,000 a year, and at the same time its general condition could be improved.

"The total amount of money expended from 'Special Appropriations' from Jan. 1, 1911, to April 1, 1913, was $52,034.12," says the report. "The monthly average was $1,927.19."

The prison has been carrying a shortage on its books of $2,895.51, which occurred under B. Frank Weinegar while he was a clerk in the prison. This shortage has never been made good, although Mr. Weinegar and the assistant clerk were under bonds. One of these bondsmen was Arthur M. Ward of Jamestown, N. Y.

"The law," says the report, "gives the agent and the Warden the power to collect this debt, but he failed to take any steps in this transaction. Weinegar is still employed in the prison as correspondence censor."

"The State has been supporting a number of fine horses and vehicles for the pleasure of the Warden," says Mr. Blake. "The annual cost of maintaining this luxury is an unnecessary burden upon the people. The value of the horses and vehicles is at present $2,500."

"PULL" WON'T HELP THE ARMY OFFICER

He Is to be Called On to Explain Every Outside Recommendation.

AND HE'LL BE HELD BACK

New Order Soon to be Issued Reiterating Those Made by President Roosevelt.

The use of outside influence or, as it is sometimes referred to in the Army, the use of the "political pull," will in the future act against instead of in favor of any Army officer seeking to gain promotion to a higher rank, transfer to a more agreeable duty, or assignment to one of the much desired special details in the gift of the President or Secretary of War. An order to this effect will be issued within the next few days.

In 1905 such an order was personally issued by President Roosevelt, but for several years the order has been pigeonholed, so to speak, and the Army has been full of complaints regarding the promotion, or special assignment to more pleasant duties, of various officers who, deservedly or undeservedly, had the reputation of being men with a "pull."

In his "Executive Order," issued in July, 1905, President Roosevelt called attention to the fact that Congress, by appropriate legislation, had made the matter of promotion, assignments and transfers the subject of statutory regulation, and that the records as to the character, capacity, military services and general attainments of all the officers in the Army were on file in the War Department.

"The records so obtained," Mr. Roosevelt added, "fully set forth the relative merits of officers of all grades of rank in the various branches of the line and staff, and enable all vacancies which occur in the military service to be filled after careful comparison of the records of those officers who are eligible under the law for particular assignments or details. * * * Should it be discovered that since the publication of this order an officer of the Army or Navy has sought recommendation or support from sources outside of those named, this fact will debar him from obtaining the particular advancement, assignment or detail which he has by such means attempted to secure, and the fact that he has sought such influence will be noted on his official record."

Four years later, on March 3, 1909, President Roosevelt issued a second executive order, calling attention to the order of 1905 in which he reiterated what he had said in the former order. Both of these orders will be incorporated in the general order that Major Gen. Wood, the Chief of Staff, is about to issue on behalf of Secretary of War Garrison.

"Notwithstanding these orders," Gen. Wood will say, "this department is constantly in receipt of numerous requests, written and oral, concerning the promotion, assignment, transfer, detail and other special treatment of officers in the service. In some instances of recent occurrence it has been found that the officer in question did not desire the thing requested in his behalf, and in many others it is difficult to believe that the officer was not directly or indirectly responsible for the request, although it came through a third person and bore no direct evidence of his participation therein. If the department heeds the importunities of those who, by disobeying these orders in letter or spirit, are enabled to reach it, the result is simply to put a premium upon disobedience and to punish those who strictly observe the orders.

"Hereafter any communication made to this department, written or oral, requesting any promotion, assignment, transfer, detail or other special consideration for any officer (excepting when made by the officer himself in the proper way), will at once be referred to the officer in question, who will be required to state whether the communication was made directly or indirectly by his procurement, and whether he avows or disavows the request."

The order will be signed by Gen. Wood "by order of the Secretary of War," and by Brig. Gen. George Andrews, the Adjutant General of the Army.

FOUND BURGLARS' LOOT.

They Had Stored Fourteen Auto Lamps in Hallway of Tenement.

Patrolman Moran of the East 125th Street station found fourteen brass automobile lamps stacked in the rear of the hallway of the apartment house at 238 East 118th Street last night. None of the tenants in the house laid claim to them, and they were taken to the station.

The lamps were packed separately in pasteboard boxes, and had never been used. There is an automobile supply house next door to the apartment house, and the police believe they were stolen from this place and left temporarily in the hallway. No one connected with the supply house could be found last night.

PUSHES CHILD LABOR FIGHT

Welfare League Asks That Lawmakers Be Urged to Act.

The Child Welfare League has issued a call urging all who are interested in remedying the evils of child labor to write to their legislative representatives, requesting them to insist upon the early passage of the bill recommended by the Factory Investigating Commission. Practically the only opposition to that measure is that which has been inspired by the canners, who are endeavoring to make the public believe that the work of small children in the canning sheds is not real labor, but is a kind of pastime almost as enjoyable as play itself. Such a picture of conditions in the canneries entirely disregards the evidence presented at the hearings before the Commission, where it was shown that only in two canneries—in Geneva and Batavia—were conditions otherwise than deplorable.

Miss Mary L. Chamberlain, one of the Commission's investigators, found many children less than 10 years old, a few of them 4 or 5 years old, working in the sheds. She found children much less than 16 years old working from 4 o'clock in the morning until 10 and 11 o'clock at night. These children in many instances were forced to work by threats and rough usage at the hands of their parents.

Here is a case recorded by Miss Chamberlain:

> On Aug. 20 little Jack, aged 12, worked from 4:30 A. M. until 10 P. M. snipping beans, with only one-half hour for dinner and only a few minutes for supper. He said, "My fingers is broke." He said he was awfully tired, but his mother made him work. His hands was swollen.

"After the commission visited one of the canneries where I was at work," testified Miss Chamberlain, who took positions to aid the commission, "the boss said that children under 5 years of age could not work there any more."

The factory law prohibits employment of children under 14, but a former Attorney General asserted that a cannery shed was not a factory, thereby authorizing employment of children of any age in the canning industry for as many hours a day as they could be kept awake.

HURLED FROM MOTOR CYCLE

Young Man and Young Woman on Tandem Machine Wrecked.

Theodore Rice, a Columbia student, and Miss Beatrice Weil, 19, of 202 Riverside Drive, were both patients in the Washington Heights Hospital last night, suffering from injuries received when the tandem motorcycle on which they were spinning along Riverside Drive yesterday morning struck a lamppost. As they fell from the wrecked machine, their escape from instant death was narrow, for several speeding automobiles close behind them had to swerve sharply to prevent running over them. They were unconscious when taken to the hospital by Dr. Watkins, who revived them.

The young man, who is 22 and a son of Mrs. Isaac L. Rice, President of the Society for the Prevention of Unnecessary Noises, was returning from a ride, when something went wrong with his steering gear, and as he tried to avoid a passing automobile by giving his machine a sharp turn, the motorcycle plunged from side to side until the lamppost at 197th Street wrecked it.

At the hospital it was found that Miss Weil was severely cut and bruised, and suffering greatly from shock, which may necessitate several days' treatment. A bone above the right shoulder of Rice was broken, and he, too, was cut, bruised and affected by shock. The physician said he would be laid up for several weeks. He lives with his mother in the Ansonia. Miss Weil is the daughter of Herman Weil, a manufacturer.

THE TIMES'S DAILY SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCHES

SALON'S SCULPTURE ITS BEST FEATURE

French Plastic Artists Show More Significant Works Than Last Year.

STRONG PATRIOTIC NOTE

Sounded in Two Napoleonic Paintings and in Other Subjects—Americans Well Represented.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 27.—The Salon des Artistes Françaises, the varnishing day of which is Tuesday, will be considerably less interesting than that of last year. The number of bad and indifferent pictures is greater, while the number of those that are really excellent has not increased. This criticism, however, applies only to the paintings. The Salon is richer in good sculpture than those of previous years.

On entering one is struck immediately by the wonderfully energetic group by De Pouilly, "The Charge of Murat at the Battle of Eylau." The great cavalry leader is plunging forward with his sword upraised, while his staff is eagerly following. Other statues appealing to patriotic sentiment abound. A typical French infantryman in bronze, advancing with fixed bayonet, is the work of R. de German. There is immense force in the modeling as well as fine enthusiasm and intrepidity in the facial expression. Aviation is symbolized by an exquisitely graceful marble figure of a woman, apparently soaring aloft, with arms outspread and holding light drapery in a manner vaguely suggesting the wings of a monoplane. On a rock at the base of the statue are inscribed the names of the pioneers and heroes of aviation, among which is that of Wilbur Wright. This is by G. Michel.

Horace Vernet, the great French military painter, is honored with two statues. One by Leduc represents him sketching on horseback, in accordance with his habit, on the battlefield of Isly, in Algeria. Both horse and man are executed with charming lightness of touch and finesse of line and contour. Leduc, however, has an even greater work in this Salon. It is a monument to be erected in the Town of Villeur-sur-Mer, where the time meridian was established when France accepted the Greenwich standard. Apollo is seen descending in his chariot, with symbolic figures in his train, while suspended from his outstretched arms is the gauge which marks the noonday hour. A most impressive "Descent from the Cross," in marble, is shown by Icard. The figures are of colossal proportions. The faces of Christ and the man bearing Him on his back are superb studies. Herbert Ward, the American companion of Stanley, the explorer, contributes a bronze statue of a native African, entitled "Distress," which is expressive of the profoundest feeling. He inscribes it "A Souvenir of the Stanley Expedition."

The paintings show the same general reaction toward lower color tones as those of other recent exhibitions. In this respect at least the public is the gainer. Joyous notes here and there are now more lacking than formerly, but there is certainly a tendency to reject the temptation to exaggerate, both in form and color. On the other hand, the horrible finds little expression here. The most marked example of it is a painting by Boutigny entitled "Les Naufrageurs," which is best translated by the term "shore pirates." Shipwrecked people are being robbed, butchered, and hanged, while the chief bandit sits enthroned on the beach defying the despairing hatred of a stalwart captive who is about to be led to his fate. The effects produced are most vivid, yet not absolutely revolting.

Two Paintings of Napoleon.

Farre exhibits a very fanciful picture of Napoleon absorbed in his last dream at St. Helena. The Emperor is reclining at full length, wrapped in gray, on a gray couch. Across his body lie scarlet regalia, with a brilliant decoration, his sword and his black military hat. Nôtre Dame de Paris, the Pantheon, the Tuilleries, and the Arc de Triomphe are imaged in a misty atmosphere, and in the farther distance his embattled armies, amid the smoke of cannon and flashes of musketry. There is another Napoleon picture, almost equally tragic, showing the Emperor leaving the Kremlin, accompanied by Ney, with the flames leaping high behind them. The painter is Maurice Orange. Paul Le Roy exhibits a phase of the horrors of war in his painting of the interior of a stable which has been turned into a hospital. This picture, in its simple, eloquent realism, is worthy to be hung beside Hoffbauer's "Corner of a Battlefield."

A primitive man, woman, and child in savage nudity are the theme of an extraordinarily forceful picture by Pougheon, which is equally interesting as a work of art and a study of the condition of the human race in prehistoric times. Jean Paul Laurens exhibits one of his most charming smaller canvases, entitled "Meditation." It depicts two young girls on a dingy choir bench of an old church, holding their antique Prayer Books in their hands. One of them is lost in reverie. Joseph Ball and Maurice Grun have genre pictures of very much the same tone and general conception of style and finish. Arthur Lyons gives a scene in the studio of a noted master, lecturing before his pupils, among whom many are easily recognized as having already attained distinction. Walter Donne has a superb genre scene showing a London journeyman tailor at work in his home shop.

Two pictures that may well be studied together are Rochegrosse's "Burning of Persepolis by Alexander the Great" and Ernst's vigorous glimpse of a corner of Constantinople after the destruction of the city by fire.

A canvas marvelously rich in coloring and of lively significance is Edgar Bundy's representation of "The Merry Wives of Windsor." The moment chosen is that at which Falstaff is heaved out of the basket in which he has been hidden under the soiled linen.

There is, as usual, a large array of portraits with nothing in point of excellence to distinguish them greatly from those seen in the Salon year after year. Flameng's portrait of Mrs. Otto Kahn, while clever in a technical sense, is hardly to be held truthful. The word "insipid" fits it better than any other. Mary Foote of New York has painted a charming portrait of Mrs. Herman Kobbé. The simplicity of the color scheme is quite as remarkable as it is effective. Freeman Simmons presents a fine study of a woman clad in black and green. Lawton Parker and Louis Ritman have two of the best nudes in the Salón. Harry Vanderweyden has a very good fishing coast scene. Adolphe Berson gives a glimpse of Venice under a grayish light that is restful and satisfying. Mention should be made of Carroll Beckwith, Léon Bonnat, Clovis Cadez, Paul Chabas, Raphael Collin, and Arthur Cope, (whose exhibit is a fetching portrait of the young Prince of Wales,) Paul Deligny, (who undoubtedly takes the palm for still life in this Salon,) Hubert Etcheverry, Walter Griffin, (with a superb landscape badly hung,) Lester Rosenfeld, Kendall Saunders, Henri Sene, (with "Christ in Pilate's Porch," deserving much attention,) and Augustin Sewiller.

It is to be noted in connection with this Salon that a considerable number of prominent members of the Société des Artistes Francaises this year refrained from exhibiting. It would seem, indeed, that a certain degree of indolence has taken possession of the artistic world. Whether it is one of the natural symptoms of the reactionary tendency already noted will probably be determined later.

HOW SHOULD A MAN ACT TOWARD HIS STENOGRAPHER?

Craig and Willis have opposite views on the subject. Annie Welch goes Craig-ward, and Willis heads for Mary! "What Happened to Mary" is a vigorous American play. No problems, piffle, bathos or high crimes. More interesting than the keenest business deal you ever put over. Olive Wyndham plays "Mary" with less acting and more feeling than anything we've seen in a long time. You come away well satisfied. See it to-night—the sooner the better for you. Take your wife, sweetheart, daughter, sister. Give your stenographer a couple of tickets. Prices —$2 to 50c. Seats booking 4 weeks in advance. Telephone 178 Bryant. WOMEN RARELY DISHONEST.

So London Firm Finds, Commenting on Leadville Appointment.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 27.—The appointment of a woman as receiver of the United States Government's land office at Leadville, Col., and Secretary of the Interior Lane's remark that "money can be more safely handled by women than by men" have aroused considerable interest here. Heads of business firms have been interviewed, and the general verdict is that women are astonishingly honest.

Mr. Lawrie, managing Director of Whiteley's stores, said that in fourteen years' experience he had not known a single case of dishonesty among the women employes, and that could not be said of men. Women, he added, were quite loyal, but they perhaps had fewer temptations than men with families.

"Between the ages of 25 and 30 women are often superb in business." he commented, "they may not be as enterprising as men at the head of a firm, but as heads of departments they are often unrivaled."

SUIT OVER CROWN JEWELS.

Dublin Castle Official Bringing Libel Action for Vindication.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, April 28.—The Daily Mail learns that the mystery of the disappearance of the Dublin crown jewels will be revived in London shortly by a libel action which one of the Dublin Castle officials, who felt under a cloud of suspicion, will bring, with the object of vindicating his personal honor.

It is stated that the suit will involve the publication of the inner history of the mystery.

LISBON POLICE CHECK RIOT.

Disperse Bloodless Manifestation for "the Radical Republic."

LISBON, April 27.—Early this morning groups of manifestants, armed with bombs and revolvers, appeared before the various barracks and cheered for "the radical republic."

The Government, however, had information that the Monarchists and certain disaffected Republicans planned a concerted movement, and had taken precautions accordingly. The manifestants were dispersed by troops and police. About 150 of them who were suspected of having organized the movement were placed under arrest. A few bombs were exploded and some shots were fired in various parts of the city, but no one was injured.

Kaiser Frederick's Surgeon Dies.

BERLIN, April 27.—The death is announced of Prof. Von Bramann, the noted surgeon who performed the operation of trachaeotomy on the Crown Prince, afterward Emperor Frederick III., in 1888.

REAL FLOWERS NOW TRIM PARIS GOWNS

Hats, Too, as Shown by the Makers of Fashions at Longchamps Races.

VEILS ARE DISCARDED

Smaller Handbags to be the Rule This Season — Tulle Cuffs for Short Sleeves.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 27.—Perfect weather conditions brought out an exceptional show of early Summer fashions at Longchamps paddock this afternoon. Though the fundamental characteristics of the new modes, as described in previous reports, remain for the time being without sensational developments, many charming novelties are shown, especially in odds and ends, that will be welcomed by the well-dressed woman.

For the first time in many years veils are being discarded. Not more than a score of women among the 3,000 present to-day wore them, and these were invariably of black, adorned with fancy patterns.

But perhaps the prettiest innovation to-day was the wearing of a single American Beauty rose with a long stem in place of the usual bouquet. The rose was not fastened to the dress but carried in the hand. Fashion experts explain that the length and grace of the American rose go far to enhance the beauty line and slimness of the wearer.

Fresh flowers, indeed, will take first place in the budget of the smart woman the coming Summer. They will be worn on the hats, also as trimming on gowns, in the latter case being made up in long strings, secured by jeweled clasps. They will be worn along the borders of coats, the hems of sleeves, around the waist, and even on the hems of folds in draped skirts. When used as trimmings small May roses will be preferred, although daisies and other field flowers are favored as being apt to last longer than the garden products. It was said today that the campaign to make flowers popular was begun in order to stamp out the craze for aigrettes. This, however, according to present indications, appears unlikely to give out just now. Hats large and small are more than ever adorned with Paradise aigrettes, generally black or colored to match the gown. Thick, tall bunches worth at least $300 each were worn to-day on otherwise perfectly plain and inexpensive straws.

As against last year's large handbags, small reticules of black satin are in fashion this season; but if the size is reduced the price is increased in more than a reverse ratio, as diamond clasps replace the old-fashioned fastening and elaborate diamond monograms hang from them. These are by no means the only expensive novelties; parasols will be found a heavy addition to the yearly expense, for not only are fancy silks, embroidered with lace, &c., de rigueur, but the handle must be made of ancient canes, such as were carried at the beginning of the nineteenth century, which are quoted at high prices by collectors and curio shops.

As for dresses, draped styles continue in favor. The only change is in the color. Yellow, in all shades from cream to saffron, is gaining daily in popularity. Tulle cuffs, in the shape of flowing ruffles attached to short sleeves, reaching from above the elbow well over the hand, are a new feature that adds daintiness to new flimsy materials.

There were fewer daring freaks today than at earlier meetings, although the unusually long splits made necessary by some extremely clinging skirts would be considered outrageous anywhere but in Paris. Carrying out the Nationalist fad of the moment, a mannikin appeared in a feminine adaptation of the zouave costume of the French Army. The skirt was of red cloth, rather narrow in the hem and widest above the knees. It was gathered in large folds at the waist by a blue sash, reaching high over a white waistcoat and secured in front by pale blue braidings and gold buttons. The waistcoat opened over a white chiffon shirt. The costume was completed by a short, pale-blue coat, worn open, with a large Napoleonic collar edged with white lace. A small round hat, trimmed with white, red, and blue field flowers, crowned the whole.

Mrs. Frank J. Gould's string of very large and beautiful pearls, reaching far below the waist, attracted general admiration. She was dressed quite simply in a dark blue tailormade. Owing to the fact that the American rush has not begun yet, fewer Americans were present than for many years at the same event.

GERMANY FAVORS SUBWAYS.

Berliner Tageblatt Takes Issue with Statements of Werner-Hegemann.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 27.—The Berliner Tageblatt reproduces THE NEW YORK TIMES's interview with Dr. Werner-Hegemann, the organizer of the German city planning exhibition, and takes issue with his statement that the leading transportation authorities in Germany are opponents of underground railways.

The Tageblatt says that the exact contrary is the case, only a limited percentage of the traffic authorities not approving the underground system. It points out the fact that the Berlin underground railways have been able to get along with comparatively low fares, which will become still cheaper when their development is complete. Elevated roads are regarded as excrescences in Germany, and are tolerated only in outlying districts, where their offensiveness is less marked.

BRYCE IS PRAISED AS PEACEMAKER

London Press Gives Him Chief Credit for Anglo-American Friendship.

HOME RULE HAS HELPED

It Removed One Great Cause of Ill Feeling—"Serious Disagreement Almost Unthinkable."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, April 28.—The newspapers take the occasion of the departure of the peace delegates and Ambassador Bryce's farewell to publish editorials on Anglo-American relations.

The Daily News says that the perfect sympathy and good-will existing between the British and American peoples is a matter of supreme consequence not only to the nations directly concerned but to the world at large. "In casting the horoscope of the future," it says, "it is upon that friendship more than any other that we are entitled to cultivate a cheerful and confident outlook. Mr. Bryce has brought the English and American peoples together with an intimacy and cordiality that have made serious disagreement almost unthinkable, and has paved the way for an enduring friendship which we believe nothing will disturb.

The Daily News adds that home rule for Ireland will obliterate one of the grave sources of bitterness toward England existing in a large section of the American people. It continues: "Whenever there have been strained relations between Britain and America, as in the case of the Venezuelan episode, the danger in the United States has come from the large Irish population, whose resentment against this country has been the fruit of Irish misgovernment."

The Daily Telegraph, in an editorial discussing the gradual removal of causes of bitterness between the United States and Great Britain, pays a tribute to Mr. Bryce, asserting that the climax of good relations was reached during and very largely as the result of his memorable Ambassadorship. It concludes: "When the American-Canadian-British committee has determined upon the methods by which the English-speaking peoples shall celebrate a century of unbroken peace, the preparations will be complete for the sealing of an international friendship more rich in promise for civilization than any that diplomacy has hitherto achieved."

The Standard says: "We have had our differences, and shall no doubt continue to have them at intervals, but Mr. Choate's confident belief that America would never tolerate any action which would break the bond with Britain would always arouse a corresponding sentiment on this side.

"In the mission of the British delegation which left on Saturday may be even better opportunities than those afforded by the termination of his diplomatic career for uniting in the joint demonstration of the truth propounded to the Pilgrims by Mr. Bryce that, 'No two peoples in the world are so called upon—one might say appointed—by Providence to be friends.'"

SIGNAL BELLS ON STEAMERS

North German Lloyd Will Equip Its Ships with Safety Devices.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 27.—As the result of successful trials of submarine signaling from its steamships, the North German Lloyd Company has decided to equip the Kronprinzessen Cecilie, the Kaiser Wilhelm II., the Kronprinz Wilhelm, the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, the George Washington, the Berlin, the Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm, and the Columbus, now building at Danzig, with submarine bells of a type similar to those fitted on lightships.

The advantage of these bells is that steamships, thus equipped, not only receive signals from the regular warning stations, but are themselves able to send out sound signals, so that in the event of a vessel being in distress or in a fog its position could be located and the vessel found by any other ship fitted with the submarine receiving apparatus.

ZONE SOLDIERS DROWNED.

Bodies of Lieutenant and Private Found in the Chagres River.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, April 27.—Charles E. Conroy, Lieutenant of Company E, Tenth Infantry, and Private Edward Callaghan went on Thursday for an outing in the jungle.

Searchers this morning found the bodies of both in the Chagres River. It is believed that they fell from a canoe. Lieut. Conroy was from Ohio.

UNIQUE HONOR TO A WOMAN.

Miss Harper Receives a Diploma in Tropical Medicine.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 27.—Miss Frances Margaret Harper, the first woman to gain such distinction, has received a diploma in tropical medicine and hygiene.

This is granted jointly by the Royal Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons.

REYES ON A PEACE MISSION.

Colombia's ex-President in Buenos Aires on South American Tour.

BUENOS AIRES, April 27.—Gen. Rafael Reyes, ex-President of Colombia, arrived here to-day and was welcomed by many friends.

Gen Reyes is making a tour of South America for the purpose of promoting a closer union among the Republics and with the United States.

TRY TO DUCK MILITANTS.

Hyde Park Crowds Silence Suffragettes—Mrs. Pankhurst's Leave Up.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 27.—Suffragettes were again responsible for violent scenes in Hyde Park this afternoon. Three male suffragists and several women attempted to hold a meeting, using a wagonette as a platform. They were surrounded by a jeering mob which, despite the presence of many policemen, was soon out of control. The crowd took possesion of the wagonette and drew it toward the Serpentine, with the object of throwing the occupants into the water. The police succeeded with great difficulty in capturing the vehicle, in which they conveyed the women out of the park. They put them into a taxicab, which the crowd besieged, showering missiles upon the occupants.

By the terms of the license under which she was released, Mrs. Pankhurst is due to return to prison by 4 P. M. to-morrow. It is understood that the Home Secretary will receive a medical report regarding her condition in the morning, and will decide whether her license shall be extended. In any event, it is not expected that she will return willingly. It is said by frinds to-night that she is still confined to her bed.

LONDON, April 27.—The Perthshire cricket pavilion at Perth, together with a collection of valuable photographs, records, and relics, was destroyed by fire to-day. Suffragettes are suspected, although nothing of an incriminating nature has been found.

SCOTT FUND $278,800.

Custodian Receives Many Grotesque Suggestions as to Its Disbursal.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 27.—It is officially announced that the Scott fund amounts to £55,760 ($278,800.) A definite announcement of the Government's proposals regarding the administration of the fund is expected shortly.

Hundreds of suggestions as to the application of the fund have been received by the Lord Mayor, some useful, others grotesque. Among the former may be mentioned the endowment of orphanages for sailors, provision for further antarctic research, the erection of a church at Devonport, Capt. Scott's birthplace; a cottage home for non-commissioned officers as a memorial to Oates, and the purchase of the Terra Nova.

Included in the grotesque category are suggestions for an Eiffel Tower on Parliament Hill, helping the victims of the Charing Cross Bank, which was recently smashed, financing an aerial fleet, establishing a sanctuary for outcasts, housing old-age pensioners, and the restoration of St. Paul's Cathedral.

MEXICAN REBELS GET TOWN.

Capture Vanegas in San Luis Potosi and Cut Railway.

MEXICO CITY, April 27.—Further evidence of the aggressiveness of the Northern rebels was given to-day when several hundred of them, well armed and mounted, captured the town of Vanegas on the National Railway in the State of San Luis Potosi. They cut the railway to the north and then moved to Matehuala, a mining and smelting centre.

Dozens of engagements have occurred in the last week in various parts of the republic. Most of these have been victories for the Federals, according to reports here, but in no case have the rebels lost heavily. The greatest rebel losses were at Reata, where their casualties are said to have numbered 150.

The rebels continue to cover new territory and cripple transportation facilities. More than 2,500 miles of the National Railways system is out of commission. To that is added a long stretch of the Southern Pacific south of Guaymas and other short independent lines.

The inability up to date of the Government to float a loan is a serious handicap, but notwithstanding that President Huerta is forcing the campaign. The recent announcement that the pay in the army would be a peso and a half a day has been followed by fresh efforts to augment the ranks. Recruits, for the most part by conscription, are being obtained here at the rate of 100 a day. The Government believes it will be able to hold Guaymas.

Mexico City papers are printing stories of dissensions among the Sonora rebels, and assuring their readers that the movement in the north is disintegrating as a result. The Government assurances that there are no rebels in the State of Sinaloa are not supported by private advices, which are that even the capital of the State, Culiacan, is threatened.

In the south Zapata and his allies are waging a terrible campaign of destruction. The Government threatens to proceed without mercy against those rebels. It is said that it intends to deport men, women, and children to the jungles of Quintana Roo when captured, and will attempt to drive the others to the southern boundary of that territory, which is described popularly as Mexico's Siberia.

As the telegraph lines over an enormous area are in the control of the rebels, accurate news is scarce. There have been no mails from abroad in three weeks. Tension in the capital, caused by the withdrawal of Gen. Felix Diaz as candidate for the Presidency, as a result of the refusal of Congress to call the elections on July 27, practically has disappeared since President Huerta and his Cabinet have agreed to make a new effort for holding the elections.

EL PASO, Texas, April 27.—All Federal forces in Chihuahua State are being mobilized in Chihuahua City, the State capital, passengers arriving here to-day report. Santa Rosa Mountain, commanding the city, has been fortified and topped with a battery of heavy artillery. With only 500 troops in the capital, Gen. Antonio Rabago, Military Governor, has ordered the Parral garrison to move in. That would abandon Parral, centre of an American mining and smelting district, to the Constitutionalistas, who appear to be growing stronger daily. The insurgents are estimated to number more than 4,000. They have operated mostly south of Chihuahua City.

The Parral garrison, said to number almost 2,000, will be compelled to fight its way to the capital, as the Constitutionalistas continue to hold Santa Rosalia, between Chihuahua City and Jiminez. Col. Manuel Pueblita, who commanded the Santa Rosalia garrison, is reported killed by the insurgents, who were led by Rosalia Hernandez. The Federal guard has been removed from the Ortiz railroad bridge, destruction of which would cripple the Mexican Central Railway.

Gen. Jose Inez Salazar and his ex-rebels are expected to arrive to-morrow in Juarez, on their way to the State capital. That would leave practically no garrison in the Casas Grandes district, threatened by a movement of Francisco Villa's insurgents from the south. Villa's men, after sacking the town of Tamosochic, are reported to have moved toward Madera, an American lumbering town south of Casas Grandes.

CHINA LOAN SIGNED, REBELLION FEARED

Agreement Concluded at Daybreak in Spite of Parliament's Protests.

$125,000,000 IS INVOLVED

Dominant Political Party Opposes Yuan Shih Kai's Compact with Five-Power Group.

PEKING, April 27.—China's day of prayer did not prove entirely peaceful, because of dissension over the five-power loan. The loan, which is for $125,000,000, was signed just before daybreak, the Chinese and foreign signatories having assembled late last evening to conclude the details.

A delegation from the Senate and House of Representatives gathered outside the British Bank, where the representatives of the Government and the five-power group met. The Vice President of the Senate acted as spokesman for the delegation, and, when an opportunity was given to him to confer with the signatories, he explained that the majority in the Parliament considered the loan illegal.

Since the days of the monarchy the question of a loan has been discussed in various forms, and it threatens now to bring about another revolution similar to that caused by the Hu-Kuang loan.

The situation is about as follows: The five-power bankers and the Chinese Government have arranged the loan practically for Yuan Shih Kai's Cabinet, which Yuan Shih Kai completely dominates. The Cabinet contends that the Government has a right to conclude such a contract because the permanent Assembly has not yet been constituted, and therefore approval of the six-power loan by the Provisional Assembly holds good. In addition to the withdrawal of the United States from the combination, however, other alterations have been made in the contract since the Assembly approved it.

The Kwo Ming Tang Party, which is the dominating political party, would remove Yuan Shi Kai by parliamentary means or by force, but neither is possible while the President controls the army at Peking. The adherents of the Kwo Ming Tang Party do not desire to withdraw to Nanking for the purpose of establishing a Parliament there, because such action would result in disruption of the North from the South.

The deadlock is at present complete. Members of the Kwo Ming Tang express the fear that some of the powers represented in the loan—Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia, and Japan—now that the loan is concluded with Yuan Shih Kai may strengthen his hands by recognizing the republic at an early date. In this connection an interesting question arises as to whether the United States will anticipate these powers, in spite of the fact that the Chinese House of Representatives has again failed to elect a Speaker.

It is probable that the Southern party will seek to cancel the loan as a test of their strength against Yuan Shih Kai.

SUN YAT SEN'S WARNING.

He Tells Shanghai Consuls the Loan Will Split the Empire.

LONDON, Monday, April 28.—The Times's Peking correspondent says that the Kwo Ming Tang political party protested against the conclusion of the five-power loan of $125,000,000 without Parliamentary sanction, and Sun Yat Sen warned the Consuls at Shanghai that its completion would provoke a breach between the North and South.

As ground for believing that certain military measures have been taken by the revolutionaries, the threat is not without significance.

FLIES OVER PANAMA CANAL.

Fowler Makes Trip from Pacific to Atlantic in 55 Minutes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, April 27.—Robert G. Fowler, the aviator, successfully flew from the Pacific over the canal this morning in a hydroaeroplane with a passenger, landing at the Atlantic side, in fifty-five minutes. A picture was taken of the operator and machine in motion.

The flight has frequently been termed impossible, on account of the air currents over Culebra. Fowler flew directly over the cut, and was able to carry out various evolutions despite wind obstacles.

Leaving Panama Beach at 9:45 A. M., he circled over Panama City and the canal's entrance for a while, then rose high and steered toward Colon, where he encountered a twenty-five-mile breeze. In continuing to Cristobal the motor suddenly stopped, after missing fire, through the gasoline giving out.

Fowler succeeded in landing with ease on a reef. The pontoon was torn, but otherwise his machine was undamaged.

The Britannic's Big Tonnage.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 27.—It is learned that the White Star Line's new boat, the Brittanic, now building at Belfast, will be 887 feet 9 inches in length, 94½ feet in breadth, and between 50,000 and 60,000 gross tonnage. The builders hope to launch her in November.

PIGTAILED CARGO SEIZED.

Three Chinamen Crossed from Canada in Side-Door Pullman.

MOUNT MORRIS, N. Y., April 27.—Another supposed plot to smuggle Chinamen across the Canadian border was discovered here this morning, when three Chinamen were taken from a box car on the Lackawanna Railroad. As the train in which they were riding stopped at East Betheny, just east of this town, the conductor's attention was attracted by pounding on the door of a car. When he answered the call a man in broken English pleaded with him to be released, and offered him $10 if he would open the door.

The conductor refused and telegraphed to the Chief of Police here, who met the train when it arrived. The seals on the car were broken. Three half-starved Chinamen were found huddled together behind a dry goods box. All three were locked up and charged with illegal train-riding. In the car were three empty water bottles, but there was no sign of food.

Jim Harley, a laundryman, talked with the men, but said he was unable to gain information. The car was sealed in Canada and billed to New York City. Marks on the clothing of one of the men showed that it was bought in Rudolph, Canada. All were well supplied with money.

The Chief of Detectives in Buffalo and the Chinese interpreter in Niagara Falls arrived this afternoon to investigate the case.

Woolworth Building

BY actual count over 150,000 persons daily pass the retail stores in the Woolworth Building, offering a purchasing power that is unequalled in any part of the city.

In addition there is the permanent custom of 7,000 to 10,000 tenants of the Woolworth Building.

Customers will never overlook your store if it is in the Woolworth Building—they cannot "lose your address" or "forget about you." The sight and thought of the world's greatest structure will remind them of you and your store.

PRAYERS FOR CHINA IN CITY'S CHURCHES

Special Services Held in Answer to the Appeal From Peking Government.

PLAN MORE MISSION WORK

China's Request Helps Christianity, Says Dr. Merrill—Small Interest, However, in Chinatown.

The appeal of the Government at Peking that Christians should unite on April 27 in asking divine aid for the solution of the problems before the Chinese Republic was generally heeded yesterday throughout the country. In this city there was a special service in most of the churches.

In the formal request China asked prayers for the new President of China, whoever might be chosen; for the selection of good men to the new Congress, and for the success of the new Chinese constitution. The Presbyterians took advantage of the interest centred in China to start a campaign to send 100 missionaries to China within the next few years, with $750,000 to equip and support them.

In all the Episcopal churches in New York the following prayer, prepared by Bishop Greer, was read:

> Oh, God, who hast made of one blood all nations of men to dwell on the face of the whole earth, let Thy blessing rest, we pray Thee, upon the ancient people of China, and especially upon those who at this time are intrusted there with the authority of governance, and who are asking in their behalf the intercessions of Thy Church. Guide them with Thy wisdom; uphold them with Thy strength, that in Thy light they may see light, and in Thy straight path may not stumble, but may perceive and know what things they ought to do, and may also have grace and power to fulfill the same faithfully. In all their dangers and necessities stretch forth Thy right hand to help and defend them; and so direct, sanctify, and govern them in their work that peace and happiness, truth and justice may be established among them for all generations.

At the Brick Church.

A large congregation attended the special service of prayer for China in the Presbyterian Brick Church, in Fifth Avenue. The Rev. Dr. William Pierson Merrill, pastor of the church, in a short sermon, said that doubts as to the value of prayer and the realities of the spiritual life were swept away when a nation like China asked for the prayers of the Christian Church. He called attention to the fact that it was the first time in hisory that a non-Christian nation had ever asked spiritual assistance from Christians. The request, he said, would give Christians themselves a new confidence and greater faith in God.

The following prayer was read in all the Presbyterian churches of the city:

> O God, who hast made of one blood all nations, and who callest the people ever into freedom, we remember before Thee our brethren in the land of China, that it would please Thee to visit them with Thy salvation, and to grant unto them grace and strength for their help in this hour of their need. Establish them in righteousness. Preserve them from violence, dissension, and all works of iniquity. Cause Thy light to shine upon them, and sanctify them in Thy truth. May Thy spirit attend the people as they choose the men who shall be their leaders. Richly endue with Thy wisdom the President of the Republic, and all who administer its affairs. Lead this great people forth into years of peace and plenty. As they have been steadfast and unchanging through the centuries of the past, establish them for the future in Him who is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever, that among them the everlasting Kingdom of God may come, and everywhere Thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven.

Little Interest in Chinatown.

Little interest, however, was manifested in Chinatown. Chinese shopkeepers along Mott Street were busy serving their customers. The majority of them seemed to be unaware that the day was one of unusual importance to their country. At the headquarters of the Chinese National Association there were a number of young men in European dress, but they held no services and gave no signs of appreciating the religious character of the day.

There were, however, a few Chinese who met in the mission houses and prayed for their country. One of these gatherings was at 43 Mott Street, where about fifty Chinese joined in singing missionary hymns and praying. The Chinese Christian Union held a meeting in the evening, with Lieng Lian Fang, the Chinese evangelist, presiding. The Rev. P. Hingkey, who spent fifteen years as a missionary in China, preached. Many Chinese attended the special service in the First Chinese Presbyterian Church, at 223 East Thirty-first Street, which was conducted by the Rev. Huie Kin.

ENGLAND PRAYS FOR CHINA.

Request Observed at Westminster Abbey and Throughout the Kingdom

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES

LONDON, April 27.—Christians of every denomination joined to-day in a whole-hearted response to the Chinese Government's request that prayers should be offered on China's behalf at this critical stage of the nation's history.

Prayers were offered in cathedrals, churches, and chapels throughout the kingdom. The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel circulated over 10,000 copies of the request.

At Westminster Abbey Archdeacon Wilberforce appealed to a great congregation for prayers for the vast multitudes of China. At Canterbury Cathedral the Vice Dean said that, thought it could not be directly inferred from the Government's action that the Chinese religious sentiment had turned to Christianity, such action did indicate a very marked change of attitude and policy respecting it.

Special references to prayer for China were also made in sermons by Canon Newbolt at St. Paul's Cathedral and the Rev. Dr. Campbell Morgan at Westminster Chapel.

TO WED IDA VON CLAUSSEN.

L. Fred Davis Engaged to New York Woman.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 27.—The engagement is announced of L. Fred Davis, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Davis of Potter's Bar, and Countess Ida von Claussen of New York.

Mrs. von Claussen, as she is known here, gained a great deal of notoriety in 1910, when she brought suit against Theodore Roosevelt and others, asking $1,000,000 damages for alleged injury done her by the American Legation at Stockholm in refusing the credentials which would have made it possible for her to pay a call on the King of Sweden. The papers she filed in this suit began with a demand that the Supreme Court "procure me an honest lawyer to plead for justice for me."

Mrs. von Claussen further set forth in the suit that she had been invited to visit the court of Sweden in order that a royal marriage might be arranged for her, and consequently she claimed large damages from all concerned in frustrating her matrimonial plans.

In her effort to obtain reparation for the alleged affront at Stockholm, Mrs. von Claussen went to Europe and attempted to engage famous lawyers in France and Germany. She returned without success and sought to take the law into her own hands. She went to the convention at Saratoga in 1910, declaring that she meant to give Col. Roosevelt a thrashing with her own hands.

In October, 1911, Mrs. von Claussen was committed to the Bloomingdale State Hospital for the Insane by Supreme Court Justice McCall on affidavits from doctors in the Bellevue Hospital declaring that she was suffering from paranoia. The doctors found that she had the exaggerated ego and was threatening in her demeanor. She told them, they said, that she had occult power, that she had talked with the dead and that the German Emperor would send a gunboat up the East River to Bellevue Hospital for her protection.

Six weeks after she was committed to Bloomingdale Mrs. von Claussen suffered a broken leg in attempting to lower herself to the ground from her room by means of a rope attached to the electric light fixture in her room. She was released from the hospital on Jan. 15, 1912, by an order of Supreme Court Justice Morschauser, with the condition that her mental condition should be reported to the court at frequent intervals.

Saks on Keeping Young

¶ The youngest "old" woman in the world today is more talked of and written about than a monarch.

¶ We are so accustomed to wrinkles from forty on that when a woman can preserve the bloom of youth well into the sixties she is the object of universal admiration.

¶ Youth is everything, and to take it with you and flaunt it in the face of threescore years is to have lived successfully.

¶ Much, of course, depends on clothes—on youthful clothes—on clothes that are young in their lines and their looks—on clothes that have a gay and errant style, like Saks clothes.

¶ These Saks models this spring are typically youthful, made on straight, lean lines, the coats narrower and shorter, the trousers much trimmer.

¶ In our work as tailors we are working toward that distant day when obituaries shall read like this:

¶ He passed away in the springtime of youth at the tender age of 126 years.

STERLING

THE GORHAM CO.

Silversmiths

When I first went through the Gorham Store I asked the manager what class of his goods had the biggest sale.

He unhesitatingly replied: "Knives, forks and spoons." Everybody must have knives, forks and spoons. You may get along without silver serving trays and silver dishes and the like, but knives and forks you must have.

Later on I found out just what The Gorham Co. stands for in this wonderful industry of knife, fork and spoon making and selling. It is the premier of the industry.

When Jabez Gorham went on his trips from Providence to Boston selling jewelry ninety-seven years ago, his customers kept asking him to bring them spoons, knives and forks. He finally did. That was the founding of Gorham's as silversmiths. You can find some of those first spoons in use yet.

Knife and fork making is a very old art. These were the first things man began to make for himself when he ceased to be savage and became civilized. It is a far cry from those first crude implements to their Gorham counterparts of to-day.

The knife, fork and spoon are the basis of family silver. They are the beginning.

It will be a revelation, as well as an education, to you to see the wealth of beauty, quality and variety Gorham's has achieved in knife, fork and spoon making. Why not go and see it all for yourself?

You will find a range of patterns and designs to delight any taste—over thirty in all. Just to mention a few:

There is the "Chantilly," a wonderfully popular design, perhaps the most-fancied specimen of the Louis XV. period.

Then there are the "Baronial," "Mythologique" and "Old French," offering a wide variety of pattern and prices.

Or if you prefer the Colonial Period, there are the "Plymouth" and the "Old Dominion," the first corresponding with Gorham's popular dinnerware of that name, the last the latest development of the always popular bead pattern. It also matches dinnerware.

Both were designed by the head of the great Gorham designing staff, who for twenty years was the associate of the famous Alma Tadema.

Here is an idea of the range of prices of the principal pieces:

SAYS SULZER FIGHTS IN UNFAIR WAYS

Intimidation and Threats Are His Primary Weapons, According to Blauvelt.

COMPARES BILL WITH HIS

Speaker Smith Can Find No Demand for Sulzer Measure—McCooey Frankly Opposes.

ALBANY, April 27.—Senator George A. Blauvelt of Rockland, commenting on Gov. Sulzer's speech to the Democratic County Chairmen at the Executive Chamber yesterday in favor of the passage of the Governor's State-wide direct nominations bill, in a formal statement to-night said:

"I insist the Governor's threat to drive men out of the party if they refuse to support his bill is radically unjust and unfair and will be resented by every man who defends the right to exercise his honest judgment—a judgment uninfluenced by partisan selfishness, a judgment wholly as honest as any the Governor could form on this or any other proposition.

"It doesn't necessarily follow that a man must be right because he is Governor. He has no more right to threaten members of the Legislature if they do not support his bill than we have to threaten him if he does not approve every legislative proposition we send to him."

Senator Blauvelt characterizes Gov. Sulzer's speech to the County Chairmen as a declaration of purpose "to compel the passage of his primary bill by intimidation and threat without regard to contra thought honestly held by intelligent and sincere Democrats throughout the State."

"No matter how honest a Democratic official may be in his opinion on primary legislation," continues Senator Blauvelt, "the Governor has threatened to drive him out of public office in case he disagrees with the Governor on the pending measure.

"It must be conceded by all fair-minded persons that there is honest difference of opinion on the subject. For instance, the term 'State-wide' was coined by the Democratic State Convention of 1910 to express the universality of the primary legislation proposed by Gov. Hughes in contrast to the amendments of Senator Grady, which excepted New York City from its operation. That convention had in mind uniformity in application only throughout the State. Can any Democrat be criticised if he holds to that opinion at this time?"

Senator Blauvelt says there is an honest difference of opinion concerning several provisions of the Governor's bill, including the one for the abolition of State Conventions. He contends that the Sulzer plan would give New Yorfk City an advantage over the up-State districts in nominating candidates for State offices. He also questions the wisdom of increasing the membership of the State Committee from 51 to 150, and opposes the designation of party candidates by petitions, the grouping of candidates, the elimination of party circles and emblems, the selection of delegates to National Conventions by Congressional districts, and the creation of a party council to prepare party platforms.

"With very few exceptions," says Senator Blauvelt, "the amendments embodied in the Blauvelt bill are incorporated in the Governor's bill. The only important and salient new features are the abolition of State Conventions, the omission of party emblems and party circles from the primary ballots. To the former the objections of the rural districts are strong, cogent and well-founded that the convention should be retained, and to the latter the unconstitutionality of the Governor's proposal County Chairmen," says Chester C. flying in the face of a Court of Appeals decision."

Senator Blauvelt introduced the primary and election reform bill which was vetoed by the Governor on Thursday on the ground that it was "a fraud," and at best "a miserable makeshift."

"The Governor's speech before the county Chairmen," says Chester C. Platt, secretary to Gov. Sulzer, in a statement to-night, "has been criticised because he said 'if any Democrat in this State is against the Democratic State platform, that man is no Democrat; and as the Democratic Governor of this State I shall do everything in my power to drive that recreant Democrat out of the party.' These are strong words, but conditions require them."

There was a good deal of discussion among Tammany men yesterday of Gov. Sulzer's speech threatening those Democrats who opposed his primary bill, but none sought publicity for his views.

Alfred E. Smith, Speaker of the Assembly, said that he did not know that there was any fight over the bill.

"There was no difficulty in introducing the bill under a suspension of the rules in the Assembly," he said, "but the fate of the measure will depend on whether or not the various members find that there is any demand for it in their respective districts. In my district I have not been able to discover any sentiment in favor of slch a measure. As a matter of fact, and in all justice, I do not believe that the present primary bill has had a fair trial."

"How do you regard Gov. Sulzer's statement that the party platform pledged to the people a State-wide direct primary law, and that the Blauvelt bill which he vetoed was a sham and an evasion?" Mr. Smith was asked.

"It depends upon what you call a 'State-wide primary'," said Mr. Smith. "The platform said nothing about the abolition of the State Convention system. I take it that a State-wide law is simply one which will apply to all parts of the State alike."

It was reported that Charles F. Murphy was holding a Sunday conference with various party leaders at the Oakland Golf Club at Bayside, L. I. At the clubhouse yesterday afternoon it was learned that the Tammany chief had not been there, and that no visitors of political importance had called for him.

Senator O'Gorman, after attending to some private business affairs, left for Washington at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. His friends said that he had not taken part in any political conference while he was in the city.

John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Kings County, did not seem to be alarmed over Gov. Sulzer's threat. He admitted that he was opposed to the Governor's plan. Mr. McCooey took occasion to explode the theory that the New York State Legislature is run by political bosses.

"This talk that the Legislature is ruled by the 'bosses,'" said Mr. McCooey, "is all buncombe. It is no more controlled by the bosses than is the Executive of this State.

"The up-State Democrats are avowedly against Mr. Sulzer's plan, and we have no wish to displease them. It would be possible, under the Governor's plan, for New York City and Buffalo, or places of large population, so to combine as to control the State. The up-State Republicans, controlling the vote above New York City, would find it possible to put us out of business down here. Naturally, we would avoid this. What the Governor had in mind in sending for the county chairmen I do not know. It seems to me that he should have delivered his message to the State Committee. I notice, also, that many of the men who were invited from here and other places to hear the Governor are among those who are on the outside trying to get in."

Mr. McCooey said he did not think it likely that there would be a split in the Democracy of Kings over the primary fight. So far as he knew, there had not been much discussion of the matter.

Ramapo Canoe Cruise Started.

The first leg of the American Canoe Association's Ramapo cruise was completed yesterday when thirteen canoes, each carrying two men reached Piermont on the Hudson. The start was made from Hermit's Point (Canoe Beach) just across the river from Spuyten Duyvil, at 11 o'clock. Clear weather and favorable wind made the journey from there uneventful. A stop was made at Yonkers for luncheon.

The Ramapo Cruise is a trip held by the A. C. A. for its members each season. The participants paddle up to Piermont, thence by rail to Suffern, where they leave their canoes until the following Sunday, they then proceed down the Ramapo River shooting rifts and dams en route. Last year all the canoes shot them successfully.

SOCIALISTS' MAY DAY.

2,000 Attend Sunday School Festival at Carnegie Hall.

Children of many nationalities in distinctive costumes and contributing choruses sung in their mother tongue were among the more than 2,000 persons who participated yesterday afternoon in the Socialist festival for their Sunday school children in New York. Carnegie Hall was crowded with parents and their generous families.

The significance of the occasion was described by Prof. Kendrick P. Shedd of Rochester University, who was the pioneer in opening the Socialist schools in this city. He said the Socialist Party had awakened to the need of educating the children to its cause, and this was being done in a liberal way. Sunday schools have been organized in the various sections of the city, and are being conducted with unqualified success. Attendance at these schools is estimated at more than 4,000 every Sunday.

Carnegie Hall was decorated with the red banners of the party and with the standards of the various organizations. Algernon Lee, the Chairman, called the occasion a May Day festival and said the day was coming to be recognized by Socialists as an important one in their calendar. It called to mind not only the promise of the season, but the struggles to be encountered in the fight against class usurpation of power over the masses. The children, he said, must know from their earliest years the necessity for equipping themselves for battle for the masses.

First on the musical programme was a song written for the occasion and sung to the tune, "Maryland, My Maryland," by 400 children. Pupils of the German Free Schools then sang an anthem in their native tongue. The feature of the programme was a playet, "Flags of All Nations," in which children of six different nationalities took part. They wore their native costumes, tread the measures of their native dances, and sang songs in their mother tongue. Arcadie Burnstine of the New York Symphony Orchestra played two violin solos.

Ran Into Pole to Avoid Hitting Boy.

To avoid running over a boy, who had fallen from his bicycle, ex-Congressman Frederic Storm of Bayside, L. I., yesterday afternoon strre the automobile in which he and his wife were riding to church into a telegraph pole at Broadway and Murray Streets, Flushing. Mrs. Storm, who was riding in the tonneau, escaped injury, but Mr. Storm was thrown against the windshield and painfully bruised.

FRIEDMANN TO OPEN FIRST BRANCH HERE

Institute of New Company to be Started in a Few Days Under Doctor's Assistant.

FREE TREATMENT FOR POOR

Contrary Report Not True, Friedmann Says—Federal Agent Returns to Report.

Dr. Arthur M. Stimson of the Public Health Service of the Federal Government left late last night for Washington to report to Surgeon General Rupert Blue on the sale of the American rights by Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann of his turtle vaccine for consumption.

Dr. Stimson refused to discuss yesterday his visit to Washington. He has been the representative here for the Government in the tests of the Friedmann preparation, and these have not yet been completed. The Health Service of the Government, it is understood, will continue to take an interest in the tests, and it is not believed that the sale will prevent the Government from checking up the cases treated.

Dr. Friedmann gave a second treatment yesterday to five patients whom he had treated at the Mount Sinai Hospital six weeks ago. They are suffering from various tubercular affections of the joints. He did not treat any pulmonary cases. He said yesterday that the pulmonary patients were not yet ready for a second treatment.

When Dr. Friedmann arrived at the Hotel Ansonia from the hospital, he was accompanied by Morris Eisner of the firm of Eisner-Mendelsohn Company, the purchasers of the American rights to his preparation. He was smiling, and appeared happy. He spent the day with Mr. Eisner going over the plans for treating the patients in the institutes to be established by the company in the various States.

Dr. Friedmann refused yesterday to discuss the sale of his treatment. Morris Eisner also refused to comment on the purchase. Mr. Eisner said that he would have a statement ready for the public to-day in which further details of the plans of his company would be given to the public.

The associates of Dr. Friedmann said yesterday that an effort would be made to establish Friedmann institutes in as many of the States of the Union as possible, and that liberal provisions would be made for giving free treatments to the poor.

Dr. Friedmann was greatly disturbed by the publication of a statement in several of the newspapers that he had vetoed a plan to give free treatment to the poor. He said that he had always stood for a system which would enable the poor to receive treatment, and that the poor would receive ample care under the provisions of the sale of his cure.

The first Friedmann institute will be established in this city, it was announced yesterday, within a few days. It will be opened, it was said, in a building which has already been obtained. Dr. M. A. Sturm, an associate of Dr. Friedmann, said yesterday that he would be in charge of the institute. The full details for the establishment of the various institutes have not yet been arranged, but it was said by Dr. Friedmann's associates that the institute in this city would probably be made the headquarters.

Dr. Friedmann's associates said yesterday that the company which had purchased the cure would allow Dr. Friedmann to make his own plans for the treatment of patients.

Applications made in Newark to have Dr. Friedmann come into New Jersey to treat patients, have met the reply that there is a statute that prevents the physician from demonstrating his treatment in that State. The first application came from Mayor Frederick W. Donnelly of Trenton, the other from Dr. Klichner of the Cape May Tuberculosis Sanitarium. They were made to Dr. Horace G. Norton, secretary of the State Board of Medical Examiners. Dr. Norton informed both physicians that it was contrary to the State laws for any one to practice medicine without a license, or unless he held a license granted by some commonwealth with which the State could reciprocate in such matters under the law.

Claims Friedmann Rights.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 27.—Albert Von Hoffmann, a St. Louis capitalist, will depart with his attorney for New York to-morrow to investigate the sale of the American rights of Dr. Friedrich F. Friedmann's tuberculosis vaccine. He says he holds a contract, signed by the Berlin physician, in which the latter agrees to turn over to him all rights for the sale of the preparation in America on payment of $1,000,000 if the preparation proved a success and was adopted after Government tests.

GALLATIN SEEKS JEWELS.

Sends Out Postcards to Pawnbrokers Describing Pieces Stolen.

Albert H. Gallatin, the banker, has had printed postcards giving the description of the jewelry that was stolen from his home, 14 East Sixty-fifth Street, on or about March 30. The police have so far been unable to recover any of the property, and Mr. Gallatin, it is said, has taken the matter into his own hands and has mailed a postcard to each of 250 pawnbrokers in the city. In the event that any of the stolen jewelry turns up, Mr. Gallatin asks that he or the Detective Bureau at Police Headquarters be notified.

Among the articles described on the postcard are a lady's gold marquise ring, containing one ruby surrounded by a fancy setting of diamonds; a pearl necklace containing three strands of seed pearls, a gold engagement ring with large pink pearl in the centre, surrounded by a dozen diamonds, the ring engraved "A. H. G. to L. B. E., 1876"; an old-fashioned locket with enamel picture on front, surrounded by garnets, and a lady's gold and dark blue enameled chain containing fifty-three links, with a gun metal watch attached.

WILSON ON JURY REFORM.

President Will Urge It in Two Talks in New Jersey This Week.

Arrangements have been completed for the visit to Newark on Thursday night of President Wilson, who will appear at a meeting in the New Auditorium to urge jury reform and the holding of a Constitutional convention. Prosecutor Hood will preside, and the only other speaker will be Assemblyman John A. Matthews.

President Wilson will make only two addresses in New Jersey, the one in Newark and another in Jersey City on Friday night.

Wilson men in Newark desired to have the President speak in the First Regiment Armory in order that as many as possible might hear him, but Secretary Tumulty insisted that the meeting be held in a small hall, so that the executive would not be subjected to exhaustive strain in attempting to make himself heard.

STOP TROLLEY TRACK LAYING

Justice Routed from Bed to Sign Grove Street, Freeport, Injunction.

Before daybreak yesterday morning an automobile containing Samuel R. Smith, President of the Bank of Long Island, and Clinton M. Flint, his attorney, both of Freeport, L. I., arrived at the home of Justice Van Sicklen in Jamaica, and its occupants, alighting, rang the Justice out of bed. They wanted an injunction, they said, restraining the Freeport Railroad Company, which is laying trolley tracks between the Long Island Railroad station and the seashore at Freeport, from laying its tracks along Grove Street. Their early visit, they explained to the Justice, was due to the fact that the company's workmen had shortly after midnight begun to lay tracks at Grove and Smith streets, in front of the Smith home, and were even then at work hammer and tongs. Mr. Smith said that he owned the property in fee simple to the centre of Grove Street.

Justice Van Sicklen issued a temporary restraining order and returned to bed. Mr. Smith and Mr. Flint rushed back in their automobile, and arriving at Smith and Grove streets at 5 o'clock in the morning served the restraining order. Thereupon the work of some fifty laborers and several teams was temporarily suspended.

A similar restraining order against the railroad company was obtained a week ago by Mr. Flint in his own name, to hold up the work at South Side Avenue and Atlantic Avenue; and this injunction is to be argued before Justice Blackmar this week. Several other residents of the town and organizations have objected to the laying of the tracks on Grove Street, but the company's franchise was approved by the Public Service Commission nevertheless. Roland M. Lamb, an official of the company, said yesterday that he would consult his attorney to-day to ascertain whether the injunction, served yesterday upon W. R. Cushing, instead of one of the principal officers of the company, need be obeyed by the company.

SMITH GRAY Announce:

A "SCHEDULE K" SALE

THE CHANCE OF THE SEASON

We urge you to order early

8,000 yards of high grade Spring weight woolens will be tailored to order into stylish sack and Norfolk suits, fully guaranteed

$50.00 Value for $26.50

This is an unprecedented event in New York at this early date in the season, but these are unprecedented times. This is a sale with a 100% Real Reason. You can thank our old friend Schedule K for the opportunity. The White House and Congress are also included. This brings us to our reason:

President Wilson and Congressman Underwood have won their fight for a reduction on wool. As a consequence the woolen market is as uncertain as a day in April. We have purchased 8,000 yards of woolens, domestic and importations. They are high grade Summer weight cloth, and we were fortunate in our buying price.

Therefore we throw wide open our spacious made-to-measure shops and will tailor to your order any style sack or Norfolk suit you select, guaranteed, for

This offer holds good for one week, beginning at store opening time this morning. You can select whatever cloth you like in our assortment. Some of the values run up as high as $50. This makes no difference, except that you had better get in early. Your personal satisfaction is guaranteed, or your money is paid back to you.

Five days from ordering you can have a try-on, and five days later the suit will be delivered. Remember, this offer includes all styles of sack suits, and also the season's popular Norfolks.

A corps of experienced tailors will take care of your commands at the nearest of our Four Stores.

Pencil Stripes With Patch Pockets

Are pre-eminently the most popular Suits displayed thus far this season—those shown in the Brill Stores, however, have far more than popularity of pattern or pockets to commend them particularly to the attention of men and young men of discriminating taste and economical tendencies.

There is, first and foremost, the up-to-the-minute, distinctly smart style which sticks right out of these graceful, soft-rolling, slim, slender-sleeved, snappily cut coats; narrow, shapely trousers and high-toned, high-cut waistcoats. There's the splendid fit, finish and fabrics, and there are the wonderfully low prices,

TIMES BEST PAPER, UNIVERSITIES VOTE

Distances Nearest Competitor Four to One in Several Institutions.

COLLEGE PAGES A FACTOR

Barnard Students Explain That They Like to Read Facts—Wholesomeness Praised.

In the universities and colleges of the country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the senior classes are holding their annual census, each student telling of habits and preferences. The taking of the census differs in minor details with each institution, but in almost all where a vote is taken the list of favorites includes actress, actor, poet, book, and newspaper, in addition to picking the class favorites.

In this year's returns no actor or actress seems to have received a decided majority, counting each college as a unit. Maude Adams, Billie Burke, Elsie Janis, and Mary Pickford apparently had the most supporters. John Drew, Otis Skinner, and E. H. Sothern led among the stage men. In the choice of favorite authors Shakespeare, Tennyson, Dickens, and Kipling stood out prominently. The Bible got most votes in Princeton as the favorite book. Yale preferred "Ivanhoe."

The returns on the favorite New York newspaper showed a practically unanimous verdict for The New York Times. In several of the colleges The Times distanced its nearest competitor by a vote of four to one. Only in a few institutions was the balloting close. The college department of The Times also came in for warm praise from the senior classes.

In Yale the vote for The Times was four times larger than for the second choice. Maude Adams was favored over Billie Burke by 83 to 34, and Sothern was the actor chosen. Dickens just defeated Kipling on the novelist ballot. Tennyson was the poet most preferred. Lincoln topped Napoleon as the greatest character in history.

Princeton also picked The Times as the winner by a large majority. The other balloting showed:

Best all-around man in class—W. G. Penfield.
Has done most for Princeton—T. T. Pendleton.
Has done most for class in athletics—T. T. Pendleton.
Most popular—T. M. McMillan.
Most developed intellectually—C. W. Hendel.
Most developed physically—W. J. Logan.

In Stevens Tech, "Bob" Lansdell, Captain of the baseball team and President of the Student Council, was voted the most popular member of the class, having twice as many votes as the next competitor. V. S. Henry of the 'Varsity football team led for best all-around athlete, with Lansdell a close second. When it came to the best looking member, C. S. Trewin was in a class by himself. On clothes, W. C. Russ showed by a majority of more than two to one.

The vote on the senior giving greatest promise of becoming a successful engineer indicated J. H. Vander Veer, President of the class. The Junior Prom seemed to be the most popular college affair, though Commencement was mentioned.

Charles O. Gunther was voted the most popular professor. Football took first place for the most popular college sport. The greatest college need was thought to be a gymnasium. Princeton was voted the most popular college after Stevens.

Rudyard Kipling appealed to the class as the favorite author. The vote on the most popular actress gave Elsie Janis preference over Maude Adams by one ballot. The decision on the most popular book also was exceedingly close, "Les Miserables" winning over the check book by one vote. The most popular play also showed a very close decision, "The Lady of the Slipper" receiving one vote more than "The Poor Little Rich Girl."

The vote on the most popular New York newspaper indicated The New honor by twice as many votes as its York Times as being worthy of that nearest competitor.

The voting in Hobart College for the most popular man resulted in a tie, Oliver J. Hart of Yorkville, S. C., and M. J. Barker, Jr., of Chicago dividing the honor. The same men also tied for best all-around man. Hart was elected the handsomest man and the most respected man. Economics was voted the most popular course, with history and Shakespeare second, while J. A. Silver, head of the history department, was voted the most popular professor.

Thomas M. Johnson, Jr., of Buffalo was voted the most likely to succeed, and tied with Barker for the man who had done the most for Hobart. H. B. McCain of Maplewood, N. J., was elected the best "fusser."

Thackeray and Dickens were the favorite novelists, and "Pendennis" was the favorite novel. On the question of the highest honor a Hobart man could receive, there was diversity of opinion, Senior President, Phi Beta Kappa and Football Captain receiving many votes. The decision, however, was given to Druid, the Senior society, by a comfortable margin.

On the favorite newspaper, the verdict went to The Times. Before voting on that question, it was decided that The Times's college pages should be taken into consideration.

There was no general census in Barnard, but a poll on the favorite newspaper taken by the Seniors gave The Times 79 votes out of 105. The reasons for preference also were indicated when the ballot was cast.

"When I pick up a paper," wrote one girl, "I like to feel I am reading the truth, that I'm getting all the news, that it is not exaggerated, that it is fair and unbiased, that the news is concise, that the editorials are good, and I find all this in The Times and in no other paper. That's why I read The Times."

"The Times sticks to its motto, 'All the News That's Fit to Print,'" said another, "and it presents this news in the best way possible to print. If ten persons are killed in a wreck The Times says that ten are killed. It doesn't feel it has to say 100 were killed to make its readers believe that really ten did meet death."

The Times was the unanimous choice of the senior class of St. Peter's College, Jersey City. The points on which the vote was decided included news service, ethical tone, editorial and literary quality, sports, college information, and general excellence.

The university congress of George Washington University could not reach a decision on the best New York newspaper. The final ballot was a tie, The Times being one of the two papers most favored. The best paper for college news was The Times, the congress decided.

STABBED IN PUBLIC BATH.

Fight Causes Patrons to Flee from Building.

Henry McNulty, 18 years old, a clerk, of 766 Grand Street, Williamsburg, while in a public bath at Montrose Avenue and Scholes Street yesterday morning, attacked Phillip Becarillo, a fruit dealer, of 153 Powers Street, and cut him about the face and head. The victim was taken to the Eastern District Hospital in a serious condition, while McNulty was arrested, charged with felonious assault.

Other bathers became frightened while the fight was on, and fled from the building. Policemen hurried in and stopped the fight. The prisoner told Magistrate Dodd in the Manhattan Avenue Court that the fruit dealer had insulted him, but was held on a charge of felonious assault.

1,500 POSTMEN MEET AT FIRST MEMORIAL

St. Patrick's Crowded at Service Which Follows March Up Fifth Avenue.

MGR. LAVELLE GREETS THEM

Father Chidwick Praises Them for Faithful Service Under Increase of Burdens.

The New York Letter Carriers' Association held its first annual memorial service yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at St. Patrick's Cathedral. Every seat in the great church was occupied and hundreds stood in the aisles. Vicar General Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle welcomed the association on behalf of Cardinal Farley and the members of the parish, and the memorial sermon was preached by Father John P. Chidwick, rector of St. Joseph's Seminary at Dunwoodie, N. Y., and chaplain of the battleship Maine when she was sunk in Havana harbor.

Half an hour before the services more than 1,500 members of the branches of the association in this city, Newark, Jersey City, Bayonne, Yonkers, Long Island City, Jamaica, Mount Vernon and Brooklyn, all in uniform, formed in line at the Grand Central Post Office in Forty-fourth Street and marched up Fifth Avenue to the cathedral. The parade was headed by a police escort and the New York Letter Carriers' Band. A throng of 2,000 persons gathered about the cathedral to review the parade and afterward hundreds endeavored to make their way into the church, which was then overcrowded. The pews on either side of the centre aisle, running the full length of the church, were reserved for the letter carriers.

The music at the church was furnished by the Letter Carriers' Band and the full vested choir of the cathedral. The service opened with the entrance march, "The Star Spangled Banner," by the band, and then followed the processional, the vesper service, and a march.

In his brief address, Mgr. Lavelle said that no branch of the Government required more efficient or faithful service and the letter carriers deserved all the more praise because it could be said that their record bore no stain.

"You play a great part in the life of the country," he said, "in the material life and the religious life as well. Some say that this is a material age. That is true to a great extent, but I believe it might also be called a religious age. Those who possess true religion will lack no happiness that the soul desires."

Mgr. Lavelle also complimented the men on their fine appearance and on the great number who had turned out to pay their respects to those who had passed away.

Father Chidwick traced the work of the Postal Department, saying that its members formed a chain which bound the whole country together and which, if broken, would result in demoralization. He spoke, too, of the hardships endured by some of the men in their daily work, and added:

"It is no surprise to me that during the past year $20,000 has been given by members of your association in this city to care for those who have been visited with sickness and sorrow. It is time that the great system, which means so much to the business and happiness of the country, should be safeguarded. Although your work has been greatly increased you have done your tasks with the same loyalty, patience, and efficiency. The very fact that you have been free from criticism or charges of dishonesty is the greatest praise that can be given you. It is when people see you as links of a great system, which means everything to the happiness and prosperity of the country, that they recognize your importance. I know at the bottom of your hearts you want something like this said, and that is why I am taking this opportunity to say what I feel to be the truth."

At the close of the service taps were sounded by the buglers of the association.

DROPS MEDICAL COURSE.

Dartmouth Gives Up Fourth Oldest School in the Country.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., April 27.—After the present junior class has graduated in 1914 Dartmouth will cease to grant the degree of Doctor of Medicine. The Medical School, as such, to all intents will be abandoned. At present it gives a four-year course. After 1914 Dartmouth will cease to give instruction in the studies of the third and fourth years of the medical course. Instruction in the studies of the first and second years will be given in what will be a department of the college, and work in this department will lead toward the B. S. degree. Students who pursue successfully the studies of this department it is intended shall be able to enter the class of the third year of any medical school.

The Trustees say that they have taken this action because the college has suffered from the lack of clinical material. Its isolated situation accounted for this. Theoretical study and laboratory work hereafter will afford students an opportunity to take advanced standing in medical schools.

The Dartmouth Medical School, the fourth founded in the United States, was established in 1798, in which year two degrees of Bachelor of Medicine were conferred. Dr. Nathan Smith, Yale, 1790, assisted by Dr. Lyman Spalding, Harvard, 1797, carried on the entire work of the school until 1810. In 1812 the school granted the degree of Doctor of Medicine. Oliver Wendell Holmes was the professor of anatomy and physiology from 1838 to 1841. The requirements of admission to the school were the same as to the college proper until 1909, when the Trustees made a requirement of two years of collegiate work before the study of medicine could be begun.

The one hundred and seventeenth graduation exercises of the school were held on Friday last, and President Nichols conferred ten degrees.

The decision to suspend the Medical School puts Dartmouth again in the ranks of pure colleges. Besides the special work for Master's degrees only two regular graduate courses are now offered, one in the Amos Tuck School of Administration and Finance, the other in the Thayer School of Civil Engineering.

Dartmouth will offer a course next year in scientific management as part of the second-year work in the Amos Tuck School. Prof. Henry W. Shelton will conduct the course.

NEW AMBASSADOR HERE FROM ENGLAND

POPULAR ABOARD SHIP

Pleased by His Speech at the Concert for Seamen's Charities—To Washington To-morrow.

Sir Cecil Arthur Spring-Rice, the Ambassador from Great Britain to the United States, arrived here yesterday on the Cunard liner Carmania, accompanied by his secretary, D. G. Osborne. His family would come over later, he said, when he had prepared for them in Washington. The Ambassador was met at the pier by George Wilson, Vice President of the Pilgrims Society of America; Courtenay Walter Bennett, British Consul General in New York, and his staff; L. David Campbell and Clark Kerr, attaches of the embassy, who came on from Washington.

On the voyage Sir Cecil Spring-Rice sat at the Captain's table, and made himself popular with the Americans on board, which included 130 Clark tourists from the Egyptian cruise of the Laconia. In making the customary speech on behalf of the seamen's charities as Chairman at the concert on Friday night, the Ambassador said he occupied the same place as a bridegroom at a wedding—inconspicuous, but necessary.

When asked if he had anything to communicate regarding European events, Sir Cecil said with a smile that diplomats abroad on the service of their respective Governments were not permitted to express their opinions.

"I know very little of American affairs," said he, "as I have been out of touch so long. To-day I am going to meet Mr. Bryce and talk over all the details of my new post. I shall stop at the house of Lawrence Godkin, where he is staying, and to-morrow go to the station and see Mr. Bryce off on his tour around the world. On Tuesday I shall go to Washington."

The new Ambassador is of slim build, and rather short. He wears a gray beard and mustache, and wears gold-rimmed glasses. He posed for a photograph for the newspapers outside the Cunard pier, and then drove away with Consul General Bennett to the Hotel Majestic, where Mr. Bennett was giving a luncheon in honor of Mr. Bryce.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice was born in 1859 in County Kerry, Ireland, and was educated at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford. He has spent all his life in the Diplomatic Service, and was at Washington as secretary twenty-three years ago. He has also served in Tokio, Egypt, and Teheran, and since 1908 has been the Minister to Sweden. King Edward made him a Knight Commander of St. Michael and St. George in 1906. His wife was the daughter of Sir Frank Lascelles, former British Ambassador to Berlin. In addition to English he speaks French, German, and Italian fluently, and has a good knowledge of Russian and Swedish. When Theodore Roosevelt was married to Miss Edith Kermit Carow in London on Dec. 2, 1886, the new Ambassador was best man.

BIND AND GAG WOMAN.

Thieves Ransack House and Leave Promise of a Return.

Mrs. Rebecca Leonard, 30 years old, wife of Edward Leonard, who has a trucking business in Manhattan, was bound and gagged by two masked burglars who entered the Leonard home in Woodside Avenue, Woodside, L. I., late Saturday night. The burglars then carried her into the bathroom, locked the door and then proceeded to ransack the house. They found $75, and as if disappointed, they left a note pinned to a curtain which read:

"We will be back to see you again."

Mrs. Leonard, whose husband was not at home, was aroused from her sleep to find two men in the room. She said they both had handkerchiefs around their faces. She started to make an outcry, when one of the men pointed a pistol at her and told her to keep quiet. One of the men drew a rope from his pocket and she was quickly tied hand and foot, and a cloth was bound tightly over her mouth. They then picked her up and carried her into the bathroom, locking the door.

In the meantime her two children became aroused, but they were quickly frightened into submission and told to hide under the bed clothing and not to dare to show their faces.

Several minutes after they left Mrs. Leonard succeeded in freeing herself. She called to her boy, who unlocked the bathroom door, and she then sent him out to arouse the neighbors.

Capt. Graham, in charge of the detective squad in Queens, with several of his men, spent yesterday trying to obtain a clue. Mrs. Leonard was unable to give a description of the men, and no one saw them enter or leave.

Gambled Away $70,000 Trust.

BALTIMORE, April 27.—Alexander J. Gouley, 67 years old, of Augusta, Ga., was arrested here to-day and charged with misappropriating $70,000 belonging to the estate of George E. Kernaghan, of which he was trustee. Gouley said he had lost all the money in gambling, and that he was willing to take his punishment.

Going Abroad?

While planning other necessary details—tickets, passage, itinerary, hotels, and baggage—do not overlook one of the most important items of all—the proper disposition of your travel money. It is unsafe and inconvenient to carry much actual cash, either gold or currency. It is liable to loss or theft; and besides, the moment you land on foreign soil there is the added bother and expense of procuring exchange. The ideal plan is to carry funds in a form immediately available anywhere, and yet always safe.

CONTROLLER PRAISES HEBREW ORPHANAGE

Tells Annual Meeting Its Work Is More Important Than Ever Before.

ONE BIG GIFT ANNOUNCED

Asylum Now Shelters More Children Than at Any Time in Its History --President Stern Re-elected.

At the annual meeting of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum yesterday morning in the synagogue at Amsterdam Avenue and 136th Street the work of the institution was highly praised by Controller Prendergast.

"The work of looking after those who cannot look after themselves," said Mr. Prendergast, "is more important than ever before. If left alone in this great city these homeless boys and girls, in this era of syndicalism, would more readily adopt those suggestions of destruction that are being preached from day to day. I am sure the people of this city do not fully appreciate the work that has been done by the men and women I see before me here to-day. The builders and supporters of this institution are better known as successful bankers, lawyers, merchants, and jurists; but in this work is their best contribution to the cause of humanity."

The meeting was opened by President Louis Stern, who read his annual report. The Secretary announced the newly elected officers for the ensuing year. Mr. Stern was re-elected President, and the other officers are Henry Rice, Vice President; Martin Beckhard, Treasurer; M. H. Moses, Isidor Metzger, and Louis Stettiner, Inspectors of Election; Joseph E. Newburger, Samuel Strasbourger, Edward A. Kerbs, Philip Lehman, Emil Frenkel, Samuel Floersheimer, and Emanuel Arnstein, Trustees to serve three years.

President Stern said the officers of the asylum were gratified to report that there had been no general visitation of illness, and that while there had been more or less sickness in so large a household, the children in most instances had recovered thoroughly and speedily. There had been only three deaths during the twelve months ended April 15.

"We have at the present time in our charge the largest number of children for whom we have ever been responsible," said President Stern. Our population in the institution proper amounts to 1,319 children, and of these 85 are on our free list, for whose maintenance no contribution is received from public funds. In board we have 225 additional children, and beyond this are assisting in the support of 34 children in the homes of mothers.

"By relief of mothers we mean the money paid to widows to keep their children at home and their families intact, for which purposes we are spending at the present time between $30,000 and $35,000 a year, receiving no reimbursement from the city to defray the cost of this work. During the month of March, for example, we granted relief to 170 widows, caring for approximately 250 children. To these mothers we disbursed $2,131, and of this amount $999 went to women in whose cases we are co-operating with the United Hebrew Charities, which supplied, in addition to clothing and coal, $796 for the payment of rent. We disbursed $464 for cases in which the Widowed Mothers Fund Association likewise contributed clothing, coal, and cash assistance to the amount of $418. We also spent $668 in the relief of cases in which there was no co-operation, but where the mothers were unwilling to part with the children committed to our care.

"Your board is still giving the most careful attention to the advisability of transferring the institution to larger and more commodious quarters, and, while no definite action has yet been taken in selecting a site, this question continues to receive the utmost consideration, and we hope in the near future to solve this most difficult problem."

In enumerating bequests and gifts received, President Stern mentioned a bequest of $100,000 by the late Mrs. Henry Neustadter, in commemoration of her husband and herself. It was the intention of the Board of Trustees to erect a suitable memorial in recognition of this particular legacy.

The various co-operating societies mentioned for their valuable assistance in the work were the Ladies' Sewing Circle, the Junior League, the Seligman Solomon Society, and the Auxiliary Committee. The Membership Committee, headed by E. Frankel, also received praise for having obtained during the past year an increase of 604 contributors.

Some of those present at the meeting were Edward Lauterbach, Oscar S. Straus, Joseph E. Newburger, Theodore Obermeyer, Marx Ottinger, Samuel Ullmann, William I. Spiegelberg, Isidor S. Korn, Samuel Strasbourger, Edwin Mayer, Philip Lehman, Max S. Grifenhagen, Henry Necorsulmer, Emil Frenkel, Simon J. Klee, Theodore Rosenwald, Abraham L. Newman, Edward A. Kerbs, Samuel Floersheimer, Sol Moses, Solomon Lowenstein, Lionel J. Simminds, and Aaron Schiff.

DR. SCHULMAN PRAISES LOVE

Nothing Greater or Holier Than Unselfish Affection, He Says.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Schulman delivered his last lecture for the season yesterday at the Temple Beth-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street. It was on the "Song of Songs." In it he referred to the Passover Feast and the ideal woman. He said that the Jewish people gave to the world the great ideal of liberty of man and law of God.

"When a people uses a whole week," he said, "to celebrate the memory of its redemption, rest assured that it has a many-sided message to bring to the world. It was our people that gave to the world the great ideal of liberty of man and law of God. Liberty and law—these are the ideals which are indispensable to the government of man, and if humanity ever becomes free, completely regenerated, perfected in individual life and in social justice, it will be through liberty and law. Not by liberty alone—liberty unrestrained leads to licentiousness. Not by law alone—law without liberty may degenerate into tyranny. But liberty and law, a free people, obeying God's law, which is man's highest law, that is the ideal for humanity.

"The love of nature, the love of woman, the love of country, and the love of God—that is what the book, the Song of Songs, teaches us. That is why every Passover the book Song of Songs is read.

"The ideal woman, as depicted in the Song of Songs, is one of purity of heart, perfectness of love, simplicity of devotion, and one who cannot be purchased either by money, by vanity, or by position. The Jewish religion did not glorify merely spiritual love, but the love of a man for a woman and a woman for a man. The love of a woman frees us from the animal that is in us, because that love becomes divine and awakens His spirit.

Dr. Schulman concluded by saying that there is nothing greater in the world and nothing holier than a natural, pure, and unselfish love.

CRIMINAL COURT CLEANING.

Marble Columns Get Their First Scrubbing in Nine Years.

For the first time in nine years the marble work on the interior of the Criminal Court Building on Centre Street has been thoroughly cleaned. Several Grand Juries during that time have commented unfavorably on the thick coatings of dust upon the marble columns and arches in the rotunda of the building.

Six weeks ago Supt. William H. Baker, in response to suggestions from several Judges of the Court of General Sessions, began having the lower parts of the columns scrubbed. The portions of the Tuckahoe marble cleaned to its original whiteness made such a glaring contrast with the dust-begrimed upper parts of columns and the carved work that scaffolding was sent by the Borough President and the whole cleaning was completed on Saturday night. The scaffolding was removed yesterday.

SYNOL is a germ destroying soap, only put up in bottles bearing the regulation label of Johnson & Johnson. It contains only pure vegetable ingredients, possessing no alcohol, carbolic acid or any substance detrimental to the skin.

A few drops in either cold or warm water will immediately cleanse the hands of any dirt or germs, leaving the skin sterilized, soft and smooth. It makes abundant lather, is economical, and, being a liquid, is more quickly applied to the surface of the body without that rough rasping of the skin necessitated by the use of cake soaps.

IT makes a healthful mouth wash and many use it for cleansing and whitening the teeth.

SYNOL HAS NO EQUAL AS AN ANTISEPTIC CLEANSER FOR CUTS AND BRUISES. IT IS PAINLESS AND DESTROYS GERMS.

THOUSANDS OF INFANTS AT THEIR BIRTH RECEIVE THEIR FIRST BATH IN SYNOL. ASK YOUR PHYSICIAN. HE KNOWS.

STEFANSSON BACK FOR ARCTIC START

Explorer Gets Two of Shackleton's Men for His Polar Expedition.

WILL LEAVE NEXT JUNE

From Vancouver Through Behring Strait for Unvisited Continent Thought to Lie North.

Among the passengers arriving yesterday on the American liner St. Paul, from Southampton, was Vilhjalmar Stefansson, the arctic explorer, who has been to London and Berlin to buy scientific instruments for his forthcoming expedition. Mr. Stefansson will be the leader for the Canadian Government in an expedition to be gone four years in the arctic regions. He had first planned to make the journey under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History and the National Geographical Society of Washington. The action of the Canadian Government in taking over the financing of the expedition has enabled the size of it to be doubled, he said.

Mr. Stefansson said yesterday that he expected to start for Esquimault, Vancouver Island, the first week in June, and go up the North Pacific Coast to Bering Straits in the steam whaler Karluk, a 247-ton vessel.

There are more than 1,000,000 square miles of the Arctic Ocean yet to be explored, and Mr. Stefanssen is full of confidence that he will discover the continent supposed to lie north of Alaska and Siberia.

During his trip abroad the explorer said he had engaged two scientists to accompany him, James Murray of Glasgow, who was the biologist with Sir Ernest Shackleton on his Antarctic expedition, and Dr. A. F. Forbes Mackay of Edinburgh, who had also been with Shackleton on a previous expedition. He had also engaged two anthropologists, Henri Beuchat, and Dr. Edward Janess, who is now on his way from New Zealand.

Dr. Fritz Johansen, who was with the Ericksen East Greenland expedition, will be the zoologist of the party.

Speaking of the object of the expedition, the explorer said:

"We shall devote ourselves to oceanography in the North Pacific and Arctic Oceans, getting the depth and character of the bottom, and the direction and speed of the currents, as well as the temperature, solidity and chemical composition and the animal and vegetable life. During the Summer we shall do the soundings directly from the ship, and in Winter travel with dog sleds and bore holes through the ice when necessary. It is a mistaken idea that explorers cannot work in the Winter months. That is the most healthful period to work. Mr. Murray's experience in the Antarctic will be of great value to the expedition.

"I intend, if possible," said Mr. Stefansson, "to send the ship back next Summer and take to the sledges. If it is found difficult to do that, then we shall leave the vessel in some sheltered place to escape the crushing drifts. Experience in the arctic regions has taught me that it is best to live off the land like the natives. You can always find animal life there—bear, caribou and musk ox. Capt. C. T. Pedersen will have command of the ship, with fifteen men in the crew selected by himself. Cold does not interfere with expeditions.

"I shall not take any tobacco in the ship or alcohol for our use. Whiskey is of use only when you meet a whaler and want something from the captain. Out there money is of no use, but a bottle of whiskey goes a long way. I shall take plenty of grain, oatmeal and dried fruit in the ship."

The expedition will cost about $75,000.

BURGLAR-PROOF COFFIN.

Steel Box for Mrs. Ricciardi Draws Crowd That Blocks Street.

A crowd numbering thousands collected yesterday morning in front of the undertaking shop of George B. Perazzo, 195 Bleecker Street, to gaze at a burglar-proof steel coffin on the sidewalk in front of the place. The box had attracted attention since it was deposited on the sidewalk Saturday afternoon. The crowd swelled to still greater proportions when people left the Church of Our Lady of the Rosary, at 202 Bleecker Street. For a time the street was blocked and police from the McDougall Street Station were called to clear it.

The undertaker said yesterday that the coffin was the first of its kind ever seen in that quarter. It is 7 feet long, 35 inches high and 32 inches wide. Mr. Perazzo said it was too large to take through the door of his place, so he was obliged to let the crowd satisfy its curiosity.

The box is intended for the body of Mrs. Mariana Ricciardi of 199 Bleecker Street, who on her deathbed Thursday left instructions concerning her burial. Mrs. Ricciardi believed that she might return to life, and ordered that her body should not be touched till ten hours had passed after her death. If no signs of returning vitality appeared in this time, she asked for interment in a steel coffin. The funeral will take place to-morrow.

LABOR PROSPEROUS IN RECENT MONTHS

Fewer Workers Idle in State in Last Half of 1912 Than in Previous Years.

BUILDING TRADES ACTIVE

Statistical Report Shows Nine Out of Twelve Disputes Settled by Mediation.

ALBANY, April 27.—Statistics made public to-day by the Bureau of Labor indicate that in the last six months of 1912 the number of workers unemployed in the State was decidedly less than in the corresponding months of 1911. The figures were compiled from reports of 183 trade unions having 113,000 members, a membership equal to 21 per cent. of all the trade unionists in the State.

The improvement as to idleness, the bulletin states, was shared by the principal groups of trades, including the building, transportation, and metal industries. However, in the clothing and textile trades a higher percentage of idleness was reported. This was due in large measure to the strikes of the garment workers in New York and the textile workers at Little Falls.

But for the garment workers' strike, involving 125,000 persons, the last three months of 1912 would have been notable for fewer strikes and lockouts than in the corresponding months of any recent year except 1908.

In the last three months of 1912 the Bureau of Mediation and Arbitration intervened in twelve disputes and settled nine of them.

Attention is called to the settlement of the strike of the textile workers at Little Falls. In this connection the bulletin says: "But the investigation of wages and cost of living had brought to light the existence before the reduction of wages and standards of living, both so low as to be a matter of public concern, with the probability of the existence of similar conditions elsewhere in the industry, which is one of the leading ones in the State. This problem manifestly was unaffected by the settlement of the strike and must be regarded as one still standing in need of investigation."

With the exception of one case of anthrax, lead poisoning was the only "industrial disease" reported in December, January, and February.

Referring to recent court decisions affecting toilers, the bulletin says: "As usual, a considerable number of employers' liability cases appear in the record and constitute continued evidence of the great uncertainty inherent in laws based on negligence, which uncertainty has been the source of many of the evils of liability laws."

The report also cites an opinion by Attorney General Carmody holding illegal an agreement between an employer and an employe for forfeiture of wages by the latter in case of failure to give notice of intention to leave employment.

Anti-Suffrage Picnic Afloat.

The first anti-suffrage picnic ever held on water is being arranged for by Mrs. K. B. Latham of 52 East Fifty-fourth Street for Decoration Day. She has chartered the Starina, the largest barge afloat, and is planning to entertain at least 1,500 people, mostly young women and their escorts. Luncheon will be served, and there will be an orchestra and three professional men singers. The Starina will sail from the Twenty-third Street pier early Decoration Day morning. Many well-known anti-suffragists will be aboard, among them Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, Mrs. Fritz Achelis, Mrs. W. A. Putnam, and Mrs. Everett P. Wheeler.

HINMAN ATTACKS EMERSON.

Says Senator Plans Another Assault on Highway Fund.

ALBANY, April 27.—Assemblyman Hinman, the Republican leader, issued a statement to-day in which he said that an attempt was being made "to frustrate the intent of the Highway Referendum act providing for the second bond issue." He charges that Senator James Emerson, a Republican, is the leader of the attack on the highway fund.

Senator Emerson has voted with the Democrats on several important matters this session. Last week the Democratic majority of the Senate voted solidly with Senator Emerson in advancing some of his local road legislation.

"Unless something is done," says Mr. Hinman, "to prevent the passage of Senator Emerson's bills providing for the construction of new State routes in Warren and Essex counties, the Legislature of 1913 will repeal the highway steal of 1911, when $14,000,000 was appropriated by the Legislature to expedite the construction of certain State highways in favored localities contrary to the constitution. Senator Emerson is again showing his cunning way by devising a trick to frustrate the clear intent and purpose of the referendum act of 1912."

GORDON & FERGUSON, St. Paul
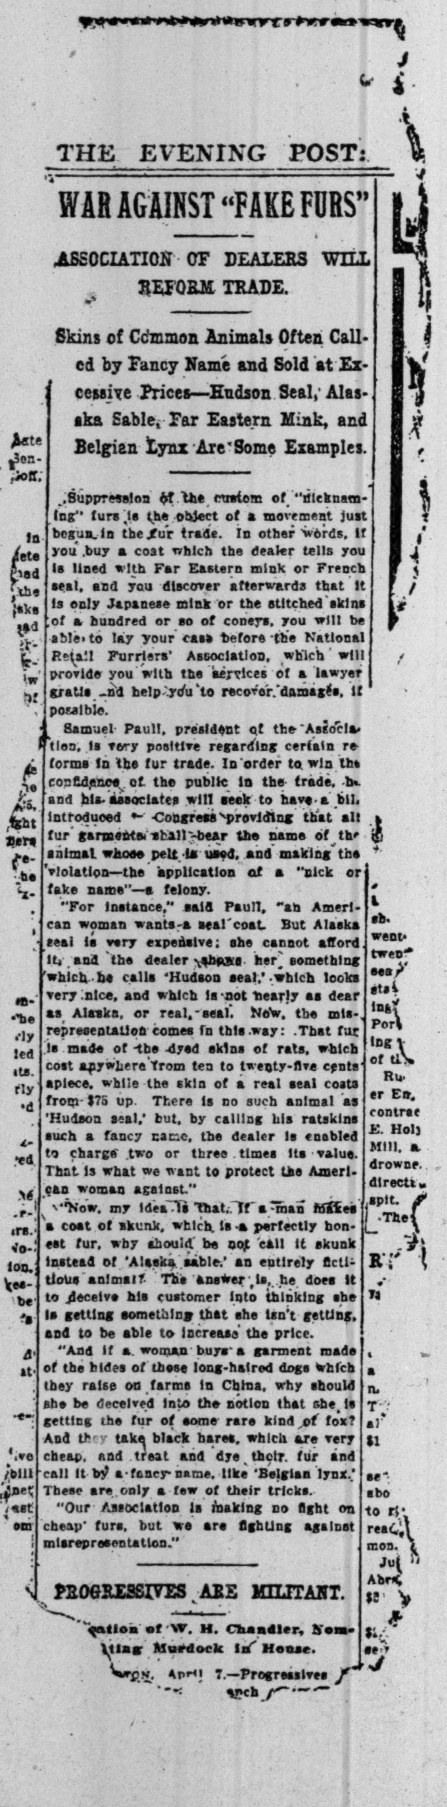
ORIGINATORS of the GORDON PURE FUR LAW



THE EVENING POST:

WAR AGAINST "FAKE FURS"

ASSOCIATION OF DEALERS WILL REFORM TRADE.

Skins of Common Animals Often Called by Fancy Name and Sold at Excessive Prices—Hudson Seal, Alaska Sable, Far Eastern Mink, and Belgian Lynx Are Some Examples.

Suppression of the custom of "nicknaming" furs is the object of a movement just begun in the fur trade. In other words, if you buy a coat which the dealer tells you is lined with Far Eastern mink or French seal, and you discover afterwards that it is only Japanese mink or the stitched skins of a hundred or so of coneys, you will be able to lay your case before the National Retail Furriers' Association, which will provide you with the services of a lawyer gratis and help you to recover damages, if possible.

Samuel Paull, president of the Association, is very positive regarding certain reforms in the fur trade. In order to win the confidence of the public in the trade, he and his associates will seek to have a bill introduced in Congress providing that all fur garments shall bear the name of the animal whose pelt is used, and making the violation—the application of a "nick or fake name"—a felony.

"For instance," said Paull, "an American woman wants a seal coat. But Alaska seal is very expensive; she cannot afford it, and the dealer shows her something which he calls 'Hudson seal,' which looks very nice, and which is not nearly as dear as Alaska, or real, seal. Now, the misrepresentation comes in this way: That fur is made of the dyed skins of rats, which cost anywhere from ten to twenty-five cents apiece, while the skin of a real seal costs from $75 up. There is no such animal as 'Hudson seal,' but, by calling his ratskins such a fancy name, the dealer is enabled to charge two or three times its value. That is what we want to protect the American woman against."

"Now, my idea is that, if a man makes a coat of skunk, which is a perfectly honest fur, why should he not call it skunk instead of 'Alaska sable,' an entirely fictitious animal? The answer is, he does it to deceive his customer into thinking she is getting something that she isn't getting, and to be able to increase the price.

"And if a woman buys a garment made of the hides of these long-haired dogs which they raise on farms in China, why should she be deceived into the notion that she is getting the fur of some rare kind of fox? And they take black hares, which are very cheap, and treat and dye their fur and call it by a fancy name, like 'Belgian lynx.' These are only a few of their tricks.

"Our Association is making no fight on cheap furs, but we are fighting against misrepresentation."

The Superiority of the Fiat was never questioned, but its price limited the sales to the larger cities.

The establishment of the Poughkeepsie Factory changed all this and now Fiat Superiority can be purchased at American Prices.

The American demand for Fiat is constantly increasing. On the road everywhere Fiat Cars are making remarkable records for general efficiency, speed, power, easy riding and great economy in upkeep, fuel and tires.

The Fiat market is a constantly rising one. An order now means the benefits represented by this increasing demand.

CHURCH ADVICE TO AMERICAN ARTISTS

At Special Service in St. John's Cathedral They Are Guided as to Inspiration.

TOLD TO ADOPT HOME IDEALS

The Rev. Dr. Robbins Calls Art Itself Not the Handmaiden but the Sister of Theology.

Nearly a thousand artists, representing many of the leading art clubs as well as art schools, attended a special service yesterday afternoon at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine on Morningside Heights, and were warned not to be unduly dependent on foreign tendencies, but to draw their inspiration from American life. They were assured by the Rev. Howard C. Robbins, Rector of the Church of the Incarnation, that whatever crudities might appear in their work would be American crudities and therefore would be forgiven. Art, they were told, was not the "handmaiden of religion," but, together with science, the sister of religion.

Dean Grosvenor, on behalf of the Bishop of the Diocese of New York and the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, welcomed the artists and told them that he was glad the suggestion had been made to have an annual service for them. Some of the organizations represented were the School of Applied Design, the Ben Greet Players' Club, Columbia Art Club, Cooper Union Club, Three Arts Club, Art Workers' Club, Studio Club, and Pen and Brush Club. There were in the congregation officers of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the National Academy of Design, the Academy of Natural Sciences, architects, musicians, and a number of persons representing the drama.

The Rev. Mr. Robbins took his text from Exodus, xxxv., 30: "The Lord hath called by name Bezaleel, the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the Tribe of Judah, and He hath filled him with the spirit of God." Bezaleel was the architect of the tabernacle in King Solomon's time, and was thus identified by the speaker with the guild of artists.

"The artist does not speak for himself alone," said the Rev. Mr. Robbins. "He speaks for his people. He gives expression to the inarticulate thousands who have no other voice than his to utter forth their mind. As in art man becomes man, so in art nations become nations, and add, according to the grace that is given them, to the strength, symmetry, and standards of the world. Therefore the artist may not build on the foundations of a foreign culture. He may learn from these; he may be warned by these; he might be mightily inspired and helped by these; but he appropriates them at his peril.

"Oppressed and overshadowed by the glory that was Greece, Rome took over bodily Hellenic culture, and what was the result? Imitation, pale, devitalized, and languid; an art so parasitic that it left a mighty people without an utterance worthy of its soul.

"My friends, if you will permit a layman to address you upon a topic of which he is not technically informed, out of much ignorance, I fear, of the peculiar problems which beset you, yet with a deep and somewhat troubled interest in the spiritual issues here involved, let me ask if there is not, in the stillborn art of Rome, a warning which America must not be suffered to neglect? Rightly or wrongly, the idea is prevalent that American artists are unduly dependent upon foreign models, that American critics and purchasers of works of art are too much influenced by the stamp of foreign approval.

"Modesty is a beautiful and engaging trait in man and nation. We are not often charged with an excess of it. And it is right that youth should recognize its limitations, and profit by the experience of age. But modesty is different from undue dependence, and dependence, imitation, the heart or mind to introduce a transatlantic culture, is a wrong done to the genius of the land that gave us birth. Let the artist be free to roam at will, to ransack Europe in his quest for inspiration, but let him add to freedom the profoundest loyalties of life, loyalties of home and fireside, loyalties of state and nation.

"Is there a district even in Italy more dotted with memorable battlefields than our Virginia, with its sad and heroic memories of war? Let the life of the Nation afford our artists their material. Let the spirit of the Nation inform their works of art. What matter if there result from the encounter the crudities of form and expression? They shall be American crudities. We shall love them and learn to better them as time goes on."

Indirectly touching the present high and low church controversy, the speaker was true to his low church tendencies and those of Incarnation Parish in saying:

"We must learn to rid ourselves forever of any baneful remnant of sacerdotalism, any doctrine, indeed, which would divorce religion from other human interests and make it an exclusive or sabattical affair. The inspired man is not a member of some exclusive guild. The inspired man is the man who makes.

"One hears sometimes that art is the handmaid of theology. I hate the phrase, for it misleads. Theology has no handmaid. Art, science, and theology are loving sisters engaged in similar endeavors, ministering to the one God of all beauty, and righteousness and truth. Perhaps if we realized this many lamentable chasms would find themselves abridged. The churchman would be found more frequently in the laboratory and the studio; the artist and the scientist would be a more regular attendant at church."

Speaking of the temple of divine reality, the Rev. Mr. Robbins said in closing:

"Whether a man labor for it as a miner toiling in the earth, as a roadmaker and bridge builder preparing for its transportation, as an architect superintending its construction, or as a musician writing hymns that shall sound gloriously there, the man who has any part in the building is God's artisan, inspired and beloved. Be his part in it never so small and never so hidden from man's sight, he, too, is a temple builder; and in the great democracy of labor the inspired bricklayer shall stand beside inspired architect and prophet and share with them the glorious fruits of toil."

Children's Society Says 'Guardians' Are Hired—The Year's Record.

Moving picture evils for young children continue unabated, according to the thirty-eighth annual report of the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, issued to-day. Supt. Thomas D. Walsh says in the report:

> Notwithstanding the society's unceasing activity in prosecuting cases arising through the "movies," the demoralization of children goes steadily on. There are over 800 resorts licensed to show the films. Children are still flocking to these resorts, whose proprietors ignore that wise provision of the law (No. 485, Penal Law,) which prohibits the admission of unaccompanied children. Some shows have actually employed a "guardian" to collect several children and enter with them, and an attorney for a combination of moving-picture proprietors has introduced such devices in defense of clients prosecuted by the police and the society as to indicate a manufactured evasion of the law.

The Children's Society has recommended an amendment to the City Charter placing moving picture resorts under the regulations which govern first-class theatres. Such an amendment, it holds, would force some of the worst places out of business and would compel the improvement of others.

The work of the society in 1912 is shown by this record:

Complaints received	18,777
Complaints investigated	18,052
Complaints prosecuted	7,792
Convictions secured	6,106
Homes found or situations obtained for	6,534
Boys and girls cared for in reception rooms	10,775
Money collected from pecunious parents of children committed by the court	$25,106
Total collected and turned over to the city since the introduction of the system	462,122

President John D. Lindsay in his annual address says:

"A conspicuous feature of the year has been a highly encouraging increase in the extent and usefulness of the society's work. No more cogent proof of the confidence of the courts in the work of the society could be supplied than that contained in the summary of its prosecutions against adult malefactors, charged with what may be conveniently termed as offenses against morality. It might naturally be supposed that a large proportion of dismissals might be found under this head, yet it appears that out of 349 cases of this character, 235, or almost 70 per cent., resulted in convictions."

WILL HEAR BAULE AGAIN.

Further Testimony to be Taken To-day in the Mulraney Case.

William Beaule, who testified that John Mulraney, convicted of the murder of Patrick McBreen, had not been near the scene of the shooting and was in turn accused of instigating McBreen's murder by Mulraney when the latter testified before Judge Rosalsky in Sing Sing, will be before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions again to-day to give some further light upon the murder of McBreen.

When he testified before Judge Rosalsky before, Beaule, who is serving a term in Auburn Prison under the name of Harry Clark, said he knew who murdered McBreen. He said that just before McBreen was shot he saw Martin Fay, who testified against Mulraney during his trial for murder; John Dowling, who confessed to the murder and involved Mulraney, and a man named Frank standing on the corner near McBreen's saloon and saw them leaving after the murder.

Following Beaule's testimony, Mordecai Saltzman, a Pinkerton agent, took the stand and said that Mulraney had confessed to him that he murdered McBreen. Judge Rosalsky then went to Sing Sing to give Mulraney a chance to explain the testimony of Saltzman.

Beaule was brought to this city last Friday, and has been in the Tombs since, but has not had a chance to testify owing to the trial before Judge Rosalsky of Walter O'Donnell, an ex-policeman, who is charged with stealing $500 worth of goods from a garage. This case will be ended to-day and then Beaule will testify.

WOMAN CAPTURES THIEF.

Throws Him to Floor, Sits on Him and Then Yells for Husband.

As janitress of the flat house at 916 Tiffany Street, the Bronx, Mrs. Harriet Haberer lives in the basement, and she was just entering her quarters there yesterday afternoon when she spied a man slipping out with a patented screwdriver of hers in one pocket and a carpenter's plane in the other. The stranger was no giant, but he was considerably larger than Mrs. Haberer. Undaunted, however, she seized him around the neck, threw him to the floor and sat upon him. Then she yelled for her husband, and the two of them held the intruder until relieved by the police.

He said he was Ernest Grossman of 960 Sampson Street. The police found $50 in his pocket and they locked him up under a burglary charge.

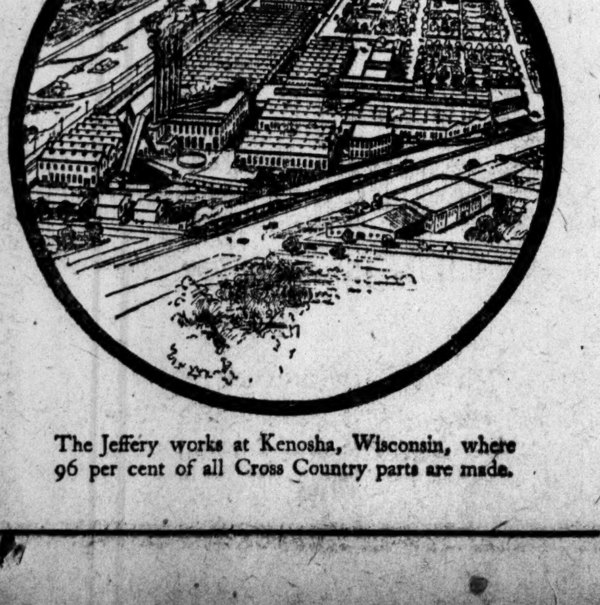
Forty Years Building a Great Factory

The little room on South Water Street, Chicago, where the Jeffery business started before the great fire of 1871.

Rambler Motor Cars



The Jeffery works at Kenosha, Wisconsin, where 96 per cent of all Cross Country parts are made.

IN a little one-room shop on South Water Street, Chicago, before the big Chicago fire of 1871, Thomas B. Jeffery, with two helpers, a man and a boy, laid the foundation for the great organization behind the Cross Country car.

In forty years from this modest beginning, twenty-one of which were devoted to building up the bicycle industry, this organization has grown, until today five million dollars are invested in the Jeffery factory equipment alone, and every dollar's worth of it is paid for.

EVERY intelligent man and woman in America surely recalls the fact that the Rambler bicycle was the most popular bicycle of its type during the days of bicycle progress.

Fifteen employes of this company have been in the organization for twenty years and over; fifteen from fifteen to twenty years; twenty-one from ten to fifteen years, and three hundred and thirty-three from one to five years.

THE factory ground area today is one hundred and four acres and the floor area twenty-five acres.

Ask your banker what the name of Jeffery stands for in the motor car industry and consider well before you choose a car the standing and experience of the maker.

A beautiful four-color reproduction of the Cross Country, from an oil painting by R. Philip Brainard, is ready for mailing. See the Cross Country by all means, at any Jeffery branch or dealer's display room, but send for the picture anyway.

"Thirty-Six" $1950. Fully equipped. F. o. b. Detroit.

You Can Buy
an automobile for less than the Chalmers "Thirty-Six" price, but you cannot get Chalmers "Thirty-Six" features and quality in that automobile.

We mean that. And we can prove it.

For any less price than $1950 you can't get, for instance, a four forward-speed transmission and all ground gears. Four forward speeds mean utmost flexibility. All ground gears mean freedom from noise, friction, wear. Insist on a four forward-speed transmission. Once you have used this wonderful improvement you will never be satisfied to drive a three-speed car.

You can't get, for less than the "Thirty-Six" price, a motor of equal quality. Big and sturdy, with 4¼" bore and 5¼" stroke, this motor delivers to the driving wheels full 36 actual horse power—day in, day out, summer and winter. It hangs on.

For less money than $1950, you can't equal the "Thirty-Six" convenience, Chalmers compressed air self-starter; Gray & Davis electric lighting system; power tire inflater; demountable rims; carburetor dash adjustment.

Comfort equal to that of the "Thirty-Six" you can't possibly secure for less than the "Thirty-Six" price. In fact, we doubt if you can get the same complete restfulness in any car—at even higher prices. Turkish cushions and 11-inch upholstery; long wheel base (118"); big wheels and tires (36"x4"); long, flexible springs—make Chalmers riding a delight.

For less than the Chalmers price you inevitably get less than the Chalmers quality. It pays to buy good quality at the start. Don't try to "save" money at the cost of permanent satisfaction.

Let us show you the Chalmers "Thirty-Six" today.

Camnitz Batted Out of Box and Cooper Fares Badly Also—Score 7 to 5.

CHICAGO, April 27.—Chicago defeated Pittsburgh to-day, 7 to 5. Both Humphries and Camnitz were hit hard, but Chicago was more fortunate in bunching hits.

Camnitz was relieved by Cooper in the seventh, but he, too, was hit hard. The batting of Carey, Miller, McCarthy, Schulte and Mitchell, and the fielding of Evers were features. The score:

Joe Tinker Put Out of Game.

ST. LOUIS, April 27.—Johnson's wildness and opportune hitting by the locals gave St. Louis to-day's game with Cincinnati by 2 to 1. Manager Tinker and McDonald were banished for disputing decisions.

St. Louis's first run came in the third inning on a pass, a single, and Johnson's wild pitch. Cincinnati tied the score in the fifth inning without getting a hit. Grant was passed, stole second, and went to third when Wingo's throw went to centre field. He scored on a passed ball. St Louis went ahead again in this inning, getting one run on a single, two passes, and a sacrifice fly. The score:

BROWNS SHUT OUT SOX.

Chicago Batsmen Unable to Solve the Curves of Hamilton.

CHICAGO, April 27.—Chicago was unable to do anything with Hamilton today, and St. Louis shut out the locals in the final game of the series, 3 to 0.

The visitors bunched two singles and a triple for two runs in the third, and two singles, a double steal and a wild pitch netted another in the fifth. The day was chilly and there was a small attendance. The score:

FAMOUS SOUTHPAW DIES.

Charley Pabor, Who Discovered Mike Kelly, Passes Away.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 27.—In the death of Charley Pabor of this city the past week, the first great left-handed pitcher and one of the earliest professional baseball players of fame passed away. His name recalls the early glories of the game in New York City, where he was a member of the Unions of Morrisana, in Cleveland, where he was Captain of the famous Forest Citys, in Columbus, where he managed the historic Buckeyes, in Philadelphia, where he played for a time with the original Athletics, and in this city, where he played his last ball, managing the New Havens. The years of his baseball career cover the period from about 1865 to 1876, and his experiences embrace a lot of vicissitudes.

The players he launched on the diamond include two of the greatest of National League stars, Mike Kelly and Fred Goldsmith, both of whom played their first game under his management, Kelly with the Buckeyes of Columbus, Ohio, and Goldsmith in New Haven, his home. With the Unions, Pabor was paired with Birdsall as a battery. Birdsall afterward went to the National League, but Pabor retired from the game at just about the time the League was organized in 1876. Pabor accumulated considerable property, but lost much through poor investments, one of which was entered with Birdsall.

Upon his retirement from baseball Pabor became a policeman in this city. He was retired several years ago upon a pension, but remained active till two or three days before his death, which was caused by pneumonia. He was engaged in the cultivation of flowers with his son, with whom he lived on Parmelee Avenue in this city.

Pabor has not attended a baseball game in nearly a quarter of a century. When the players with whom he was associated passed off the stage he lost all interest in the game, and laughed with ridicule at the suggestion that there could ever be another shortstop like George Wright, a first baseman like Joe Start, or a pitcher the equal of Al Spalding. He was 67 years old when he died, although he was a veteran when he started Mike Kelly in baseball in Columbus.

1,080 Futurity Nominations.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 27.—The synopsis of the Kentucky Futurity for foals of this year, which closed with the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association here April 1, shows that 1,080 mares were nominated. Considering the unfavorable breeding season this year, this figure represents an entry that is very gratifying, especially since the mares nominated represent the pick of the brood mares throughout the entire country. The list this year is headed by L. V. Harkness's Walnut Hall Farm, near here, which has entered 89 of its blue-blooded matrons. The Patchen Wilkes Farm of Lexington is second with 82 nominations. Empire City Farms, Cuba, N. Y., names 38, the next highest number. Allen Farm of Pittsfield, Mass., and Hudson River Farm of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., are tied for fourth place, each having nominated 30 mares. Fifty-six nominators have entered five or more mares, their nominations totaling 713. The entire 1,080 entries are distributed among 304 nominators. Of the thirty-one States and Canada nominated, Kentucky leads with 378 nominations, while New York is second with 190, Massachusetts 97, Illinois 67, Pennsylvania 58, Ohio 55, Indiana 35, California 26, and Michigan 22. Canada sends 18 and the remainder of the thirty-one send lesser numbers.

KOLEHMAINEN FAST IN BIG ROAD RUN

World's Champion Gains Time Trophy in Field of 166 Distance Men.

Hannes Kolehmainen, the Finnish lad who has been the sensation of the foot-racing world since he took the measure of the distance men of the world at the Olympic games in Stockholm last year, added to his laurels yesterday in the handicap road race of the Presentation Club in Brooklyn, when he won the prize for making the best time over the five-and-three-quarter-mile route, which he accomplished in 28 minutes 36 seconds.

That the distance was accurate was attested by Lawson Robertson, the coach of the Irish-American A. C., who had it measured by a bicycle cyclometer, so that the performance promises to be one that it will take a pedestrian marvel to equal. Second in point of excellence from a time standpoint was the effort of J. J. McNamara of the Winged Fist organization, who, although allotted 1 minute 15 seconds, managed to finish in thirty-fourth position, and 41 seconds slower than the marvelous Finn.

Kolehmainen passed the finish mark in sixty-seventh place, a position which just about split the field of men who were checked at the end, as 127 were accounted for of the 166 aspirants for honors who started in quest of a share in the valuable trophies awarded.

W. Leslie of the Long Island A. C., a runner from the 5:30 mark, managed to break the tape ten yards in front of H. Maroney, Glencoe A. C., another of the limit men, 5:30 being the longest handicap assigned. Aside from gaining second prize, the latter received the first trophy for previous non-winners. M. Greenburg, off the 3:45 mark, was placed fourth, which position gained for him second novice prize, while A. Schneider got fifth place and third novice.

The course led from the clubhouse at Rockaway Avenue and Bergen Street, East New York, to Hopkinson Avenue, to Herkimer Street, to Bedford Avenue, to Eastern Parkway, to the starting point

Glencoe A. C. runners accounted for the team prize, showing five men home for a total of 78 points, with the Long Island A. C. second with 96. The other team showings were as follows: Trinity Club, 135; Irish-American A. C., 181; Morningside A. C., 184; Mohawk A. C., 210. The summary:

JEFF TESREAU'S START.

Two Home Runs in Seven Innings Against One Homer During 1912.

Baseball is full of upsets, as the records show. Prior to the opening of the season fans confidently expected that Big Jeff Tesreau of the Giants would start right off the reel and pile up a string of consecutive victories. Instead, McGraw's mammoth spitballer dropped the opener to the Boston Braves, being driven from the slab while dropping it, and then, on his first appearance in a relief rôle, allows the opposition to come from behind and win out.

Tesreau undoubtedly will win a great number of games for the McGrawites this year, and possibly may surpass his 1912 record. There is one record he made in 1912, however, that he cannot possibly equal, even though the season is still in its infancy. That record relates to home runs. Last year only one National League player made a homer off Big Jeff, who worked in 243 innings, equivalent to twenty-seven complete games. On Tesreau's first two appearances on the slab this season he labored for just seven stanzas, and in that time was located for two four-baggers. John Titus was the lone National Leaguer who clouted for the circuit off Tesreau last season, the present Bostonian, then a Phillie, making his four-bagger in the game played on May 2.

The players who poled homers off Tesreau this year were Bill Rariden, who used to be Rube Marquard's backstop when the tall port-sider was with Canton, and J. Carlisle Smith, who started the season in sad fashion, since Tom Seaton whiffed him thrice. Despite the fact that Tesreau has had two home runs made off him in less than one full game, he undoubtedly will remain on the Giants' payroll all season long, and will receive the consideration of the jury of experts serving on the award for the National League's best player.

Federal A. C. Holds Games.

The Federal Athletic Club, a newly formed organization, held its first set of outdoor games yesterday afternoon at De Witt Clinton Park, Fifty-second Street and Eleventh Avenue, and some excellent competition was witnessed in the eight events which made up the programme. Close finishes marked the majority of the events, and the 220-yard dash, which was won by Rohne, in 0:29, was the feature event of the day. The running high jump was also a closely contested event, and required many trials before the winner was decided in Werner, who cleared the bar at 5 feet 3 inches. A tie resulted for third honors, and the contestants agreed to decide the winner of his position by the toss of a coin. Dumick won. The summaries:

50-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by Werner, (scratch;) Rolston, (scratch,) second; Wilkins, (2 feet,) third. Time—0:05 3-5.

One-half-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by Rolston, (scratch;) Dumick, (scratch,) second; Werner, (25 yards,) third. Time—2:28 2-5.

Twelve-Pound Shot Put—Won by Wilkins, with a put of 28 feet 9 1-5 inches; Ruth, second, with a put of 27 feet 9 inches; Rolston, third, with a put of 27 feet 6 inches.

220-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by Rohne, (4 yards;) Cohn, (2 yards,) second; Schrank, (3 yards,) third. Time—0:29.

One-quarter-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by Rolston, (scratch;) Ruth, (20 yards,) second; Ttoomey, (30 yards,) third. Time—1:01 1-5.

Two-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by Norton, (190 yards;) Sayers, (scratch,) second; Teoomey, (190 yards,) third. Time—11:00 4-5.

One-quarter-Mile Walk, Handicap.—Won by Rohne, (5 yards;) Goldstein, (scratch,) second; Ruth, (10 yards,) third. Time—1:41 4-5.

Running High Jump.—Won by Werner, height, 5 feet 8 inches; Weiner, height 5 feet 2 inches, second; Dumick, height, 4 feet 8 inches, third.

BELMONT PARK RACE MEET.

Good Entries for Meadow Brook Steeplechase Association Events.

The keen interest and good attendance at Hewletts Bay Park Saturday for the race meeting of the Rockaway Hunting Club encourages the patrons of amateur racing. It is taken as an indication of support from those who love a horse and enjoy a hard-fought contest. For the past two years this spirt has been steadily developing with those who love racing as a sport.

The Meadow Brook Steeplechase Association is next in line with an offering. Its meeting will be held at Belmont Park Terminal Wednesday, April 30, and Saturday, May 3. The programme was framed with the hope of bringing together the best horses of the several amateur classes, as well as the steeplechasers of renown for the open races. Expectations have been fully realized, as the entries for all the events for both days show an abundance of material of the right sort, well-matched fields being assured.

The events filled well and will bring out evenly balanced fields. Several new recruits appear to have joined the ranks of hunt meeting supporters, among which are Miss Madeline F. Herne, A. Ludlow Kramer, W. S. Hilton, Mrs. J. H. Burton, W. R. Midgely, C. Jason Waters, A. V. Baird, and B. K. Gaitens.

The officials for the meeting follow: Stewards—August Belmont, Henry W. Bull, H. F. Godfrey, H. S. Page, and Robert L. Gerry; Judges—A. Butler Duncan and H. A. Buck; Starter—Frank T. Clark; Paddock Judge—Frank J. Bryan; Clerk of the Scales—Herman P. Conkling; Clerk of the Course—George W. Gall; Patrol Judges—F. B. Voss and E. S. Voss.

HARLEM OARSMEN AFLOAT.

Metropolitans Hold Open House and Entertain Other Rowing Club Men.

Harlem and Hudson River oarsmen joined yesterday in the special occasion held by the Metropolitan Rowing Club, which had announced an open house as an introductory to the beginning of the aquatic season. The Mets had a band, plenty of chowder and other eatables and drinkables, and with the help of the Nassaus, Crescents, Lone Stars, Nonpareils, Bohemians, Hudson Rivers and other clubs, which were represented, made quite an enjoyable function of the "opening."

A strong wind which swept the river pretty much all day argued against the strong showing of crews afloat which had been anticipated, but with the adverse conditions there were quite a few boats put out. The Mets sent out junior and senior quadruple scull crews, a senior four-shell, a senior double made up of Emery and Hayes, as well as several other combinations.

John Hughes, the single sculler from the Harlems, was the only representative of his club afloat, but the first Bohemians had three crews boated, the chief of which was junior quadruple sculls, a similar craft being sent out from the Lone Stars.

Dame Rumor was in form yesterday with the statement that Fred Shepherd, the star single scull exponent, intended to join the Nonpareils. It developed that the scheduled octuple scull race between the Columbia 'Varsity eight and the Mets, which had been slated for next Friday, has been set back a week in order to give the collegians an opportunity to better fit themselves for the race, as they have had but little time in which to get ready.

MORTIMER WINS TROPHY.

Defeats Pierre Lorillard, Jr., in Tennis Finals at Tuxedo Courts.

Special to The New York Times.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., April 27.—In the final round to-day for the H. G. Gray trophy in the court tennis handicap tournament on the courts of the Tuxedo Tennis and Racquet Club Stanley G. Mortimer defeated Pierre Lorillard, Jr., two sets to one, 6—1, 3—6, 6—2, after a very exciting match. A fashionable gathering witnessed the matches, and the entry list, including nearly all of the Tuxedo players, was a large one. Play was started early in the week and concluded to-day. The following is the summary:

Preliminary Round.—P. Lorillard, Jr., minus half 30, defeated J. E. Davis, 15, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2; Lewis S. Chanler, 15, defeated Henry G. Gray, 15, by default; C. S. Lee, half 15, defeated Lucius Wilmerding, half 30, 6—0, 6—3; William Post, half 15, defeated C. S. Cutting, minus 30, by default; S. G. Mortimer, half 15, defeated Addison Cammack, minus half 15, 6—3, 6—4.

First Round.—P. Lorillard, Jr., minus half 30, defeated N. W. Tilton, half 15, 6—3, 6—2; L. S. Chanler defeated C. S. Lee by default; S. G. Mortimer, half 15, defeated William Post, half 15, 6—2, 6—4; Griswold Lorillard, half 15, defeated Preston Davie, half 30, 4—6, 6—3, 6—1.

Semi-final Round.—P. Lorillard, Jr., minus half 30, defeated L. S. Chanler, 15, 6—4, 4—6, 6—3; S. G. Mortimer, half 15, defeated Griswold Lorillard, half 15, 6—3, 8—6.

Final Round.—S. G. Mortimer, half 15, defeated P. Lorillard, Jr., minus half 30, 6—1, 3—6, 6—2.

The annual invitation lawn tennis doubles will be held at Tuxedo Park, beginning Friday afternoon, May 9. The following pairs will compete: R. D. Little and H. H. Hackett, W. J. Clothier and C. F. Watson, Jr., W. A. Larned and R. D. Wrenn, A. S. Dabney and Nathan A. Niles, R. N. Williams and W. M. Washburn.

NOTES OF THE GOLFERS.

One of the surest indications that the golf season is rapidly getting under way is the fact that schedules of competitions are being announced by the various clubs. The latest organizations to compile a list of events for the Summer are the Fox Hills Golf Club, the Ardsley Club, the Montclair Golf Club, and the Dyker Meadow Golf Club.

At Fox Hills the formal opening took place on Saturday with the qualifying round for the Spring tournament. From now on the events over this Staten Island course will follow each other in rapid succession until the snow flies again. It is here that the Metropolitan amateur championship will be held on May 21, 22, 23, and 24, and it is likely that Jerome D. Travers, the title winner last year, will once again try for district honors. The club championship will be run off at medal play, the distance being 72 holes, and is carded for Sept. 6 and 7. In the course of the season the President's, Vice President's, Manhattan, Brooklyn, Col. O'Donoghue and the Pogson trophies will be competed for.

Montclair golfers began on Saturday with a practice event in the form of a medal play handicap, but the calendar will begin in earnest next Saturday, when the qualifying round for the May tournament will be run off. Instead of waiting until Fall for the club championship the time has been shifted to May 31, when the qualifying round will be played and continue until June 28, the time for the final match at 36 holes. The course will be in much better condition in June, it is explained, consequently more acceptable for this important competition. The Fall list of events will be compiled later in the season.

At Ardsley the season will be opened next Saturday with an eighteen-hole team match between sides chosen from the club members, and will be followed by a beefsteak dinner. There will be the Brook Jumpers and the Bunker Dodgers, the former captained by H. Stuart Green and the latter by A. F. Robinson. There were seventy men in the contest. The Ardsley course has been carefully groomed, and is declared to be finer than ever. The trap bunkers have been deepened, and the work on the trap guarding the road at the fifth hole is nearly finished. Most of the competitions on the card are eighteen-hole medal play handicaps for each Saturday, except for an intermission during August. A selected score contest will run throughout the season.

The schedule at Dyker Meadow provides events up to July 12, with several tournaments for the Marine and Field Club Cup, the first being in the form of an eighteen-hole qualifying round next Saturday. Events will be arranged for Saturdays during July and August.

James B. Regan has donated the Knickerbocker Cup for competition by the members of the Oakland Golf Club. After a series of medal play handicaps the thirty-two who have the lowest net scores will continue at match play, beginning May 24, for the cup. Incidentally R. M. Tarleton recently made the 218-yard 18-hole, an uphill affair, in a single stroke.

Dunwoodie golfers once more have done the unusual in planning a competition in which the right-handed players will oppose the southpaws. The date will be set later. The post of assistant professional at Dunwoodie, recently left vacant by Dan Mackie, who became the "pro" at the Century Country Club, has been filled by George McLean. McLean is a good player, and has gone around Dunwoodie in 68. He was employed as junior professional at the club last year.

LUTHER M'CARTY TO BOX FRANK MORAN

White Heavyweight Champion's First Appearance Here Since Winning Title.

The appearance of Luther McCarty at the St. Nicholas A. C. Wednesday night in a 10-round bout with Frank Moran of Pittsburgh stands far above anything else scheduled in the boxing line for New York during the coming week. It will be a busy week at the local clubs, as all the clubs which stage weekly shows will again put on contests, and the Fairmont A. C., which has been idle for several weeks, joins the ranks this week. The Forty-fourth Street Sporting Club is the only big organization in the Greater City which has not arranged a card.

McCarty's appearance, rather than the match itself, makes the bout at the St. Nicholas A. C. attract much attention. Heavyweights have been coming to the front with remarkable rapidity during the past few months, and white hope talk has been almost as common as during the period immediately following Jeffries's defeat at Reno. Gunboat Smith, Jess Willard, George Rodel, and several other hopes have been claiming the title which McCarty now holds, and challenges have been flying fast. In the meantime New Yorkers have had no real opportunity to get a line on Luther McCarty. They remember his two failures at Madison Square Garden last Summer, but realize that he must have improved considerably to accomplish what he has done since that time. Now they have the chance to see for themselves.

McCarty, in his only bouts in this city, lost the popular decisions to Jim Stewart and Jess Willard. Both of these bouts were fought last August, after which McCarty went to the Coast and succeeded in stopping Al Kaufman, Jim Flynn and Al Palzer in two, sixteen and eighteen rounds, respectively. He then filled a long engagement on the stage, and two weeks ago he figured in another bout with Jim Flynn at Philadelphia. Several New Yorkers who saw him last Summer declared that he has improved wonderfully. But he has lost much of his popularity in New York for his side-stepping of Bombardier Wells and his repeated refusals to box either Gunboat Smith, whose record entitles him to recognition, or Jess Willard, who holds a newspaper decision over him.

Moran is big and strong, but he has never done anything that warrants the belief that he is a match for McCarty. He once engaged in a ten-round bout with Gunboat Smith, and that is his most notable achievement in the ring. He is rugged enough to take considerable punishment, but is shy on boxing ability. If he is able to make McCarty show just how good he is, he will be accomplishing as much as is expected of him Wednesday night. McCarty plans to start for the West immediately after this bout, and it is possible that he will have to defend his new honors against Smith or Willard before he again figures in a bout in New York. He has been training at Rye Beach, and reports from the camp are that he is in the best of condition. He expects to weigh about 202 pounds when he enters the ring.

At the Fairmont A. C. to-morrow night three ten-round bouts will feature the card. The main event will bring together Jim Coffey, the hard-hitting Irish heavyweight, and "Whitey" Allen, a Swedish heavyweight who has seen Coffey in action several times, and thinks he can outpoint the Irishman. In the ten-round semi-final Tom Gibbons, a brother of Mike Gibbons, will oppose Joe Borcell, a Philadelphia middleweight. The opening bout will show Eddie McMahon vs. Billy Hart.

The Irving A. C. of Brooklyn will also put on a heavyweight show on Tuesday night, featuring the card with a bout between George Rodel, the Boer heavyweight, and Sailor Fritz, who showed up so well recently in his bouts with Soldier Kearns and Art Nelson.

The Olympic A. C., Manhattan Street, near Amsterdam Avenue, will put on its usual weekly show of three ten-round bouts to-night. The bouts arranged are Kid Alberts vs. Eddie Conway, Harry Cutch vs. Johnny Harvey, and Harvey Kelly vs. Richie Ryan.

The Military A. C. of Brooklyn will also be busy to-night. The main event will bring together Al McCoy, the Brooklyn welterweight, and Battling Larry Ryan of New York. The Atlantic Garden A. C., at Canal Street and the Bowery, will put on three ten-round bouts at its show to-morrow night. The main event will be between Banty Lewis, the Newark lightweight, and Patsy White of the east side. The other ten-round bouts will show Johnny Keyes vs. Mickey Dunn, and Terry Brooks vs. Frankie Nelson. At the same club Saturday, the card arranged calls for bouts between Knockout Sweeney vs. Johnny Martin, Frankie Killen vs. Young Goldie, and Benny Leonard vs. Eddie Powers.

At the Brooklyn Beach A. C. of South Brooklyn to-morrow night the principals in the feature bout will be Italian Joe Gans of Brooklyn and Mike Farrell of New York. In the other ten-round bouts Billy Bush will oppose Johnny Farmer, and Eddie Sanders will mix with Young McGowan.

On Friday night the Queensboro A. C. of Long Island City will put on an all-star card with Kid Ghetto and Tommy Moore in the feature bout. Teddy Murphy and Young Herman will do the honors in the semi-final, and Bert Papp will oppose Charlie Marino in the opener.

The New Polo A. A. of Harlem will stage its regular weekly show on Friday night, but the card has not yet been arranged. On Saturday night the usual shows will be put on at the Fairmont and St. Nicholas Clubs in New York, the Gowanus, Irving, and National A. C. in Brooklyn, and the Liberal A. C. of Staten Island.

Ruggerio Leads at Pennant A. C.

Frank Ruggerio, the former schoolboy champion distance runner, who is now a member of the Bronx Church House team, was said yesterday to have broken the record over the supposed twelve-mile course of the Pennant A. C., when he covered the route in 1:03:00, which would certainly have taken a good bit off any twelve-mile performance had he run that distance. Ruggerio took the lead at the five-mile mark, and won by very nearly two minutes from H. Cannarsa a club mate, with W. Burke, Union Settlement A. C., third. The following was the order of finish: F. Ruggiero, Bronx Church House; H. Cannarsa, Bronx Church House; W. Burke, Union Settlement A. C.; H. Reitz, Pennant A. C.; H. Jameson, Bronx Church House; H. Ernst, unattached; S. Martin, Pennant A. C.; A. Cannarsa, Bronx Church House; J. Hots, Pennant A. C.; F. Minkoff, unattached; C. Murphy, E. R. C. 21; C. Feldman, E. R. C. 21; W. Boak, Trinity Church A. C.; E. Kearns, Pennant A. C.; S. Pivano, Bronx Church House, and A. Maier, unattached.

CYCLISTS IN CENTURY RUN.

More Than 300 Riders Take Part in 105-Mile Trip.

More than 300 cyclists took part in the sixteenth annual Spring century run of the Century Road Club Association, New York Division, yesterday, from Columbus Circle to Hicksville, L. I., and return. The run was scheduled to finish at the point of start at 5 P. M., but, owing to the delay in running off the ten-mile race at Hicksville, it was nearly 6:30 before the advance guard reached Columbus Circle. Fully one-half of the riders were unattached and made their first appearance in a century run, and many of these did not report at the final checking station until late at night.

There were several spills during the run. A few miles outside of Hicksville A. Morgan, Century Road Club Association, broke a pedal and was thrown. Seven other riders came down as a result, all of whom escaped with a shaking-up. Morgan was badly cut on the forehead and face. Near Freeport an automobile tried to pass a number of riders, but hit several machines, smashing one and putting the rider out of the run.

Half an hour after the scheduled time the pleasure division, consisting of 155 riders, started from Columbus Circle on the first stretch of the run, to Floral Park, L. I. The riders started out at a good clip, and after crossing the Queensboro Bridge the Hoffman Boulevard was followed to Jamaica, where the pleasure division of Brooklyn joined the main body of cyclists. The second stop was Hicksville, and then the riders continued to Amityville, returning to Hicksville for dinner, covering fifty-six miles on schedule time, five minutes after the noon hour.

Meanwhile the Jersey City pleasure division had left Jersey City with 25 riders and joined the Olympic or fast division at Columbus Circle. The latter started at 8:45 A. M. with 65 riders. The course was the same as that of the pleasure division, and the Olympic riders reached Hicksville five minutes after the first party.

After dinner the route led to Oyster Bay and back to Jericho. With a lead of twenty minutes the combined pleasure divisions left for Bellmore to await the outcome of the 8-mile road race for riders entered in the Olympic division for the Pope trophy and other prizes. The race was won by Jerome Steinert, Atlas B. C., in 33 minutes 9 seconds.

The silver loving cup for the club with the largest representation went to the Crescent Bicycle Club of Baltimore. In all divisions there were 325 riders, of whom 285 qualified for the survivors medals. Among those who rode the century were the members of the New York-San Francisco team, Fred Scherer and Walter Wiley of the Caribou Club, and George McAdam and Ernest Higgins of the Century Road Club Association, who will start in their transcontinental handicap team race at 1 P. M., May 3 and 4, from the City Hall. The Caribou team will receive twenty-four hours' start. The result of the 8-mile race follows:

Name and Club.	Time. M. S.
Jerome Steinert, Atlas B. C.	33:09

FLYING BOATS IN CRUISE.

Eight of the New Craft Nominated for Great Lakes Event.

Eight flying boats to be piloted by the most famous aviators in the country, have been nominated to participate in the International Great Lakes Flying Boat Cruise, which starts from Chicago on July 8 and finishes at Detroit a few days later.

Following are the pilots who are to handle the air boats:

Thomas Benoist, Hugh Robinson, Tony Jannus, Frank Harriman, C. C. Witmer, Weldon B. Cooke, Max Lillie, F. B. R. Verplank. Glenn Curtiss will nominate another pilot within a week and six other starters are assured. Seven makes of craft are entered.

This cruise is the first event of the kind ever scheduled and promises to be far more pretentious than the air and water craft carnival now in progress at Monte Carlo.

The flying boat is the latest type of hydro aeroplane, a seaworthy boat replacing the frail pontoons which are impracticable in rough water. The new craft is capable of a speed of 55 or 60 miles an hour in the water and 65 to 80 miles an hour in the air. Two or three passengers may be carried, comfort during the trip being provided by a glass wind shield and upholstered seating compartment.

Twenty thousand dollars in prizes has been offered, and the event will be under the rules of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale.

Elaborate preparations are being made by different cities and resorts along the route for the reception and entertainment of the fliers. A lake steamer will follow the cruise and provide transportation and living accommodations for enthusiasts and officials.

New Record for Oldfield.

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., April 27.—Barney Oldfield lowered the world's one-mile dirt track automobile record to-day at the new $100,000 race track here. He circled the course, from a flying start, in 46 2-5 seconds. The former record was established at Brighton Beach Sept. 7, 1912, when Oldfield made the mile in 47 4-5 seconds.

KRAMER STAR AGAIN AT NEWARK TRACK

Champion Makes Great Finish in Feature Race—Riders in Big Spill.

Frank Kramer, king of all cycle sprinters, gave a wonderful exhibition of his specialty at the Newark Velodrome yesterday afternoon when he came from behind in the one-mile open professional race and led a high-class field across the finish line. Kramer had previously won his trial heat without any great exertion, but the final, against the best field of riders at the Newark track, called for all the resourcefulness and cycling knowledge of the American champion. He came through, however, with a wonderful sprint, passed out Alf Goullet on the stretch, and won by half a wheel's length. At the conclusion of the race Kramer got a reception fully as great as on last Sunday after equaling the track record in his race against time.

A half lap before the finish line was reached Kramer seemed to be pocketed in a position which would make victory impossible. Goullet, one of Kramer's leading rivals for the sprinting honors, was at the head of the field and cutting loose with all the speed at his command. Joe Fogler was tacked on Goullet's rear wheel, and it appeared that the race rested between these two riders. But Kramer found his way out of the pocket, finished up with one of those remarkable bursts of speed on which he holds the copyright, and carried off first prize. Goullet, Fogler, Grenda, and Fred Hill were the other prize winners, following Kramer across the finish line in the order named. Jackie Clarke was one of the starters in the final, but he sustained a punctured tire in the second lap and was forced to withdraw.

One of the biggest "spills," in point of numbers, that has ever occurred at the Newark track completely eliminated the back markers in the two-mile professional handicap. Fortunately, none of the riders was seriously injured, but no less than sixteen sustained bruises or cut. The five scratch men in the race—Kramer, Jackie Clarke, Goullet, Grenda, and Gogler—all went down, together with Lawrence, John Bedell, Menus Bedell, Jay Eaton, Fred Hill, Al Halstead, Al Triebel, Eddie Root, Gordon Walker, and several others. Lawrence sprained his left wrist, and Goullet, Grenda, Eaton, Hill, and Clarke sustained bad bruises and cuts. Goullet and Lawrence were unable to take part in the tandem race, which closed the programme, owing to this accident. The summaries:

One-Mile Novice, Amateur.—Won by Mark Leitch, East Orange, N. J.; Felix Cambria, New York, second. Time—2:35.

Two-thirds-Mile Handicap, Amateur.—Won by Raymond Eaton, Elizabeth, N. J., (40 yards;) Harry Kaiser, Acme Wheelmen, (15 yards,) second; Fred Weber, Record Wheelmen, (65 yards,) third; William Hanley, San Francisco, (60 yards,) fourth. Time—1:20 2-5.

One-Mile Open, Professional.—Won by Frank Kramer, East Orange, N. J.; Alfred Goullet, Australia, second; Joseph Fogler, Brooklyn, third; Alfred Grenda, Tasmania, fourth; Fred Hill, Boston, Mass., fifth. Time—2:07 2-5.

Two-Mile Invitation, Professional.—Won by Frank Cavanaugh, Newark; Dave Mackay, Newark, second; Ernest Jokus, Newark, third; Alfred Halstead, London, fourth; Anthony Manzo, Jersey City, fifth. Time—4:21 3-5.

Australian Pursuit Race, Amateur.—Won by Ernest Ohrt, San Francisco; Gus Wohlrab, Jersey City, second; Donald McDougall, Newark, third; Chester Smith, Baldwin, L. I., fourth. Time—8:25 3-5.

Two-Mile Handicap, Professional.—Won by Willie Coburn, East Orange, N. J., (200 yards;) Edward Rupprecht, Newark, N. J., (190 yards,) second; Alvin Loftus, Providence, R. I., (90 yards,) third; Jake Magin, Newark, (175 yards,) fourth; Patrick Hehir, Australia, (20 yards,) fifth. Time—3:59 2-5.

Three-Mile Tandem Race, Professional.—Won by Alfred Grenda, Tasmania, and Patrick Hehir, Australia; Joseph Fogler, Brooklyn, and Elmer Collins, Lynn, Mass., second; Ernest Pye, Australia, and Fred Hill, Boston, Mass., third; George Cameron, New York, and Gordon Walker, Australia, fourth. Time—6:19 1-5.

Crosby Takes Glencoe A. C. Run.

J. Crosby, a promising runner of Bronx Church House, was the winner yesterday of the regular weekly road run of the Glencoe A. C. over the ten-mile distance, with the route leading away from the club's quarters at Second Avenue and 126th Street. His time was 1:12:20, with the second man being timed in 1:14:05. J. Wagner and J. Anzalone, both of the Glencoe A. C., had a hard battle for second place, with the honors finally going to the men as named. The following will show the order of finish: J. Crosby, Bronx Church House; J. Wagner, Glencoe A. C.; J. Anzalone, Glencoe A. C.; L. Hojerson, Glencoe A. C.; J. Gleason, Glencoe A. C.; A. Franklin, Harlem Evening High School; F. Schach, unattached; J. J. Boylan, Harlem Evening High School; S. Thorner, Harlem Evening High School; J. Caponi, Xavier A. A.; T. Hannon, unattached; M. Strahl, Glencoe A. C.; R. Cohan, St. Patrick's Cathedral A. A., and J. Gannon, Dominican Lyceum.

Bowling Championships.

Elmer E. Dungan of Philadelphia, the new President of the National Bowling Association, will be in this city to-night and with W. H. Valentine, the chief executive of the local body, will formally open the third annual Metropolitan Championship Tournament in Thum's White Elephant Academy. There are 100 teams scheduled to bowl in the next two weeks with a proportionate entry in the doubles and singles. A year ago on the same drives the O. K. Club of Yonkers won the five-men title, Meyer and Buchholz the doubles, Harold Horton the singles and John Koster the all-around.

DRIVERS ON SPEEDWAY.

Light Harness Horses Receive First Workout of Season.

The Spring weather brought out a number of the members of the Road Drivers Association yesterday to the Speedway, who jogged their trotters and pacers. There were no brushes, as few of the horses are fit for hard work. It is, however, expected that the regular brushing season will start in about two weeks. Among the drivers noticed were: Joseph F. Gibbons, William Scott, Hugh Riley, I. V. Hunt, Lewis Smith, W. Grunfender, J. O'Connor, Edward Shoemaker, Walter Edelmeyer, and John Schmetz.

True Blues Defeat Tacony Team.

Playing their third game in the final round of the annual cup tie series of the American Football Association, after two tie games in Philadelphia, the True Blues of Paterson and the Tacony Football Club of Philadelphia at last reached a decision at Morris Park, in Newark, yesterday. The True Blues won by a score of 2 goals to 1, thereby succeeding the West Hudsons of Newark, who had been forced out of the competition by the Fall River Rovers, the latter in turn yielding to the Paterson cracks as title holders for the year 1913. It was one of the cleanest games of football that have ever been played in the series, though a certain number of fouls, always unintentional, were committed. Moreover, it was far from being a child's game, and many times were the players bowled over in the heat of the strife. Two had to leave the field temporarily to recuperate, but both, one from each team, resumed their places after a brief respite.

OUR NATIONAL RAILWAY SYSTEM

The decision of the Commerce Court sustaining a previous decision of the Inter-State Commerce Commission accords admirably with the popular mandate at the last election that there should be no privilege by National law. The tariff is being revised in order that capital shall not look to law for its profits by discrimination against those not favored by statute. This second decision in the Shreveport case establishes that there shall be no local profits by statutory discrimination against competitors.

The case was that, by operation of the Texas statutes, 60 cents would carry traffic within Texas 160 miles, but if the route began outside Texas the same money would carry traffic only 55 miles into Texas. Thus Texas traders had their market to themselves, for outsiders could not get into it any more than foreigners could get into American markets over the tariff barrier. The intent of the Texas railway rate was as clear as the intent of the tariff. Both were "protectionist," and both the Court and the Commission use that word to describe the working of the Texas railway rates.

What the people have overruled as matter of policy the Court and the Commission overrule as matter of law. It is not permitted that the various States should set up discriminations among themselves, and no more by railway rates than by tariffs. Any State assuming to favor its commerce by railway discrimination will be overruled by the Commission and will be sustained by the Court. The United States is a Nation, and it has a National railway system. If there were forty-eight State railway systems, each competing with the other, there would be such chaos, and such obstruction of inter-State commerce, that there would be a great impulse toward Government ownership as the only visible means of escape. That danger is escaped by the decision that the National regulation of rates takes precedence wherever they conflict, as they clearly conflicted in the Shreveport case.

The principle is admirable, but the application is difficult. The finding is that the Texas rates are reasonable in themselves, but discriminatory in their relation to each other. The discrimination must be ended, but which rate should be altered? Should the Texas rate be raised to the inter-State rate? Or should the inter-State rate be reduced to the Texas rate, which was itself fixed for the purpose of being lower than the inter-State rate? The Commission named as reasonable substantially the inter-State rate on traffic moving from Louisiana into Texas, but on the whole the equalization of the unequal rates is downward. It was well illustrated last week that unequal wages must be equalized upward. The Commission's finding that the Texas rates are not too low is final and surprising. But the equalization downward is checked here. Texas cannot again cut rates to protect Texas traders by discrimination in their favor. And Texas may not find its low rates on Texas traffic attractive if it is compelled to extend them to inter-State traffic, thus stimulating the outer competition which it sought to remove. Nevertheless this solution is odd. The Commission declared that National rates should take precedence, but it based the rates which it prescribed on the Texas schedule.

The substantial equality of the relation of the rates is agreeable, however procured, and it applies to many more cases than the one discussed. For example, the spokesman for Minnesota distinguishes between the Shreveport and the Minnesota case. The facts are different, but they will be controlled by the same principle. There no more can be forty-eight systems of valuation and an uncertain number of rates based on them than there can be conflicting orders of State commissions on our National railway system. It is not competent for one State to allow one rate of profit and another State another rate, or for different States to have different valuations on the same system serving them respectively. There must be unity in the control of our railways as a whole in inter-State commerce. This is settled none too soon, for in an unsuspected number of cases have the States assumed to take the lead of the Nation in regulating inter-State commerce. Alabama made a rate discriminatory against the Florida fish trade. Texas made a specific discrimination in favor of its oil trade and was checked by the Louisiana Commission as it now is checked by the Federal authorities. Wisconsin passed a pure food label statute which conflicted with the Federal statute.

In other words, in economics as in politics the United States is a Nation. The same Constitution which guarantees a republican form of government guarantees equality in domestic commerce carried on the railways.

A DUBIOUS EXPERIMENT.

If a seat in a theatre is worth $2, and a manager cannot make a fair profit if he sells it for less, clearly it is bad business to sell the seat for 50 cents under any circumstances. If, on the other hand, a manager can make more money by filling his house at 50 cents a seat than he can make by sticking to prevailing prices, he is wise to adopt the lower rate. The Chicago manager who intends to retain the high prices until half an hour before the curtain rises and then dispose of the left-over tickets at a cut rate seems to be trying to ride two horses at once and to be in danger of falling between them.

It is not surprising to learn that no New York manager approves the experiment. Obviously its outcome will be that if people want to go to that particular theatre they will not buy seats in advance, but will assail the box office at 7:30 o'clock. If they do not want to see the play offered the lower price will not tempt them. Whether or not it would be a good commercial expedient to lower the prices of theatre tickets is quite another question. Probably it would not avail if all managers did it while the present condition of overcompetition in theatricals exists. But in any case there should be one fixed charge for each theatre. The likeness of the Chicago plan to the old London custom of half price to the pit late in the evening is remote. In the days when that custom prevailed the performances began about 6 o'clock and lasted until nearly midnight, and three or four plays were acted nightly.

COMMERCE THE KEY.

The curious but not incredible story of the surrender of Scutari published by the Paris Temps and reported in our transatlantic dispatches yesterday morning adds another touch of complexity to the Balkan situation. If Essad Pasha, the Turkish commander, himself an Albanian, was allowed to transfer his army, with all its arms and ammunition, to a strong strategic position at Tirana, well within the proposed frontier of Albania, it may make the erection of an autonomous State a much harder task than had been expected. If an understanding exists between him and King Nicholas of Montenegro, they can show a considerable "nuisance value," and, after the style of Rumania, seek substantial "compensation" for refraining from mischief. But while they may change, to their own gain, the terms of the settlement agreed on in principle by the Powers, it is not likely that they can prevent that settlement.

Of course, there is always the risk that a sudden and unexpected change like this may arouse Austria to pass the line between the bluffing she has so frequently indulged in and aggressive action. That, according to Sir Edward Grey, was avoided, not long since, only by the agreement of the Powers as to Albania. But it is reasonable to infer that the future can be handled as the past was and that peace will be maintained. The glimpse of possibilities which the statesmen of Europe had as they stood on the very brink of a general conflict will, it may be hoped, tend to keep them well away from that dizzy and slippery verge. Nor is it beyond the range of expectation that, face to face with the reality of war, they may find a mode of dealing with conflicting interests that will not only avoid war but make fairly lasting peace practicable. Since no one Power or group of Powers can, without a clash, secure its own exclusive aims, it may be possible to combine to secure and develop the interests of all and to seek the advantage of each by promoting common advantage.

It is a curious fact that three of the great Powers of Europe, the greatest in territory and population, with steadily increasing resources and enterprise, are barred from free and safe access to the high seas. Russia has no port open the year round. Austria has only Trieste, on the Adriatic, with more or less precarious communication with the Mediterranean. Germany must send practically all her foreign commerce through the English Channel, which in the present condition of naval armaments might readily be closed by British fleets. Russia seeks a free passage from her Black Sea ports through the Dardanelles. Austria seeks more southern ports on the Adriatic and the Aegean. Germany for two decades has been strengthening her navy and shaping her diplomacy to enable her to command the passage of the English Channel and to wrest from Great Britain the control of the ocean. Great Britain—with the nervous system of its vast empire centred in the islands of the United Kingdom—has seen that control of the ocean is her vital and supreme need, and has made and is making tremendous efforts to retain it. The interests of all these nations are real, legitimate, lasting, and in the changing developments of events for at least a half century they have sought to advance them by force or the threat of force. As an inevitable result, Europe is divided into two great armed groups, the Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente—Germany, Austria, Italy, and Russia, France, Great Britain—and the peace of the world has depended on the fear of each group to attack the other.

Suddenly there has arisen in the extreme southeast of the Continent another group of nations, each relatively weak and poor, but shown to be very formidable in united action, gallant and effective fighters, capable of rivaling the great Powers in military organization, in planning and in carrying on campaigns. The European balance has been amazingly disturbed. Turkey, the one active element in all calculations for the Near East, has been wiped out. The chancelleries have been immensely puzzled. Germany has treated the situation as one practically of war, and is strengthening her army and navy as if "the enemy were at the gates." France has followed Germany's example. Austria has threatened actual aggression. Only the relative unreadiness of Russia and the singularly wise and calm policy of England have prevented a "conflagration."

In this anxious and uncertain crisis, when each of the great Powers trembles for its special interests, we believe that it may be possible to replace the contention as to special interests by a policy of united promotion of all interests. If Constantinople and Salonika were made free ports; if Russia had her access to the sea; if all the Balkan States and Greece were united in a zollverein, with provision for order and for development throughout the peninsula, the immediate sources of peril in the Near East would be removed. A like policy on a broader scale would not be impracticable for the larger European interests. Germany and Great Britain could with advantage to both reach an agreement as to German expansion in Africa and the peaceful passage of the English Channel. Austria would have her access to the southeast not by force of arms but through an orderly and gradually prospering land. In the spirit of cooperation and joint effort for the true interests of each the whole of Europe could be transformed from two great armed camps to a congeries of peaceful and progressive nations, each steadfastly and naturally developing its resources. We do not deny that it is an idealistic solution of vexed and difficult problems. But there never was a time when it could be undertaken with more reasonable prospect of practical success.

A REAL ESTATE CANARD.

The report that Mexico is about to sell a large part of its northern territory, through the agency of a banking firm, to the United States Government is so foolish that it scarcely requires serious denial. Yet the indignation of Mr. Sobral, the Consul General of Mexico in New York, is justifiable, and his characterization of the tale, in a letter to The New York Times, as "preposterous and absurd beyond expression" denotes the feelings of reasonable Americans as well as Mexicans.

The implied insult to Mexican national pride is obvious. But the implied insult to American intelligence is not less reprehensible. We have trouble and expense enough to keep order on our frontier now. Fancy what would happen if we moved that frontier 500 miles or so southward and took over a vast territory, mostly undeveloped, largely mountainous, and mostly peopled by armed outlaws who hate us almost as much as they hate their own rulers, whoever they may be. Before the civil war there used to be much talk of the cession of Lower California to the United States, for a consideration, but we have got along very well without it, and it is difficult to say just what we would do with it.

MRS. PANKHURST.

London Truth's estimate of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst's ability as a stateswoman, a manipulator, and a mob leader is highly flattering to that lady, but it will not be generally accepted. Truth assumes that Mrs. Pankhurst has no idea of permitting the women of Great Britain who want to vote to secure that privilege, as in that case she would lose a profitable job. The same thing used to be said of the Irish Nationalists in the British Parliament, that they really were not anxious to get home rule for Ireland, as they got their living by agitating for it. That charge was not true, and neither is the charge against Mrs. Pankhurst.

To be sure, her tactics are repellent to Mrs. Fawcett and other suffragists of that type, but so were the methods of Robespierre and Marat repellent to Danton and the Girondins. Mrs. Pankhurst is obviously a hysterical woman of violent temper whose theatrical methods are not governed by cold reason. Her attacks on men like Sir Edward Grey, the late Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, and Winston Churchill, all supposed to look favorably on suffrage for women, were made because they would not obey the commands of the Pankhurst contingent, wherefore their sincerity was doubted. All of the militants frequently act like mad-women, but there is no doubt that they all want to vote and firmly believe that they will eventually get the right to vote by abusing and scaring the whole British Nation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Ready at Last to Learn.

Rivaling in importance, perhaps, the practical benefits that can confidently be expected to result from the studies of European agriculture to be made by the hundred Commissioners who started across the sea on Saturday, is the proof which the sending of these men on this errand gives of the abandonment, late, but not too late, by Americans of the belief, hitherto far too common, that we have nothing worth while to learn on any subject from "abroad."

In the appointment of the Permanent Commission, in which Canada has joined with the United States, and our several States with the Federal Government, a wise and modest attitude was taken. It has come to be rather generally realized of late, thanks to the alarming rise in the cost of living, that something serious was the matter here, especially with our farming operations, and without the accustomed resentment people all over the country have heard the suggestion that it would be well to find out what has been done, and how, by other nations, confronted earlier than ourselves by the same problem.

It is not that our agricultural methods were bad while the conditions to which they were adapted existed; the trouble is that too many of our farmers cling to those methods now, when it is no longer possible to move from old to new land as soon as the natural fertility—the accumulated plant food—ot the former has been exhausted. Under farming worthy of the name and distinguishable from mining, the crop-raising capacity of land increases instead of diminishing as the years go on. We have lacked neither the intelligence nor the capital required for scientific agriculture, but until recently the country as a whole has not been compelled to expend either in this direction. The more enterprising land exploiters simply moved West and became fatuously proud of great ranches on which the yield per acre was disgracefully small, while the duller remainder stuck where they were and to their Colonial habits, till they were driven off the land altogether.

Hence the deserted farms of New England, though the nearness of those farms to the best of markets far more than makes up for their apparent sterility.

Closing In Slowly on the Enemy.

Confessing to a natural, but perhaps unnecessary, discouragement, the New York Medical Record notes the fact that Czerny, the eminent Heidelberg pathologist, in a recent semi-popular lecture delivered before the Urania Society of Berlin, was able, after forty years devoted largely to the study of cancer, to discuss the present status of the problem only in vague and general terms, "without re-"vealing a single new fact or even the "suggestion of one."

The Record's summary of the lecture perhaps justifies this lament to some extent, but Czerny himself, while offering nothing as certainly better than the timely knife as a weapon against this dread malady, did claim that knowledge of it was advancing, and the tone of his remarks was not hopeless. He dwelt, as important, on the discovery that inoculable cancer virus can pass through a bacteria-tight filter and treated as an established probability the view that several micro-organisms are able to secrete a toxin that can start the disease. He mentioned, too, the possibility, deduced from analogy, that an ultra-microscopic organism may transmit cancer through sensible parasites. He maintained that bad cases can be improved, and others, though inoperable, even be cured by intensive and prolonged therapy already available.

All this is in direct harmony with the conclusions reached by American investigators, and while the desired specific may not be, as some of them think, in sight, there is reason to expect results when the scientists of so many lands are so obviously coming to something like an agreement as to what cancer is and as to where its cure is to be looked for. In no country more than here is there a chance of speedily attaining success in the performance of the great task, for nowhere are the workers at it more competent and the facilities with which some of them have been provided by our generous millionaires are unequaled by any in Europe.

Perhaps He Slightly Exaggerates.

Californian sentiment as expressed by its newspapers, is by no means unanimously against the Japanese or apprehensive of what the little brown men will do to the State if not deprived of the right to own land. The most vehement of their friends, or at any rate the most earnest antagonist of their enemies, seems to be The Los Angeles Times.

That paper prints, with all the emphasis that position and type can give, an appeal to "the amazing State Legislature at Sacramento"—an appeal which it heads with the frank and simple request of "Go home, for God's "sake, go home!" It wants the lawmakers to do this at once, and says that they cannot remain where they are "without bankrupting the State, de-"stroying its credit, closing up its fac-"tories, ruining its farmers, depriving "its workers of their jobs, pensioning "mothers-in-law, involving the Nation "in a war with Japan, and making of "California an object of derision from "Bangor to New Orleans, a place from "which investors shall flee as from the "wrath to come."

Appalled by the disasters it prophesies, The Times "almost" wishes for a second Cromwell to march his soldiers into the Capitol at Sacramento and say to the "progressive" Senators and Assemblymen, "Disperse, ye villains, disperse!"

With Gov. Johnson to organize resistance to such an order, the second Cromwell might find its enforcement of greater difficulty than did the first, but nobody in whom the sporting instinct is at all developed can fail to realize that the suggested attempt at dispersal would be an exciting and therefore enjoyable spectacle—if observed from a safe distance.

SUFFRAGE IN CALIFORNIA.

Mayor of Berkeley Rebukes Apathy of Women Voters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I note with interest the statements of Miss Alice Hill Chittenden in her letter to The Times from Los Angeles.

She speaks of the extreme apathy of the women voters of that city and Pasadena at the recent bond elections.

A bond election was held here in Berkeley also last Saturday. There were three proposals submitted to the voters, one of which was bonding for playgrounds.

In an interview in the local papers of April 14 the Mayor, who has been a zealous advocate and lecturer for suffrage, says:

> There is mob violence in some countries and strident oratory elsewhere on behalf of votes for women. Here in California we have woman suffrage, and Berkeley is one of the star centres of that movement. Surely adequate playground facilities for 7,000 children is a subject for woman's thought and vote, and yet, out of 8,000 women voters, only about 1,500 of them cared enough to vote on this important subject.
>
> Where were the mothers?

CHEAPER WOOL SUITS.

Removal of Duty May Save Consumer $1.12.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A correspondent in The Times asks "How much less will we have to pay for an ordinary $25 suit of clothes than at present if wool is placed on the free list, and the ultimate consumer reaps the entire benefit?"

The duty on clothing wool in the grease is 11 cents per pound; allowing for an average shrinkage of 60 per cent., the duty on a scoured pound of wool would be about 27½ cents. The cloth in an average suit of medium weight weighs about sixteen ounces a yard, and allowing for shrinkage in manufacturing, would consume about 19 ounces of wool per yard of cloth; three and one-quarter yards being used for a suit, the total weight of the suit would be 61¾ ounces, or nearly 4 pounds of scoured wool, at 27½ cents a pound, or $1.12. This represents the actual saving if the consumer reaped the entire benefit of free wool. The effect of a reduction in the tariff has usually been an increase in the price abroad, so it is very doubtful if the consumer would enjoy the full reduction as shown. C. J. B.

CARTRIDGE TAX OPPOSED.

Stringent Laws and Heavy Fines Would Protect Wild Game.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I firmly contend that it would be an injustice to a large number of hunters, myself included, to put a tax on cartridges and shells because there are a lot of brainless "sportsmen" who shoot valuable birds just for the "satisfaction" of killing something, when their efforts at obtaining game seem fruitless. What is needed is a law that will be more strict than the present one. What do these low-rate hunters care for the law, when they can kill innumerable birds with small chances of anybody saying a word against such actions?

We want a law that will impose a heavier fine, and more game wardens to enforce the law. The expense of more wardens will be trivial compared to the money saved to the farmers by the maintenance of a good supply of insect eating birds. Also, I believe that if we could make an effort to rid the country to a large extent of that obnoxious class of birds, the English sparrow, that we would find in time an increase in the population of the more desirable songsters and insect enemies. A Dangerous Crossing.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The attention of the proper department of the city is respectfully called to traffic regulations now existing at the crossings of 124th Street, St. Nicholas Avenue, and Manhattan Avenue, where these three streets intersect. This is rapidly becoming one of the most dangerous crossings in Harlem, especially so since St. Nicholas Avenue is being used for a speedway for automobiles.

During the early morning hours school children cross that section by the hundreds and during the day vehicles of all descriptions become more numerous, and at night it is positively perilous.

It is suggested, therefore, that this point be divided off with ropes and at night with green lanterns, as at other downtown sections. HORACE G. SETTLE.

Warning Against Pickpockets.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Hurrying to the express desk in the Grand Central Concourse, wallet in hand, I extracted a bill and replaced wallet in hip pocket. Finishing my business, I was surprised by stumbling over a suitcase placed directly behind me, and, recoiling from this, I bumped into a man who barred the only other avenue of escape. Being athletic and very much heavier than I appear, I kicked away the suitcase and knocked the other party out of the way instead of obligingly falling, which would have allowed them to assist me to my feet—and pick my pocket. Surprised at their failure, the two men rapidly disappeared in opposite directions, evidently having no legitimate business there, while the express clerk stood in open-mouthed wonder. RESIDENT.

"Clean-Ups" by Women.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To some extent The Times deprecates the methods of the women in a certain township who recently, after repeated appeals to the Board of Health, took matters into their own hands and "cleaned up" the town. Will The Times explain what other recourse these women had, not having the ballot? They had used "indirect influence" and were refused the chance to exercise direct influence.

Can any one doubt that if the women had had the vote in that township their remonstrances with the Board of Health would have been more effective, because back of remonstrance they would have held the power of the ballot? A SUFFRAGIST.

Miss Wilson Against Suffrage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I observe an article entitled "Miss Wilson Against the Vote" in a recent issue of The Times. In all probability Miss Wilson voices the sentiments of her father and mother, as well as her own. What a pity that the Wilson family, instead of maintaining a position "upon the fence" regarding the feminine franchise issue, did not put themselves upon record in a straightforward way before the election.

Carnegie Hall to be Redecorated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I beg to respond to the letters of Miss Woodbridge and Mr. Hotchkiss relative to "Dusty Carnegie Hall" by saying that the redecoration of the hall and a series of renovations have been ordered and actually commenced.

It is to be hoped that when they are completed there will be nothing more to complain of. WILLIAM B. TUTHILL.

GUILTY CHAUFFEURS.

Severe Penalty Urged for Those Who Flee from Arrest.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In The Times recently appeared a graphic account of the capture, after a long and exciting chase, of an automobile which had run down and maimed, perhaps fatally, three women, and then had put on extra speed in order to escape consequences. The capture of some of the miscreants responsible for this outrage is certainly gratifying, especially as success in this line of police protection is so rare because of its inherent difficulties, and the brave officer who pursued the fleeing car so persistently, and evidently with no small risk to himself, deserves the hearty congratulations of an auto-ridden public. In this connection it may not be out of place to ask why a police officer pursuing a fleeing auto which has run down some innocent victim should confine his efforts to a generally futile endeavor to perforate with pistol shots the tires of the machine. In the first place, it is to many a matter of doubt that a pistol shot, however well directed, can really puncture the tough, resilient tire of an automobile. But be that as it may, it seems to me that shots fired at the body of a machine even with the implied possibility of fatal consequences would be far more efficacious in procuring the desired result, and would be perfectly justified in circumstances like those narrated.

As I understand our present laws relative to such matters, a policeman is justified in shooting directly at a fleeing burglar who, after having been called to halt, refuses to submit to arrest. Now, in the opinion of not a few laymen like myself, the guilt of such a burglar is far less than that of the dastardly chauffeur who puts on extra speed after running over and probably killing some poor pedestrian. In the case under consideration—and unfortunately there are many such—the chauffeur was arrested, but one of the occupants of the car made his escape and the other, after having been brought to the police station, was allowed to go Scot free! Such leniency seems preposterous, for no one is silly enough to believe that in such an episode all the responsibility rests with the chauffeur. Evidently his cowardly flight was encouraged by the occupants of the car, to say nothing of the reported throwing of a "rubber shoe" by the latter at an official who attempted to stop the machine. Doubtless nothing more will be heard of the case. The chauffeur may receive a reprimand from the trial Judge, and possibly his license may be revoked!

Is it possible that the frequency of these outrages has blunted the public conscience and made it indifferent? Does the "Callan law" provide any adequate punishment for the miscreant who speeds away after running down some innocent victim? To the credit of our railroad system let it be said that in case of such an accident the train is stopped, the officials take account of the facts and bring the dead and injured to the nearest point where relief may be obtained.

DINING CAR WAITERS

Work from 14 to 20 Hours at Little Pay.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a negro, born in New York, and waiting is one of the few vocations open to me. I am employed on a railroad dining car at $26.50 per month; $25 per month is the regular wage, but on account of being an old employe I am entitled to an extra 6 per cent., making it $26.50 per month. I work from 14 to 20 hours every day in the month to obtain this amount and sometimes longer, when trains are late for various causes and we are compelled to "dead head" during the night to meet the delayed train. If we were paid by the hour or the trip that would not be done.

Very often I am on my feet for two days and a night, with such sleep as I can obtain on a chair with a tablecloth for a pillow; yet I'm expected to be polite and agreeable to a trainload of people who have had a full night's sleep and are very grouchy. And let me say here that an American breakfast is the hardest meal in the world to serve anywhere.

After being out on the road four or five days we are often doubled out again for the same length of time without a chance to go home and change our linen and bathe. We carry no extra clothing except a few collars and handkerchiefs. Conditions on the dining cars instead of growing better seem to grow worse.

Every month each one of use is docked from $2 to $5 apiece for short or broken equipment. Perhaps if we were organized the companies would not demand our last ounce of endurance. But who ever heard of colored men being banded together like their white brethren?

I would also suggest that the sanitary officer inspect dining cars that carry bedding, if not for our sake, for their own.

Practical Park Head Needed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We must soon have a new Park Commissioner, and in my judgment it behooves the city to put a man in charge who doesn't know what art or landscape gardening is, but who is a practical man who knows what kind of men to have around him to make the parks exactly what they should be from the art and landscape point of view, and who further knows how to make them that way. With such a man in general charge, and every subordinate place filled with competent men who know their part of the business of park perpetuating and protecting, there will not be anybody to meddle with matters they know nothing about and trying to convert impossible dreams into available propositions.

The city has over a billion dollars represented in its parks, and certainly no visionary should be placed in control of such a vast amount of property, nor should any man be put there who thinks he is able to handle it without the unhampered assistance of men who are his superiors in the details of their special departments. We want a great, big man to handle our parks, and if we ever get one we want to keep him there despite Mayors or any other conflicting political reasons. L.

How to Make Coffee.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Soyer, the famous chef, used to make coffee by immersing the not too finely ground bean in cold water and stirring it until it came to a boiling point. A tablespoon of cold water was then dashed into the saucepan and the result was delectable. I have tried it and know. R.

New York, April 24, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The processes of making may be virulently criticised, but the fact that stands out above all others is that, however made, coffee "gets by." It might be regarded in the light of the sailors' opinion, which declared of one other beverage that "all whisky is good whisky, only some whisky is better than others."

Perhaps some day the process of making will be standardized, and if this should come to pass there will probably be found the little filter disk, which one of your correspondents described, prominently in use. That little paper disk, so essential in every chemical laboratory, is a practical thing in the humblest kitchen. It does for coffee the combined duty of the boil and the brew by holding back and concentrating in the "drip" all that is delightful in a man's best drink. H. M. H.

LABOR'S EXEMPTION BILL

Treason or Cowardice, or Both, Writes Mr. Kirby.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The officials of the American Federation of Labor have persistently endeavored for the past sixteen years to coerce Congress into enacting laws to remove from the courts the power to issue injunctions in labor disputes. The purpose of its measures, and the only purpose, was to give rioters and "sluggers" permission to enforce the demands of labor unions through violent and destructive methods. In the Sixty-second Congress these efforts were crystallized in the Clayton Anti-Injunction and Contempt bills, the latter providing that trial for contempt, in labor disputes, should be by jury instead of by court against which the contempt is committed, thus making an injunction practically useless and the potency of a court of equity a subject of ridicule. Failing in this effort, and at the eleventh hour, a rider was tacked on to the Sundry Civil bill, carrying appropriations to the amount of $116,000,000. The "rider" provided that no portion of the $300,000 appropriation for the enforcement of the Sherman act should be used in:

> The prosecution of any organization or individual for entering into any combination or agreement having in view the increasing of wages, shortening of hours, or bettering the conditions of labor, or for any act done in furtherance thereof not in itself unlawful; provided, further, that no part of this appropriation shall be expended for the prosecution of producers of farm products and associations of farmers who co-operate and organize in an effort to and for the purpose to obtain and maintain a fair and reasonable price for their products.

The bill passed both houses, was promptly vetoed by President Taft, passed over his veto in the House, but failed in the Senate because of a filibuster which prevented its consideration until the hour of adjournment; and thus President Taft killed the measure and held up the appropriations.

The bill has been reintroduced in the present Congress and if it passes the House and Senate, containing the obnoxious "rider," President Wilson will get the opportunity of choosing between a fundamental principle of Government and political expediency. In giving his reason for vetoing this important measure, in which the interest of many Congressmen and Senators was centred, Mr. Taft expressed himself as follows:

> This provision is class legislation of the most vicious sort. If it were enacted as substantive law and not merely as a qualification upon the use of moneys appropriated for the enforcement of the law, no one, I take it, would doubt its unconstitutionality. * * *

The proviso is subtly worded, so as in a measure to conceal its full effect, by providing that no part of the money appropriated shall be spent in the prosecution of any organization or individual "for entering into any combination or agreement having in view the increasing of wages, shortening of hours, or bettering the conditions of labor," and so forth. So that any organization formed with the beneficent purpose described in the proviso might later engage in a conspiracy to destroy by force, violence, or unfair means any employer or employe who failed to conform to its requirements; and yet, because of its originally avowed lawful purpose, it would be exempt from prosecution, so far as prosecution depended upon the moneys appropriated by this act, no matter how wicked, how cruel, how deliberate the acts of which it was guilty.

Is not supporting such legislation as President Taft vetoed either treason or cowardice, or both?

SCHOOL ATHLETIC MEET.

Condemned as a Useless Display Undertaken for Advertising.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Times's editorial articles concerning the use of Central Park for the mammoth athletic meet to take place some time in June bring up a few thoughts in relation to the subject itself. First, can any one honestly tell what is the purpose of the proposed public exhibition of 10,000 school children who are scheduled to perform, and the thousands who will be spectators? There is absolutely no good reason as an excuse for the tremendous event, save that some one wants to get some free advertising as a result of the ceaseless efforts of the elementary school teachers. From our past experience we must impress the fact that the preparation for such an event by hundreds of schools causes an unwholesome laxity to creep into the regular classroom work, and produces a generally chaotic atmosphere. Does Dr. Crampton, the director of physical training, realize this state of affairs? Why, therefore, the athletic carnival?

It cannot be said truthfully that the children's welfare demands it. During May and June there are hundreds of interclass, interschool, interdistrict, and interborough meets. Wherefore impose upon the teachers the tremendous task of preparing and caring for nearly 50,000 children? In their enthusiasm many overlook the possibility that accidents might happen; and then who will be held responsible? Probably the teacher. Why, therefore, the athletic carnival? QUEST.

Cube Root of Whole Numbers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I'm afraid that the unintentional omission of a most important point in my letter on "Mental Cube Root" will be the innocent cause of The Times being deluged with a batch of letters from tyros in mathematics, mathematical experts, and quasi-lightning calculators from all over the country, endeavoring to prove that the method given by me for the mental extraction of a cube root, won't work in all cases. This was sought to be avoided, when in the original communication to The Times I wrote: "To illustrate, if you will give me a perfect cube I will tell you immediately what the cube root of it is."

This is all M. Quinton, the French technician, claimed he could do when he announced on April 4 last, before mathematical experts from the Sorbonne, "that he had found" a new rule for finding the cube root of a number by mental arithmetic.

Subway Excavation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your article in last Sunday's Times on Subway construction is rather misleading in reference to pipes carried on overhead trestles along the lines of new subway work. The only pipes carried temporarily above the street surface or on trestles are gas mains, all other pipes and sewers being supported on timbers or beams below the street surface. Placing gas mains in such a position that they are exposed to the open air outside of the covered excavations is the only safe method in which they can be taken care of during subway construction.

THE ROBIN.

The corner grocery is full
Of seeds in packets gay,
The hardware stores a tempting line
Of watering pots display;
The kids upon their roller skates
Go swiftly skidding by,
And little, unexpected showers
Drop softly from the sky.

The bumblebee is booming now;
The fly is on the wing;
The grass is green in Central Park,
The surest sign of Spring.
New fashions in the peek-a-boo
The lady typists don,
But still the robin wisely keeps
His old red flannels on.

TO IMPROVE THE RACE

Examinations for First Prize Contests Now Being Held in Lenox Hill House.

Some of the problems involved in the scientific campaign undertaken by medical experts for the standardization of the American child, through which it is expected that a superior race will be built up in future generations, are made public to-day by the New York Milk Committee, which has already done effective work for the conservation of child life through its establishment of the present system of milk stations and prenatal work and its National standardization of the milk supply. Health departments and leading experts in many States have already joined in the movement, and it is intended to make the work embrace every important section of the country.

In carrying out tests and measurements, 100,000 children will be examined throughout the country. Results will be obtained through a series of competitive examinations of normally healthy children in county, city, and State contests. On score cards furnished by the committee will be entered the weight, height, physical measurements, condition, and mental development, following examinations by physicians. Within one year, it is hoped, the standard of America's normally healthy child will be established beyond dispute. Moreover, the medical authorities will have learned valuable facts about prenatal influences, food, environment, habits, and conditions.

Examinations for the first of the contests, now being held in the Lenox Hill House, 446 East Seventy-second Street, will include an exhibition and awarding of prizes next week. Not only will prizes be awarded to the best developed babies in different age groups, but there will be prizes offered to the losers; that is, the baby who fails to get a prize now, but who shows the best progress along health lines in the following six months, will receive a prize in the Fall.

In connection with the start of the work special efforts will be made to instruct the mothers in the methods of improving their babies' health. Racial rivalry will also figure in the contests, conditions being considered in judging the children not only to determine the dominant race but also the varying standards of the different races under consideration. One of the committee's medical men yesterday said:

"For two generations specialists in children's diseases have endeavored to secure standards by which normal children could be judged before they reached school age, but these efforts have been handicapped by certain physical and social conditions. After a normally healthy infant passes through the dangers incident to birth and teething it rarely undergoes medical examination until it enters public school, where it passes under the observation of a municipal physician. Generally speaking, therefore, the medical profession loses track of the normal child's development from early infancy to school age.

"During that time small defects, scarcely noticeable to the parental or lay mind, can develop to lower the child's physical and mental standards, and still not place it in the abnormal class. Such small defects militate against the child's efficiency in later years. They will be discovered under the new standardization process.

"In addition to establishing standards for the children in the various foreign quarters of the population, it will also show the results of intermarriage between the nationalities and the effects of systematized medical and social work in the quarters of the foreign population.

"As an example of the method of the work now under way in the various States, in Oregon the work was commenced by the State Fair officials. Normal babies in Oregon proved to be six months in advance of the standards in both mental and physical development. For the babies' contest at Portland, Ore., this fall, $1,000 has been appropriated. Twenty thousand school children have been enlisted in the work by their teachers, and they will induce their parents and others to enter children 3 years old and less.

"In North Carolina the work will be carried on by the Hook Worm Commission, where better baby contests will be held as part of the campaign against the dreaded worm. Social workers will conduct the contests in Massachusetts, and the first will take place in Fall River, among the babies of the factory workers. Louisiana, Missouri, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Montana, Washington, where $1,000 in prizes will be given, Iowa, and Minnesota, are some of the States planning for the scientific work."

There is no limit to the number of entries for the present contest here. Every mother who presents her baby will be received. So popular has the contest become here that the examinations will be continued to-day, and probably to Wednesday.

Next week a child welfare exhibit will be held in Lenox Hill House, and every afternoon there will be talks to mothers on "Better Babies, Health and Hygiene," by physicians who conduct the examinations. On May 10 at 3 P. M. prizes amounting to $100 will be awarded. A child scoring between 80 and 90 per cent. in the first contest and showing the greatest improvement in the ensuing six months will receive a special prize of $15, and the next will get $10.

Next fall the high scoring babies will be exhibited in a final city contest, which will probably be held in one of the armories, and city prizes will be given. Some of the physicians engaged in the work here are Drs. Roger H. Dennett, Marshall C. Pease, Alice F. Leader, Anna I. Von Sholly, M. Alice Asserson, Kerome Zuckerman, Anna Kubista, Elinor Van Buskirk, Randel Hoyt, Lee W. Thomas, Maurice Komp, Harold Barnes, G. L. Sobey, J. W. Ferry and H. J. Schrieber.

PRESIDENT ENJOYS CRUISE.

Rested and Refreshed on His Return from Potomac River Trip.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—President Wilson returned to-night from his cruise down the Potomac River aboard the Sylph, feeling rested and much invigorated.

The Sylph went yesterday to the mouth of the Potomac, ninety miles below Washington, and then returned as far as St. Mary's, Md., where she anchored for the night. The President and his companions—his daughter, Miss Eleanor and Surgeon Grayson—did not go ashore. At 11 o'clock this morning the yacht steamed slowly up the river to the Washington Navy Yard, where she arrived at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

ZIMBALIST PLAYS FOR BIG AUDIENCE

Violinist's Farewell Appearance for the Season Packs Carnegie Hall.

THE WAGNER CENTENNIAL

Schumann-Heink and Chorus of 1,000 German Singers Heard at the Hippodrome.

Considering the fact that the music season is supposed to be over, there was an unusually large number of concerts yesterday, and the attendance at all was good. Carnegie Hall, for instance, held one of the largest audiences in its history at the concert given under the auspices of the Van Hugo Society of Brooklyn by Efrem Zimbalist, the Russian violinist. There were more than 500 people on the stage, grouped back of the violinist, and in the middle of the evening a photograph was taken of the assemblage.

It was Mr. Zimbalist's last appearance in New York this year, and the programme was evidently chosen to make a popular appeal. After the Handel sonata for violin and piano in E major, which he played in association with Sam Chotzinoff at the beginning of the evening, the violinist devoted himself to more or less trivial selections. The second group included an air of Goldmark's, A. Reiser's "Quasi Ballata" and York Bowen's "Humoresque." In the third group were Rawlins Cottenet's "Chanson Meditation," and two pieces by Kreisler, the "Caprice Viennois," which has been played here already this season by Kreisler, Ysaye, and Elman, and the "Liebesfreud," Viennese waltz.

The last group included Tschaikowsky's "Serenade Melancholique," Tor-Aulin's "Humoresque," Zimbalist's Hebrew "Melody and Dance" and "Neapolitan," arrangements of Chopin's E flat nocturne and "minute waltz," a Hungarian dance by Brahms, and Paganini's "Witches' Dance." The nobility of Mr. Zimbalist's tone and style were finely displayed in the Handel sonata, and, of course, he played the other numbers exceedingly well.

At the Hippodrome another very large audience expected to hear Mayor Gaynor speak, and was disappointed. The occasion was a concert for the centennial of Wagner's birth by the United German Singers of New York, for the benefit of the German Teachers' Seminary of Milwaukee.

The programme was entirely devoted to compositions by Wagner and included "The Holy Supper of the Apostles," which, if not a novelty here, might almost be considered as such. Wagner became leader of the Liedertafel in Dresden, a choir of male voices, established in 1839, and was chosen conductor for the "Männergesangfest," which took place in July, 1843. It was for this that he wrote "Das Liebesmahl der Apostel eine biblisches Scene." This work requires three separate choirs of male voices, which begin a cappella and are ultimately supported by the full orchestra. Last night a special chorus of 300 voices was chosen to sing the work, which closed the programme.

The programme also included the Overture to "Rienzi," the Pilgrim's Chorus from "Tannhäuser," the Vorspiel and introduction to the third act of "Lohengrin," the chorus of the Messengers of Peace from "Rienzi," the Spinning Song from "The Flying Dutchman," the Battle Hymn from "Rienzi," Siegfried's Rhine Journey from "Götterdämmerung," and "Hail, Bright Abode," from "Tannhäuser." Mme. Schumann-Heink was the soloist. She sang the Erda scene from "Das Rheingold," "Träume," and the air, "Gerechter Gott," from "Rienzi." It was while she was singing this latter number that the danger of the orchestra completely breaking down seemed imminent, but the experience of the singer and the indomitable perseverance of the concertmeister saved the day. The contralto was in good voice and she sang with fine style. She added several numbers with piano accompaniment.

The chorus included more than 1,000 voices, being a combination of the various German singing societies in New York. The orchestra was composed of "members of the Philharmonic Society." The conductors were Frederick Albeke and Carl Hein.

The programme announced that Mayor Gaynor would make a speech. He sat in a box throughout the evening, but it was announced that he was too hoarse to speak.

At Aeolian Hall, under the auspices of the Gaelic Society, Thomas Egan, announced as an Irish Grand Opera tenor, gave a concert and made a good impression. He was assisted by Mme. Lilian Breton, soprano; Miss Mildred Dilling, harpist; John Riley Rebarer, pianist, and Bernard O'Donnell, organist.

At the Hotel Astor in the afternoon, Gregory Besrody, violinist, gave a concert, assisted by Paul Jelenek, pianist.

LONGACRE THEATRE READY.

"Are You a Crook?" at Newest Playhouse on Thursday.

The latest addition to the list of New York playhouses is to be be made on Thursday evening, when H. H. Frazee opens his Longacre Theatre in Forty-eighth Street, just west of Broadway. The opening attraction will be a farce called "Are You a Crook?" by William J. Hurlbut and Frances Whitehouse, which is described as a satire on the present vogue of the "crook" play.

For the exterior of the new playhouse the late Georgian style of architecture has been followed. The main facade is of gray limestone and terra cotta. The lobby is treated in gray-green tones, with the addition of gold and serpentine marble. The auditorium is on the "intimate" plan, and has an orchestra floor, a balcony, and a gallery. The predominating colors are Roman gold, topaz, with wistaria and gold draperies. The carpets throughout the theatre are in topaz tones, and the seats are covered with wistaria plush. The ceiling, which is in light relief, is a warm cream tone.

The decorations are of simple design. The proscenium arch is a wide frame of old gold and breccia violet marble, perfectly square. Over the proscenuim opening is a frieze in bas-relief.

Back of the curtain the stage is of the most modern type. The dressing room wing is entirely isolated from the rest of the building, and each room has outside ventilation. There is practically no inflammable material in the building, which has been constructed of steel, reinforced concrete, terra cotta, stone, and brick.

The stage has a width of nearly 70 feet and a depth of 46 feet. The balcony and gallery, while they communicate with the main auditorium, also have separate exits for use in necessity. Above the theatre is a floor of offices, in which the general offices of H. H. Frazee will be located.

LAMBS LADIES' GAMBOL.

Public Auction of Seats at Hudson Theatre on Thursday.

The Lambs annual ladies' gambol for this year is announced for Friday afternoon, May 9, at the Metropolitan Opera House. There will be an auction of seats in the Hudson Theatre on Thursday afternoon next. The auctioneers will include De Wolf Hopper, Fred Stone, David Montgomery, William Norris, Julian Eltinge, and Joseph R. Grismer.

For the gambol programme Victor Herbert and George V. Hobart have written a "grand comic opera" entitled "The Village Blacksmith." "The Broadway Belles," a light musical skit by Raymond Hubbell and Robert H. Burnside, will introduce an all-star cast, with several members of the club in modish feminine costume as the "belles." A serious note is struck in a new one-act play by Eugene Presbrey, entitled "The Reckoning." Two other numbers are "Even in the Wilderness," a romantic episode by Clay M. Greene, and "The Green Beetle," a Chinese fantasy by John Willard, both enlisting someof the best known actors in New York. Between each of the playlets will be individual acts by De Wolf Hopper, Montgomery and Stone, J. Clarence Harvey, and Nat. M Wills.

The remarkable programme will close with a Lambs' Club sketch written by Raymond Peck and George V. Hobart entitled "A Wolf in the Fold."

SHAKESPEARE SERVICE.

Birthday Tribute to Poet at the Church of the Ascension.

The anniversary of the birth of Shakespeare, April 23, was made the occasion for a memorial service last night at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street, by the Actors' Church Alliance. Ben Greet deprecated the fact that in New York the great playwright's birthday had been allowed to pass without recognition of a memorial character, and urged that in the future care be taken by the theatre folk to look to its observance.

In the course of an analysis of Shakespeare's characters Mr. Greet took occasion to combat many criticisms. He praised the attitude of the public school officials in encouraging the study and production by the pupils of Shakespearean dramas.

LOVING CUP TO MME. ZIEGLER

Students of Grand Opera in English Honor Their Teacher.

A reception in honor of Mme. Anna E. Ziegler, Secretary of the National Society for the Promotion of Grand Opera in English, was held last night at the Ziegler Institute, 1425 Broadway, by the pupils and admirers of Mme. Ziegler. The programme consisted of an address by Walter L. Bogert, the presentation of a loving cup to Mme. Ziegler, piano selections by Miss Daisy Foster, Miss Ida McGuire and William Ziegler, a short talk by Miss Laurette Taylor, and several operatic selections by Miss Lillie Lucille Love, who sings behind the scenes in "Romance."

The reception was followed by dancing.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

John Cort has obtained from Anne Crawford Flexner, who made the stage version of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," the rights for a new three-act comedy called "The Marriage Game," which he will produce early next season.

At the Garrick Theatre to-night "The Conspiracy" will have its 150th performance.

The first performance of "Are You a Crook?" which opens the new Longacre Theatre Thursday night, will be given to-morrow evening at Easton, Penn. In the cast are Marguerite Clarke, Joseph Kilgour, George Fawcett and Elita Proctor Otis.

A special invitation performance of "The Gentleman from No. 19" will be given Thursday afternoon for the critics before the regular opening that night.

Virginia Earl, who originated the role of Molly Seamore when "The Geisha" was first presented at Daly's Theatre, will make her appearance in that role to-night at Weber & Fields's Forty-fourth Street Theatre for the first time with the present revival, replacing Lina Abarbanell.

Several new scenes and songs will be introduced to-night at the Winter Garden to make what is called the "Spring edition" of "The Honeymoon Express." Grace La Rue and Ina Claire join the cast, Gaby Deslys leaving the production.

William Hammerstein announces for May 12 the first appearance on any stage of The Maclaine of Lochbule, the Scottish laird who arrived in this country last week to have a try at making his fortune in vaudeville.

The last of the season's entertainments given by the employes of the Hippodrome took place at the Palm Garden last night. It was in the form of a minstrel show with local talent.

DR. DRAPER, EXPERT ON EDUCATION, DIES

State Commissioner Victim of Bright's Disease and Heart Trouble.

ELEVATED SCHOOL METHODS

Established Uniform System of Examining Teachers and Regulation of Their Appointments.

ALBANY, April 27.—Dr. Andrew Sloan Draper, State Commissioner of Education, died in his home here to-day. He was 64 years old. Bright's disease and a recently developed weakness of the heart muscles caused his death.

Dr. Draper's ill health dated from shortly after the Capitol fire in March, 1911, which destroyed the State Library and other divisions of the Education Department. He was strong enough, however, to participate in the dedication last Fall of the recently completed State Education Building. That also was one of the last public ceremonies attended by Whitelaw Reid, who, as Chancellor of the Regents of the University of New York, presided at the dedicatory exercises.

A native of Westford, Otsego County, Dr. Draper came to this city when 7 years old. He was graduated from the Albany Law School in 1871. He practiced law for five years, served as Member of Assembly in 1881, and in 1886 was elected State Superintendent of Public Instruction, which office he held six years.

Subsequently, he had charge of public school affairs in Cleveland, effecting a complete reorganization in the school system of that city. In 1894 he accepted the presidency of the University of Illinois. Under his administration the institution erected a dozen buildings, and the number of students increased from 750 to 3,900.

In 1904, upon the unification of the two educational departments of this State, he was chosen Commissioner. His elective term expired March 31, 1910. He was reappointed by the State Board of Regents for an indefinite term.

Dr. Draper had honorary degrees from Colgate, Columbia, Illinois, and Western Reserve Universities. He had written much and had spoken practically in every part of the country on educational themes.

It was Dr. Draper who established the system of uniform examinations for teachers throughout the State. He also was instrumental in procuring the passage of the law regulating the licensing and appointment of teachers in cities. That raised largely the standard of school work.

HORATIO A. FOSTER DEAD.

Leading Electrical Engineer Taken Ill in Subway Station.

Horatio A. Foster, an electrical engineer of 381 South Broadway, Yonkers, was taken suddenly ill on the north platform of the Subway at the Grand Central Station late yesterday afternoon and died before the arrival of Dr. Keating of Flower Hospital. Coroner's Physician Lehane gave the cause of death as heart failure.

Mr. Foster was one of the best-known electrical engineers in the country. He had been to the Engineers' Club, 32 West Fortieth Street, and had left there for home when stricken.

John H. Griesel Dies Suddenly.

John H. Griesel of the firm of Griesel & Rogers, stock brokers at 42 Broadway, died suddenly yesterday from heart disease at the home of his brother-in-law, Wilbur H. Rogers, 990 Central Avenue Plainfield, N. J. He was 62 years old. He was a member of the New York Stock Exchange and the New York Athletic Club.

GEN. H. C. COCHRANE DEAD.

Marine Officer Won Distinction in Several Campaigns.

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—Brig. Gen. Henry Clay Cochrane, United States Marine Corps, retired, who served with distinction in the Spanish-American war, in the Cuban and Philippine campaigns, and in the Boxer campaign in China in 1900, died suddenly in his home in Chester, near here, to-day. He was seized with violent pains around the heart when carving meat at the dinner table, and died in a few hours. A widow, a daughter and a son, Edward Lull Cochrane, a student in the Naval Academy, survive him.

Gen. Cochrane was 70 years old. He was appointed to the service in 1861. He served in the civil war, and in the railroad strikes of 1877. He was Major of the marine battalion which held the heights at Guantanamo, Cuba, in 1898, and was appointed temporary Governor of Manzanillo. He commanded the first marine brigade to be landed in the Philippines, and acted as Governor of the Peninsula of Cavité. President Carnot of France decorated him with the Cross of the Legion of Honor in 1899.

COL. CHUBB FALLS DEAD.

His End Comes Soon After His Assignment to Regiment.

Special to The New York Times.

GALVESTON, Texas, April 27.—Col. Charles St. J. Chubb, 58 years old, fell dead at noon to-day in his quarters in camp at Fort Crockett. He was assigned to the Seventh Infantry, Fifth Brigade, here last week. Prior to that he was on the unassigned list. His widow is in his home in Omaha. His son, W. Morris Chubb, is a Second Lieutenant in the Engineering Corps stationed at Texas City. The son was with the father when Col. Chubb died. It is thought the body will be shipped to Omaha.

Col. Chubb enlisted as a private in 1873. He was discharged in 1875 and at the same time was commissioned as Second Lieutenant of the Seventeenth Infantry. From that time his promotion was steady. He was made First Lieutenant in 1880, Captain in 1893, Major in 1901, Lieutenant Colonel in 1905, and Colonel in 1910. Lieut. Chubb also started as a private.

The Colonel was in Indian campaigns, the Chinese expedition, the Philippine expedition, and the Spanish-American war.

RELIGION DIVIDES SCHOOL.

Differences Over Baccalaureate Starts New Parochial Academy.

Special to The New York Times.

FREEPORT, N. Y., April 27.—Because of the religious differences, which he said existed in the public schools here, Father Charles A. Logue, of the Catholic Church of Our Holy Redeemer, advocated from his pulpit this morning the establishment of a parochical academy for the church.

The announcement followed a conference between Father Logue and three young men of his parish, all in this years graduating class at the Freeport High School. According to tradition the members of the graduating class select the church in which their baccalaureate sermon is to be preached. This year there was talk of choosing Father Logue's church. The final choice, however, went to the Methodist Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration. At this the three catholics—Edward Meany, Thomas Dougherty, and Thomas Murray—went to Father Logue, and complained against the preponderance of Protestants in the school.

If a sufficient number of pupils can be gotten, Father Logue expects to open the parochial school in September. The small mission church and the cottage opposite the Church of Our Holy Redeemer will be used temporarily.

GEN. J. G. WILSON 81 TO-DAY

Veteran Warrior Too Busy Now Promoting Peace to Celebrate.

Gen. James Grant Wilson, veteran warrior and worker now in the cause of international peace, is 81 years old to-day. He will not give over the anniversary hours to celebration or allow his friends to do so, for he is too busy.

He must take a train for the West this afternoon so that he may be in St. Louis on Wednesday for the dedication of a building in Forest Park for the Missouri Historical Society. The next day he is to deliver an address at the opening meeting in St. Louis of the Peace Congress, and there are social engagements in between, so that altogether he has no time to bother with any special observance of a little thing like an eighty-first birthday. He may do that in later years when he has settled down.

But his friends are not forgetting the day and he was kept busy yesterday receiving the good wishes that came in the front door and over the telephone wires to his home in West Seventy-second Street.

When his memories are of friendships such as Washington Irving, Lincoln, Farragut, Grant, Thackeray, Gladstone, King Edward, and the Empress Eugénie it is permitted to a man to be reminiscent. To one who called on him last evening Gen. Wilson spoke of Sherman, and of the death that followed a slight cold caught in a playhouse. It was an old and a fond habit of Gen. Wilson to turn up the careless Sherman's coat collar for him, but he was not with his friend that night at the theatre, and Gen. Wilson still blames the old soldier's death on the fact that he simply "wouldn't turn his coat collar up."

Ill in Buffalo, New Yorker Dies.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, April 27.—When a southbound Genessee St. car stopped at Huron St. late to-night a middle-aged man suddenly fell to the car floor. He was helped off the car and an ambulance was called, but he died on the way to the hospital. From papers found in his pocket it is believed that he is Edmond Posnansky of 335 Broadway, New York, a manufacturer. Heart disease caused his death.

HOLD OZANAM MEMORIAL.

Centenary of Founder of Society of St. Vincent de Paul.

The centenary of the birth of Frederic Ozanam, founder of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul was commemorated last evening at the quarterly meeting of the Particular Council of New York, held in Cathedral College Hall, Madison Avenue and Fifty-first Street. Cardinal Farley, who has given much of his time to the society, was unable to attend, but sent a message through Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle. Mgr. Lavelle added that he believed the time was near at hand when, with the society as its agent, the Catholic Church would be able to provide for the corporeal and spiritual needs of every Catholic in the city. This new spirit, he said, was due to an address delivered by Cardinal Farley before the associated Catholic societies, when he emphasized the need of the extension of this work among the poor, including the hundreds of immigrants who enter the city each month.

To the memory of Frederic Ozanam Father Lavelle paid the highest tribute. He hoped, he said, that the movement which had been started to have the Church canonize Frederic Ozanam a saint would soon be successful. The Right Rev. Thomas F. Cusack, Auxiliary Bishop of New York, was absent because of illness, but sent his address.

Mgr. McMahon, spiritual director of the society, made the opening address, and a history of the movement as founded by Frederic Ozanam was given by Dr. Conde B. Pallen. Thomas M. Mulry, President of the Superior Council of the society, was the last speaker. A musical programme for the centenary meeting was furnished by the Catholic Saengerbund, of which Emil Reyl is director.

PRESERVING JEWISH FAITH.

Oriental Federation Teaching, Too, American History and Civics.

The Federation of Oriental Jews, whose members have Spanish, Greek, and Arabic for their native tongue, held its annual meeting yesterday in the auditorium of School 91 at Stanton and Forsyth Streets. Dr. D. de Sola Pool was elected Honorary President, and Joseph Gedalcia was re-elected President.

In his report the President heartily indorsed the work already done in the establishment of classes for grown-ups to further Americanization by teaching English, American history, and civics. Dr. Pool spoke feelingly of the tendency of Jews of the second and third generations to drift away from the ancient faith.

"Were it not for the newcomers," he said, "the Jewish faith would disappear in America. This federation stands for the preservation of the faith."

OPERA AS CHICAGO'S OWN.

New York Interests in That City's Company to Cease.

CHICAGO, April 27.—The interests of New York in the Chicago Grand Opera Company will be terminated and in the future the organization will be exclusively a Chicago enterprise, according to an announcement made to-day.

Charles G. Dawes, a Director of the company, is in New York and is expected to return with the resignations of all the New York Directors. All the stock of the enterprise, it was said, would be taken up by Chicagoans.

"La Cicala" at the Theatre.

A change has been made in the first week's répertoire of the Angelini-Gattini Operetta Company, which opens at the Century Theatre to-morrow night. "La Cicala" will be the opening bill instead of "I Saltimbanchi." "La Cicala," of course, is Audran's operetta "La Cigale." This opera has been sung in English many times in the past in New York, notably when Lillian Russell revived it at the Garden Theatre in 1891. "I Saltimbanchi" will be the bill on Friday and Saturday.

Dies as Wife Sails.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 27.—As his wife was hurrying from London to Liverpool to catch a steamer to start a race across the Atlantic against death, Charles C. Murphy, a retired New York advertising man, succumbed to a nervous ailment at the Seaside House yesterday morning after an illness of more than ten years. Word of his death reached Mrs. Murphy when she arrived at Liverpool late last night.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Lenox Philharmonic Orchestra will give a concert at the Central Baptist Church, Ninety-second Street and Amsterdam Avenue, on Wednesday evening, and at Grace Methodist Church, West 104th Street, on Saturday evening.

Don Jose Chaquesmari, a Spanish lyric tenor, will give a concert in Aeolian Hall next Saturday evening, assisted by Miss Nella Aiuti, soprano, and Emilia Quintero, pianist.

Jennie Buckhout, soprano; Jacques Kasner, violinist; Mary Kirchhoefer, pianist, and Mary Carson, Alice Berning, Serafino Bogatto, and George Baniter will appear at a concert to-night at the Forward Auditorium in Julius Hopp's "Wage Earner's" series.

Sergei Klibansky announces the second of his series of pupils' recitals on Wednesday at his studio, 212 West Fifty-ninth Street, when Jean Vincent Cooper and Eulalia Bright Cannon will apear.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION IN AMERICA AND EUROPE

Had prices risen last week, instead, as they did, of declining to a new low level for the year, the financial community would be laying stress on such news of the week as the reported improvement in the general crop outlook, the rendering of the rate decision in the Shreveport case, which though variously interpreted at the outset was finally accepted as altogether favorable to the railroads; the continuance of abundant ease in the call and short time money markets, and, lastly, to cite just one more incident of favorable import, the submission of a report by the Michigan Commission which investigated the affairs of the Pere Marquette recommending a more lenient policy toward the railroads in regard to the application of the two-cent passenger fare law. But none of these received more than passing attention last week. Some of them may prove of sufficient consequence to become vital factors for betterment later on, but the controlling force of the week was exerted by an entirely different set of influences. The market was confronted with further evidence of the relative scarcity of capital for investment in securities, even though some degree of improvement was shown in the bond market, and this more than outweighed the abundance of short-time money, which abundance was clearly indicated by the great ease with which the $10,000,000 issue of New York Central notes was placed at the beginning of the week. So it was that each of the other favorable features of the immediate situation was offset by a corresponding adverse factor, and the net balance threw the movement of stock prices downward.

In measuring the real import of the factors which caused prices to recede on all but the opening day of the week and in attempting to corelate these with the general situation in which the country finds itself due weight should be given to the fact that the atmosphere in Wall Street was one of depression. This may be assumed to have colored Wall Street's judgment of the situation. A comparison of the Wall Street point of view with that which appears to prevail elsewhere throughout the country seems to argue that Wall Street has been swayed by fears which the rest of the country is not sharing. That, of course, does not necessarily show that Wall Street is altogether wrong, but nevertheless a useful purpose is served by matching against the views of the financial district those which are held away from the Street. Commercial reports concede that the revision of the tariff is holding a number of lines of business in check, and trade is evidently moving in somewhat reduced volume, but with the country at large conservatism is modified by a large element of hopefulness, whereas in Wall Street it is oppositely modified by pessimism. Perhaps one explanation of this is that Wall Street takes its view of the situation more than does the rest of the country from the affairs of undertakings which are directly dependent upon the open market for capital. There the situation has been an uncomfortable one, as the recent course of the bond market has shown. One thing which may give a further clue to the present Wall Street point of view is the feeling which prevails in some quarters that there are elements in the situation which have not yet been squarely faced and which must be so faced before the atmosphere of unsettlement, which has been finding reflection in the security markets, is entirely removed. A case in point is the constant recurrence of demands for increased wages by employes of the railroads. It is now being said that the managements of the Eastern railways have gone as far as they mean to go in compromising directly or through arbitration the demands for higher pay. Many feel that this question of raising wages in the face of conditions making for a narrower margin between the income and the outgo of the railways should be brought to a definite issue. It is plain that it is not brought to such an issue by means of arbitrations such as those resorted to in the cases of the demands of the engineers and of the firemen. In another direction a similar feeling prevails regarding the dividend positions of a certain number of corporations, and more particularly of the railroads. This latter aspect of prevailing opinion found reflection in arguments which were advanced in the financial district last week, that in such a situation as confronts the New Haven Railroad, for instance, steps which some might regard as drastic would in the long run prove the wiser policy. By way of specification it was suggested that a reduction in the New Haven's dividend from 8 to 4 per cent. would be far better than a cut to only 6 per cent., which Wall Street has come to regard as highly probable. Whether such views be held wisely or not, they are having their effect upon the shaping of stock market prices. They furnish the background upon which many current incidents capable of exerting reactionary influences are projected.

Among last week's factors of this kind were the disapproval by the United States Circuit Court of certain features of the plan tentatively suggested to the court by the Union Pacific; the rendering of a decision by the Commerce Court upholding a reduction in anthracite rates ordered by the Commerce Commission; the filing of an arbitration award granting the firemen on the Eastern railways an increase in wages which may add $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 to the payrolls of the lines concerned; and, passing to a world-wide influence, uneasiness over the refusal of Montenegro so far to yield to the demands of the powers in respect to Scutari. In addition to these there were factors in the stock market itself which exerted intensive influence upon the downward swing of prices, notable in this category being the violent declines in the Rumely stocks. The situation presented by the decline to 22 of a common stock which only last November sold at 101, and of a preferred stock to under 50 which had sold above par a few months ago, did not seem sufficiently met by the statement of officers of the company that the market position of its shares was due to "stock jobbing." The formal investigation by the Stock Exchange on complaints made by one of its members showed that the house which acted as bankers in the organization of the company had acted in entirely good faith, but this still left much to be explained in reference to the collapse in the company's shares. Coming so soon after the organization of the company it would appear that at some point there was lack of that degree of foresight and business judgment which is reasonably to be expected from all concerned in the placing of securities with the public at large. That there was at some point lack of such reasonable business foresight seems all the clearer from the present statement of the officers of the company that its business has gone on increasing. Its working capital, apparently, has not been increased in proportion. The company has paid one dividend on its common stock at the rate of 6 per cent., and now some of those very directly connected with the company's affairs speak of it as a foregone conclusion that the payment of dividends on this stock will be discontinued. It can hardly be cause for surprise that such incidents as these should help to lessen the public interest in the market at a time when such interest is much needed to offset the influence of bearish operations.

In due course, no doubt, the recoil from securities to which investors had looked for high interest return will benefit the bond market. Already the organization of new companies of the class which lately have undergone severe price readjustments on the Stock Exchange has been checked. It has also been experienced that individual investors have in somewhat increased numbers turned to the bond market, but this movement has hardly gone far enough to broaden the bond market sufficiently to absorb readily the offerings. That there is a steady though not very large demand from such sources is indicated by the placing last week at the advanced price of a considerable amount of the new St. Paul bonds, which the bankers are selling direct to investors in preference to accepting the bids at somewhat lower prices which dealers are making for the unsold balance of the bonds. The conditions which now prevail will prompt those intending borrowers who are in a position to wait for money to postpone their demands upon the investment market until a larger supply of capital becomes available, while those who must borrow will resort to short-time loans or seek capital on long-time securities at relatively high rates. Meanwhile a certain number of corporations are keeping out of the open money market by loans privately arranged through banking channels. Such loans seem to account in part for the large increase in the loan account of the banks reported at the close of last week, although the bulk of that increase was due to the financing, which was a matter of public knowledge.

BUYING TREND IN BERLIN.

Fears About Scutari Vanish—Reichsbank Hoarding Gold.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 27.—The fate of Scutari dominated the thoughts of the Boerse last week. Fears of renewed political complications were quickly dissipated by the announcement of the powers' determination to incorporate Montenegro's prize with an independent Albania.

Buying tendencies were, on the whole, the week's feature, shipping, Canadian, steel and iron shares at higher prices being favorites.

The Reichsbank has scored a record total gold reserve amounting to $250,000,000. The bank is making special efforts to replenish its gold on account of the prospective tripling of the war chest. The increase in April was roundly $20,000,000.

LONDON OUTLOOK HOPEFUL.

Indications Point to Better Business During the Coming Week.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 27.—The stock markets began the week in an optimistic mood, with distinct evidence of better public support. Investment purchases were stimulated by the prospects of peace and cheap money. Even speculative ventures were encouraged by these factors. This activity encouraged the hope that the turn in the tide had at length been reached, but the fall of Scutari and the consequent uncertainty of the European political situation acted as a setback. There was no panic, however, or even a slump, which shows that confidence is much stronger than a few months ago, when less threatening conditions threw all the Bourses into disorder.

The stock markets closed the week with a fair amount of strength. All indications point to better business for the coming week.

RESERVE IN PARIS.

Operators and Public Are Awaiting Balkan Developments.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 27.—The Bourse was unsettled last week, owing chiefly to foreign politics. The renewal of disquieting frontier incidents, however, is not regarded with much alarm here. The fall of Scutari, protracting the final settlement of Balkan questions, has induced operators to assume a reserved attitude. Both operators and public are awaiting developments before taking positions.

The condition of the market, however, is sound. Rentes are steady, Rios, influenced by metal fluctuations, closed indifferent. American shares were lifeless.

President Noyes Tells How It Gathers and Distributes 50,000 Words Daily.

DRAGNET COVERS GLOBE

Men Labor and Die That the 850 Members May Picture World's Happenings Accurately.

Frank B. Noyes, President of The Associated Press, describes the purposes and work of that organization in the current number of The North American Review. He says in part:

"The Associated Press is an association of something over 850 newspapers, operating under a charter of the State of New York as a mutual and co-operative organization for the interchange and collection of news. Under the terms of its charter 'the corporation is not to make a profit nor to make or declare dividends and is not to engage in the business of selling intelligence nor traffic in the same.' The Associated Press is simply a common agent of its members by which they arrange an interchange of the news that each collects, and is bound by its membership obligation to contribute for the common use of its fellow-members and also is the agency through which reports of foreign and certain classes of domestic happenings are collected and distributed to the newspapers served by the organization. The Associated Press is in no wise the master of the newspapers constituting its membership. It is distinctly their servant.

How the "A. P." Is Run.

"Its Board of Directors is composed of active newspaper men chosen at annual meetings by the membership.

Its members are scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from Canada to the Gulf, and represent every possible shade of political belief, religious faith and economic sympathy. It is obvious that The Associated Press can have no partisan nor factional bias, no religious affiliation, no capitalistic nor pro-labor trend. Its function is simply to furnish its members with a truthful, clean, comprehensive, non-partisan—and this in its broadest sense—report of the news of the world as expeditiously as is compatible with accuracy and as economically as possible.

"The newspapers composing its membership contribute first the news of their localities, and second, weekly assessments of money aggregating about $3,000,000 per annum, with which an extensive system of leased wires is maintained, (22,000 miles of wire in the daytime and 28,000 at night,) bureaus in the principal American cities supplementing and collating the news of local newspapers and bureaus for the original collection of news throughout the world. The volume of the news report to members varies greatly, ranging from five hundred words daily by telegraph or telephone to papers able to utilize but a small amount of general news matter, to more than fifty thousand words daily, or thirty-five newspaper columns in the more important cities.

Bureaus All Over the World.

"The Associated Press has established regular bureaus of its own in all the great news centres, and now mainains offices and staffs in London, Paris, Berlin, Rome, St. Petersburg, Vienna, Tokio, Peking, Mexico City, and Havana, in addition to hundreds of individual correspondents scattered through the world. It is probable that in the foreign news field the extraordinary genius of Melville E. Stone, general manager of The Associated Press, has been most strikingly exhibited. Just prior to the Russo-Japanese War Mr. Stone secured from the Czar of Russia the abolition of the censorship. Orders expediting the messages of The Associated Press were issued at his instance by the German, French, Italian, and Russian Governments, and it has come to be common for European capitals to get the first news of continental events through Associated Press reports cabled back from New York.

"The disadvantage of lack of news touch is strikingly apparent in the relations of the United States with the Central and South American nations. These countries secure their news of the United States by way of Europe, and it consists mainly of murders, lynchings, and embezzlements. The antipathy to the United States by the people of these countries is undoubtedly largely due to the false perspective given by their newspapers.

"It has been the aim of those intrusted with the management of The Associated Press to secure as its representatives both at home and abroad men of high character and attainments, and it may, I think, be fairly assumed that the reputation for accuracy and fairness that its service enjoys is largely to be attributed to an unusual measure of success in this endeavor.

"While The Associated Press is generally held in good esteem, I would not be understood as indicating that it has been exempt from criticism and attack. If in a campaign all the candidates, or their managers or press agents did not accuse The Associated Press of the grossest partisanship as against the particular candidacy in which they were interested, those bearing the responsibilities of the service would feel convinced that something was radically wrong and would look with suspicion on the report themselves. This is but human nature. During the last campaign for the Presidential nominations every candidate either in person or by proxy expressed his conviction that The Associated Press was favorable to somebody else.

No Bias Can Be Permitted.

"With all this, however, goes a fundamental misunderstanding of the functions of the Associated Press. The individual correspondent or reporter for a given newspaper or a small group of newspapers having a common bias may be permitted to indulge in partisanship or in propaganda. This is absolutely not to be permitted in the Associated Press. No bias of any sort can be allowed. Our function is to supply our members with news, not views; with news as it happens—not as we may want it to happen. Intensely as its management may sympathize with any movement, no propaganda in its behalf can be tolerated. Very jealously indeed does the membership guard against their agency going outside its allotted duties and argus-eyed is the censorship of every handler of our 'copy.' It is not, naturally, to be claimed that no mistakes are made. They are made and will be made. But in the very nature of the business, with the heart so worn upon the sleeve, detection very swiftly follows, and the mistakes are few and far between.

"Another cause of frequent misapprehension is in the general tendency of newspaper readers to attribute anything seen in print to the Associated Press.

"Away back in the middle of the last century an alliance offensive and defensive existed between the old New York Associated Press, a news-selling organization owned by seven New York papers, and the Western Union Telegraph Company under the terms of which the New York Associated Press dealt solely with the Western Union and the Western Union in turn gave discriminating rates and advantages to the New York Associated Press. Although this arrangement was abolished more than thirty years ago, many people think that it still exists. The Associated Press has during all these thirty years and more paid exactly what other news associations pay, and the rates charged by the telegraph companies for the facilities furnished us are greatly in excess of those charged individual newspapers and still more than those charged stockbrokers having wires.

Why It's Not a Monopoly.

"From time to time some voice is raised denouncing the Associated Press in the same breath both as a monopoly and because it is not a monopoly, and insisting that it become a monopoly by admitting to its membership all desiring its service. From an ethical standpoint only, then, is there anything improper, unsafe or unwise in a group of newspapers, large or small, associating themselves together to do a thing that each must otherwise do separately and of reserving to themselves the right to determine to what extent the membership of such a group shall be enlarged?

"To compel the Associated Press to assume an entity of its own and to serve all comers would, in my judgment, bring about a condition fraught with the gravest dangers to the freedom of the press and in turn to the freedom of the people. At present about one-third of the daily newspapers of the country are represented by membership in the Associated Press. There are a number of concerns engaged in the collection and sale of general news to non-members of the Associated Press. If the Associated Press could be held as a common carrier, these news-selling organizations would be wiped out and the Associated Press would, if the end sought for was accomplished, become a real monopoly and, the incentive for co-operation no longer existing, it would naturally drift into a concern for pecuniary profit, in private ownership and subject to private control.

Danger Too Grave to Exist.

"Because the danger would be so grave it will not come, but for another reason also, a very basic reason—there can be no monopoly in news. The day that it becomes apparent that a monopoly in collecting and distributing news exists, that day, in some way, by some method, individual newspapers or groups of newspapers will take up the work of establishing a service for themselves, independent of outside control. The news of the world is open to him who will go for it. Any one willing to expend the energy, the time, and the money to approach it may dip from the well of truth. The news service of the Associated Press does not consist of its leased wires or its offices. Its soul is in the personal service of human men, of men with eyes to see, with ears to hear, with hands to write, and with brains to understand, of men who are proud when they succeed, humiliated when they fail and resentful when maligned. And as to-day men labor and die in order that the members of the Associated Press may lay before their readers a fair picture of the world's happenings, so always will these and other men serve nobly and die bravely that the world may have tidings."

FINANCIAL NOTES.

An offering of $8,100,000 Massachusetts Electric Company collateral trust 5 per cent. coupon notes by the Equitable Trust Company have been subscribed for prior to an intended public presentation of the securities. The notes were issued for the purpose of retiring $3,700,000 4½ per cent. notes which mature on July 1. The present issue will form the only debt of the company, and will be secured by a majority of the common stock of the Bay State Street Railway Company.

William Morris Imbrie & Co. are offering $1,000,000 American Road Machinery Company first mortgage sinking fund 6 per cent. bonds at par and interest. More than $800,000 of the issue has already been sold. The combined net earnings of the company for the year ended on Oct. 31, 1912, applicable to bond interest were more than three and a half times the annual amount needed for the purpose.

DIVIDENDS.

The Willys-Overland Company, Toledo, Ohio.

April 11th, 1913.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors, held this day, the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼% was declared on the Common stock of The Willys-Overland Company, payable May 1st to stockholders of record at the close of business on April 21st.

ROYAL R SCOTT, Secretary.

PACIFIC BANK,

470 Broadway,

New York, April 16th, 1913.

The Board of Directors have this day declared the regular quarterly dividend of two per cent., payable on May 1 next to stockholders of record of April 15, 1913. The transfer books will be closed to May 1, 1913.

S. C. MERWIN, Cashier.

BOARD REVERSES LOEB.

Decision for Importers of Tourist Cases and Belts.

The Board of United States General Appraisers has sustained in part protests by Thomas Meadows & Co. relative to the classification of tourists' cases made in chief value of cotton. Collector Loeb held that some of the cases were in principal value of cotton and assessed duty at the rate of 45 per cent. ad valorem under the provision in the law for manufactures of cotton. The balance of the goods were returned at 50 per cent. as manufactures of silk. The importers alleged that none of the cases were made of silk, and that consequently the Collector erred in exacting duty under the silk schedule. The board holds that all of the goods should have been returned under the cotton schedule.

Stern Brothers of New York were successful in a contention dealing with belts of webbing. The Collector assessed the goods as manufactures of silk under the present law, at 50 per cent. ad valorem. The importers contended for 45 per cent. as manufactures of metal. The board reversed the Collector.

It was decided that metal containers for benzine imported by the B. F. Goodrich Company at Cleveland were properly dutiable as unusual containers.

Denomination $1,000

Old Colony Trust Co., Boston, Trustee

Issued for the purpose of retiring $3,700,000 4½% Notes of the Company, maturing July 1, 1913.

Attention is called to the following letter from J. E. Goodspeed, Esq., Treasurer of the Massachusetts Electric Companies:

Gentlemen:

Referring to your purchase of $3,100,000 Collateral Trust 5% Gold Notes, due May 1, 1915, we beg to advise you as follows regarding this company:

The Massachusetts Electric Companies is a voluntary association organized under the laws of the State of Massachusetts and owns the entire Common Stock of the Bay State Street Railway Company, the largest street railway system in point of mileage in the country.

The capitalization as of July 1, 1913, will be as follows:

Preferred Shares, 4%, Cumulative....... $24,105,800
Coupon Gold Notes, 5% due May, 1915, (this issue)..................... 3,100,000

These Notes are issued under a Trust Agreement with the Old Colony Trust Company, Trustee, and the proceeds are to be used to retire the outstanding balance of $3,700,000 4½% Gold Notes maturing July 1, 1913.

Upon the refunding of maturing notes this issue will represent the only debt of the company and will be secured by a majority of the Common Stock of the Bay State Street Railway Company.

The net income of the Massachusetts Electric Companies for the year ending September 30, 1912, was as follows:

Net Income after deducting all expenses.. $1,400,316
Interest on this issue of Notes.......... 155,000

The legality of this issue has been approved by Everett W. Burdett, Attorney.

Yours truly,
J. E. GOODSPEED, Treasurer.

Price to Yield 5.75%

The entire issue having been sold, this advertisement appears as a matter of record only.

WE OFFER

6% 1st Mortgage Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

OF

LIMITED

Price: 100 and Accrued Interest

Trustee for the Bondholders—THE ROYAL TRUST CO.

The Bonds mature July 2nd, 1937, and are payable at the Bank of Montreal, in Montreal or Toronto. Interest half-yearly, January 2nd and July 2nd. Denominations, $500 and $1,000. They may be registered as to principal at the Office of the Royal Trust Company. Authorized and Issued, $500,000.

Security for Bonds

The properties of the company, upon which the Bonds represent a closed mortgage, include modernly equipped Paper Mills at St. Jerome, Que., and Ste. Adele, Que., with Water Power development, Real Estate, Railway Sidings, etc., valued by the Canadian-American Appraisal Co. on July 1st last at $1,117,962.92.

The Total Net Assets of the Company, including money in hand for additions to plant then under way, at December 31st, 1912, amounted to $1,513,279, or more than three times the bond issue.

Net Earnings

Year ending Dec. 31st, 1910........ $73,854.77
" " " 1911........ $80,428.30
" " " 1912........ $142,934.83

Thus with the additions to plant not yet complete the net earnings have already mounted to nearly five times the amount required to pay bond interest.

A fully descriptive circular will be mailed on request.

WE RECOMMEND THESE BONDS AS A THOROUGHLY SOUND INVESTMENT.

$1,000,000

AMERICAN ROAD MACHINERY COMPANY

First Mortgage Sinking Fund 6% Gold Bonds

Tax-exempt in Pennsylvania

Dated Feb. 1, 1913 — Due Feb. 1, 1938
Authorized $1,500,000 — Interest February and August — Outstanding, $1,000,000

Coupon Bonds in denominations of $1,000 and $500, registerable as to principal. Callable in whole or part through sinking fund at 105 and interest.

Trustee, THE EQUITABLE TRUST CO. of New York

We summarize the important features from a letter of Mr. S. Jones Philips, Vice-President of the Company, copies of which may be obtained from the undersigned.

THESE BONDS are in the opinion of counsel secured by an absolute First Mortgage on the property of the Company, which consists of the works formerly of the American Road Machine Company, Climax Road Machine Company, Monarch Road Roller Company, Indiana Road Machine Company and Lima Contractors Supply Company.

THE NET ASSETS of the Company are appraised at $2,560,793, or more than two and one-half times the total bonded indebtedness of the Company. The net quick assets of the Company after present financing will be more than 130% of the bonded indebtedness.

The mortgage provides that the Company shall at all times keep net quick assets (rigidly defined) which shall equal not less than 100% of all bonds of this issue outstanding.

THE COMBINED NET EARNINGS of the companies which form American Road Machinery Company for the year ending October 31, 1912, applicable to bond interest, were $213,000, or more than three and one-half times the interest charges on these bonds.

THE AMERICAN ROAD MACHINE COMPANY, the predecessor of this Company, has been in successful existence since 1886 and during that time has shown average earnings of more than 18.4% on its capital stock outstanding of an amount increasing from $250,000 to $825,000.

A CUMULATIVE SINKING FUND should retire this entire issue before maturity.

THE CONSTANT INCREASE in the building of good roads by states, counties and municipalities is rapidly broadening the field and market for the products of this Company. This, together with economies and improvements which should be effected, should materially increase the earnings of the Company.

WASHINGTON ITEMS IN AUTOGRAPH MART

Remarkable Letter from Martha Washington to Mrs. Gen. Pinckney Brings $677.

"THE COMPLETE FARMER"

Book from Library of First President Sells for $185—Two Franklin Letters.

The remarkably fine Martha Washington letter, which was in an autograph sale conducted by Stan. V. Henkels in Philadelphia recently, brought $677, an unusually high price. The letter is three pages quarto, is dated Mount Vernon, April 20, 1799, and is addressed to Mrs. Gen. Pinckney. It reads as follows:

> My Dear Madam: I have received with gratefull sensibility your obliging favors of the 18th and 28th of last month, and thank you for the mellon seeds, which you had the goodness to send me, which came safe and very opportunely.
>
> It gives me and all our family much pleasure to hear of your safe arrival and happy meeting with your friends in Charleston, after so long and tiresome a journey as you performed in the depth of Winter. In the weather, however, except the few first cays of January, you were much favored, as it was remarkably fine for the season here.
>
> We had only to regret the shortness of your stay at Mount Vernon, a place at which we shall always be gratified in seeing General Pinckney, yourself, or any of the family. In which, let me add a hope, if his military duties should call him to the State of Virginia, that you will always consider as your headquarters during your abidence in it.
>
> Long ere this I hope the General is safely returned from his military excursion into Georgia, and no one can unite more heartily with you than I do in wishing that the newly proposed negotiation may arrest more serious movement, but from a faithless nation, whose injustice and ambition know no bounds, short of its power to accomplish them, little is expected from this negotiation, even if the proposition should be acceded to at all by the French, by those who wish a permanent treaty, except arrogance or deception, as it is best calculated; to promote the views of the Directory seems to be the only rule of the French Government at present—of course, nothing is expected from their denunciary spirit when uncontrolled by events—as too many unhappy nations of Europe and recently the poor Italians have experienced to the entire annihilation of their Government.
>
> By the first fit conveyance I will with pleasure send you the Profiles of the General and myself, and feel the compliment of them being asked. They could not go by the Post without folding and consequent injury, or they would have accompanied this letter. A small one of his, however, is herewith sent enclosed, requesting your acceptance of it.
>
> The General's birthday (22d of Feby.) united the fortunes of Mr. Lewis (whom you saw here) and Nellie Custis; they are at present and have been for some time at her mother's, or she would most cordially have united with the General and me in reciprocating all the good wishes of yourself and Miss Eliza, and would rejoice to hear of the happiness of her friend, Harriet Rutledge. With sentiments of perfect esteem and regard, I am, my dear madam, your most obedient, humble servant. MARTHA WASHINGTON.

George Washington's Death.

George Washington died eight months after this letter was written. His widow survived him two and a half years. Eleanor Parke Custis was Martha Washington's granddaughter, and Washington's beloved adopted daughter. In February, 1799, she married Laurence Lewis, Washington's favorite nephew. He was the son of Fielding Lewis and Elizabeth, George Washington's sister, who later in life so much resembled him that by putting on his long military coat and his hat she could easily have been mistaken for him.

Another interesting Washington item, for which $325 was paid, consisted of a letter of Thomas McKean, signer of the Declaration of Independence, dated Philadelphia, April 27, 1789, addressed to "Gen. George Washington, President of the United States," asking for a Judgeship, and Washington's reply to it. In his letter McKean says:

> I have an ambition to take a share in your Excellency's administration, and know of no line in which I can render so good service as in the Judicial Department. Having expressed this, it will, I trust, not be deemed indelicate in me to give a short account of myself and my studies.

He then gives a short biographical sketch of himself, but modestly leaves out the fact of signing the Declaration of Independence. He then goes on to say:

"For this freedom I must trust to your great goodness. It is (tho' I am not three years younger than your Excellency) my first essay of the kind. If you shall approve of the overtures, I promise you to execute the trust with assiduity and fidelity and according to the best of my abilities, the only return which I can make, and that, I know, you wish for. There is but one thing more I have to say, and that is if you should make a single enemy or lose a single friend by gratifying my desire, I most sincerely beg you will never spend a thought upon the subject."

Washington's reply, dated New York, May 9, 1789, reads:

> I have duly received your letter of the 27th of April, and, as the contents are of such a nature as do not require a particular answer, I shall only acknowledge the receipt of it, observing at the same time that the resolution which I have formed, and from which I never wish to depart, will always leave me at full liberty to act upon every subject which may come before me without the embarrassment of any previous engagement.

Washington did not appoint McKean, whose policy as a leader of the Republican Party paved the way for the accession of Thomas Jefferson to the Presidency. McKean was the only member of Congress who served from its opening to the treaty of peace.

$185 for Washington Book.

Joseph F. Sabin of this city paid $185 for a book from the library of George Washington, with his signature on the title page. The book is "The Complete Farmer, or a General Directory of Husbandry in All Its Branches, containing the various methods of cultivating and improving every species of land according to the precepts of both the old and new husbandry."

A manuscript three-page quarto, in Washington's autograph, brought $121. It was evidently prepared by him for a friend, as it gives implicit instructions for planting from seed or slips various kinds of trees, as also how garden walks should be prepared. In most of the instances he quotes "Miller" as the authority for instructions given for planting. The manuscript is neatly written in Washington's well-known hand, and exhibits the interest he took in promoting anything connected with agriculture or horticulture.

A letter signed but not written by Washington went for $80. It is dated New York, headquarters, Aug. 8, 1776, and is addressed to Col. Samuel Miles. It gives information of the arrival of Gen. Clinton on Staten Island together with the foreign troops, and is therefore, of historical interest. It would have brought a higher price only for the fact that the last page is slightly defective, one line of the text being missing.

A series of letters relating to an interesting episode in the "code duello," not generally known, brought $70. It appears that Richard Rush, as attorney for William J. Duane, who was being prosecuted for a libel on Gov. Thomas McKean, used in Duane's defense language detrimental to McKean's character. McKean's son, Joseph B. McKean, immediately challenged Rush to meet him on the field of honor. The letters, which were sold as one lot, are those which passed in the matter. Rush, it seems, made proper apologies, and the affair was declared off.

A letter of Deborah Franklin, Benjamin Franklin's wife, brought $90, and a letter of Franklin about the siege of Louisberg went for $77. Joseph F. Salvin gave $36 for a four-page quarto letter of James Madison, dated Montpellier, July 24, 1818, in which he says:

> The President has no doubt some delicate and thorny points on hand, but his sound judgment may be relied on to dispose of them in the best manner they will admit. I take for granted that, if not already, you soon will be engaged with the British Government on the subject of a commercial treaty. I sincerely wish that the negotiation may end in friendly arrangements on fair conditions. But I have no doubt that, in the event of a statutory contest, the victory, or, if not that, the conspicuous advantage, will be on the American side.

Mr. Sabin also obtained for $33 a letters of Major Gen. Israel Putnam, Philadelphia, Jan. 4, 1777, to Brig. Gen. Ewing about taking "the command of such militia and other troops as shall arrive."

KNEW OF MARKED BILLS.

Plan to Pay Sheridan Made with Whitman's Approval.

District Attorney Whitman, on his return last tnight from Amherst, Mass., said that the investigation of the giving of $1,000 in marked bills from an employe of the Knickerbocker Ice Company to Joseph A. Sheridan was still pending.

It was learned from Mr. Whitman last night that the trap to catch Sheridan in attempted blackmail had been set with his knowledge. Officials of the company had told the District Attorney that Sheridan had threatened to start a crusade on the ground that they were artificially raising the price of ice, unless his silence was purchased with a bribe of $1,000.

District Attorney Whitman detailed one of his detectives, Barney Flood, to accompany the Burns detectives employed by the ice company last Wednesday morning when the money was passed. It was arranged that Charles Small, a district superintendent of the ice company, should give the marked bills to Sheridan in front of a saloon at Forty-third Street and Eighth Avenue. Barney Flood and two Burns men were to approach when Small gave the signal by mopping his brow with a handkerchief just before passing the money.

The detectives say that Small failed to give the signal. They reported to the District Attorney that, as they stood across the street and the two men were very close together, they were unable to see the bills slipped into the hands of Sheridan.

Detective Flood called on Sheridan that night and told him that the District Attorney wanted to see him the following morning. Sheridan then admitted to Flood that he had accepted the marked bills, but insisted that he took the money with the object of exposing the ice company. The following morning Sheridan appeared at the office of th Deistrict Attorney and handed over the money.

Because of the miscarriag eof the plans through the failure of Small to signal or the failure of the detectives to see the signal, the case may be dropped. The Burns detectives say, however, that two or three days before the money was passed they entrapped Sheridan into making blackmail threats which were recorded with the aid of a dictograph. Officials of the ice company have so far refused to say what action they intend.

MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY,
80 BROADWAY,
New York, February 17th, 1913.

To the Holders of MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY'S FOUR PER CENT. ST. LOUIS AND CAIRO COLLATERAL GOLD BONDS:

For its Four Per Cent. St. Louis and Cairo Collateral Gold Bonds, dated May 1, 1900, which may be deposited in transferable form with A. Iselin & Co., Number 36 Wall Street, New York City, with the November 1, 1913, coupon and all subsequent coupons attached, Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company hereby offers to deliver in exchange at par its bonds forming part of a new issue of $3,000,000 Mobile and Ohio—St. Louis Division 5% Mortgage Gold Bonds, to be dated August 1, 1913, payable December 1, 1927, and to be secured by a mortgage on the St. Louis and Cairo Railroad, which mortgage will be subject to St. Louis and Cairo Railroad Company's First Mortgage, dated April 1, 1886, securing an outstanding issue of $4,000,000 4% First Mortgage Bonds, due January 1, 1931.

The new bonds will be payable as to principal and interest in United States gold coin without deduction for taxes and will be redeemable at the option of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company at 102½ and interest on any interest date on sixty days' previous notice, as will be provided in the mortgage securing said bonds.

This offer is made as a part of a plan looking to the purchase by Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company of the St. Louis and Cairo Railroad, and is conditioned upon the acceptance thereof by the holders of such amount of said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company's 4% St. Louis and Cairo Collateral Gold Bonds as the Board of Directors of this Company shall deem to be sufficient, and may be withdrawn at any time hereafter by Resolution of the Board of Directors of this Company.

Bondholders desiring to avail themselves of this offer should deposit their bonds with A. Iselin & Co. at their office, No. 36 Wall Street, New York City, who will issue their receipts exchangeable for the new bonds if and when issued.

All legal proceedings in this connection will be subject to the approval of counsel for A. Iselin & Co. and for this Company.

For further particulars apply to the office of the company, No. 80 Broadway, New York City, or to A. Iselin & Co.

By order of the Board of Directors.

MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY,
By W. W. FINLEY, President.

36 Wall Street, New York City, February 17th, 1913.

Referring to the above notice, we will, up to and including May 1, 1913, receive deposits of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company's Four Per Cent. St. Louis and Cairo Collateral Gold Bonds, dated May 1, 1900, with the November 1, 1913, and all subsequent coupons attached, and will issue therefor our receipts exchangeable as hereinafter stated.

The deposit of a considerable amount of said bonds in acceptance of the above offer has already been assured.

Subject to the conditions specified in the foregoing notice of Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, we will, upon receipt thereof by us from Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, make delivery of the new Mobile and Ohio—St. Louis Division 5% Mortgage Bonds, upon surrender of our receipts.

In case the said offer of exchange is withdrawn, all deposited bonds will be returned to the holders of our receipts therefor, without expense, upon surrender of our receipts.

A. ISELIN & CO.

PROPOSALS.

TOWN OF SENECA FALLS,
Seneca Co., New York,
REFUNDING BONDS.

Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned, until May 7th, 1913, at 2:30 o'clock P. M., for the purchase of $110,000 of Refunding Bonds of the Town of Seneca Falls, N. Y., to be issued to pay off, retire, and cancel a like amount of bonds of said Town maturing July 1, 1913.

The issue is to be composed of 110 bonds of $1,000 each, to be dated July 1, 1913, and to be payable $10,000 on July 1, 1915, and $10,000 on July 1 of each and every year thereafter until all are paid; with semi-annual interest, payable on January 1 and July 1 of each year from their date until paid; and said bonds to be issued in pursuance of Section 8 of the General Municipal Law and in accordance with the requirements of said General Municipal Law and of the County Law.

Intending purchasers will quote the amount offered for said bonds and the proposed rate of interest which said bonds must bear under their offer.

The entire debt of the Town is $130,000, of which $110,000 is proposed to be retired and paid off by the Refunding Bonds of this issue; and the value of the real estate of said Town, as shown by the last assessment roll, to be taxed for the payment of the said Refunding Bonds is in excess of three million dollars.

A certified check of a National bank, payable to the order of William E. Hull, Supervisor, for one per cent. of the amount of the bid, must accompany each proposal.

The right to reject any or all bids is reserved.

Dated Seneca Falls, N. Y., April 21st, 1913.
WILLIAM E. HULL, Supervisor.

SEALED BIDS WILL BE RECEIVED BY the Board of Water Supply at its offices, seventh floor, 165 Broadway, New York, until 11 A. M. on Tuesday, April 29, 1913, for Contract 91, for furnishing, delivering, and installing RACKS, STOP SHUTTERS, SCREENS, LIFTERS, and other apparatus in gate chambers along Catskill Aqueduct.

At the above place and time the bids will be publicly opened and read. Pamphlets containing information for bidders and contract drawings can be obtained at the above address by depositing the sum of ten dollars ($10) for each pamphlet. For further particulars see Information for Bidders.

POUGHKEEPSIE HAS DEFICIT.

Sohmer Says City Is Nearly $60,000 Behind—Illegal Borrowing Charged.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 27.—The municipal examiners of the State Controller's Department found that a net deficiency of $59,491.80 existed in the funds of the City of Poughkeepsie at the close of the fiscal year of 1912, according to a letter addressed by Controller Sohmer to Mayor William H. Fraule of Poughkeepsie under date of April 26.

"This deficiency," the Controller says, "seems to have been caused by the expenditure of sums greater than the sums appropriated; incurring of expenses for purposes for which no appropriation was made; illegal borrowing of money; deferring the payment of the city's share of the cost of local assessable improvements amounting to $21,863.68, all in violation of controlling statutes. The examiners estimate that the deficit at the close of the fiscal year 1913 will be $66,616.59."

Continuing, Controller Sohmer says:

"Section 47 of the charter of the city expressly prohibits overdrafts. This provision has been violated. All such overdrafts were without authority, and interest paid on the same are illegal payments, not being authorized.

"Money was obtained from local banks on notes made by the Mayor in person and as Mayor, without authority of law, where no appropriation was made, and sometimes for payment of purchases in addition to appropriations made, these notes afterward being paid from city funds with interest. These interest payments were without authority and illegal. A statement of these notes will be found on page 34 of the report. They amount to $40,200.09, on which $1,461.20 of interest was paid.

"In some cases these notes were given for money which was used in purchase of school sites, the deeds for which, in some cases, were taken in the name of a city officer, member of the School Board, and by him deeded to the city. These deeds to the city were not recorded during the progress of this examination and on April 12, although dated in March, 1911.

"As showing the extent and manner of borrowing, it is reported that in the budget for 1912 an estimate for a hose company was put in at $5,000. This was reduced by the Common Council to $2,500. On Jan. 2 a note was made by the Mayor, as Mayor, and by the Treasurer of the hose company for $4,000. This note was negotiated for its face and $5,000 of equipment was actually purchased, and the note, with a considerable amount of interest, has been paid from city moneys, although the amount allowed by the Common Council was but $2,500 and there was no legal authority in any one to anticipate the appropriation nor exceed its amount."

Hospital bills amounting to $43,071, according to the examiners, were paid illegally. The Controller says:

"Claims for the current year 1912, which should have been paid from appropriations for that year, were not paid, but carried over unpaid, to be paid from appropriations made for 1913, sometimes with interest added.

"The examiners report other violations of the charter and of general statutes."

SMELTER EMPLOYES STRIKE

2,000 Out at Perth Amboy to be Joined by 1,500 More.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., April 27.—More than 2,000 employes on the night force of the American Smelting and Refining Company's plant at Perth Amboy quit work early this morning, and when the day force strikes, as it will probably do to-morrow morning, the number of strikers at this plant will total 3,500. For the maintaining of order Mayor Garretson and Sheriff Bollschweiler have sent for 100 additional deputies. Heretofore there have been 175.

Although there are now 5,000 men on strike from plants near Perth Amboy, there was little trouble to-day. There were intermittent stone battles in which men received slight bruises, but no one was seriously hurt.

URGES AID FOR BILL FOR U. S. EMPLOYES

J. B. Andrews Explains Why They Need a Law of Compensation.

FAVORS KERN MEASURE

Specific Examples of Lead Poisoning Cited as Showing Unfairness in Government Work.

John B. Andrews, an authority on occupational diseases and accidents and labor legislation, makes a plea in The Survey for the support of the bill introduced in Congress by Senator Kern providing for a compensation law equal to that furnished by other progressive nations for the protection of Government employes. He says:

"If you were 'laid up' and your wages stopped, and you began to worry for your family as your savings dwindled away, how much difference would it make to you whether the trouble came through an accident or an illness due to your work?

"There was the case of Schroeder, who went to work for 'Uncle Sam' in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. One of our big warships, the Ohio, came to the dock and Schroeder was sent down into the water-tight cofferdams to burn off the old coat of paint in preparation for a new. As a result of breathing the fumes of the lead paint, Schroeder was incapacitated for work by acute lead poisoning. He lost thirty-seven days on this account, and he applied to the Government for the payment of compensation equal to the wages he had lost.

"But Schroeder got not one penny. It was not an 'accident' but a 'necessary incident' in his job. The law only covered accidents. Said the attorney for the Government:

"'It cannot be said that these fumes were inhaled by accident. The fumes were produced necessarily by the work he was engaged upon. The inhalation of such fumes was to have been expected, and probably could not have been avoided. Lead poisoning, under the circumstances, was the natural, if not the inevitable, result.'

"A few months after the unfortunate Schroeder case a man named Hill was employed to put floor pates in the engineroom of the war ship St. Louis in the Puget Sound Navy Yard. Meantime, lead and white lead paint was being applied in the bilges of the vessel. As a result of this exposure to lead fumes Hill contracted a disease of the eyes which incapacitated him.

"But Hill's claim for lost wages was approved because he was the victim of an 'accident.' Said the attorney for the Government:

"'The injury to the claimant's eyes was neither reasonably to be expected nor the natural or inevitable consequence of the work he personally was engaged upon. The injury therefore must be ascribed to accident. The claimant's particular work had nothing to do with the painting operations going on about him. His work as a shipfitter related to the laying of plates in the boiler room; the painting was being done by others.'

"Suppose, however, instead of Hill one of the painters had been poisoned and incapacitated by the fumes of lead paint. He would have had no valid claim, for it would have been a 'necessary incident' of his job.

"The Federal Government since 1908, and fifteen States during the past two years, have recognized the wisdom and justice of the compensation principle in dealing with the victims of industrial accidents. Now comes the demand that the American people, through Congress, adopt exactly the same principle in dealing with Federal employes who are incapacitated for work by occupational diseases.

"Aside from the fact that lead poisoning in the case of Schroeder was really preventable, aside from the fact that several enlightened nations have prohibited absolutely the use of poisonous lead paints for the interior of their warships, and aside from the fact that there was no one to warn Schroeder of the dangerous nature of his occupation, there is one big final fact: The financial cost of this unnecessary case of acute lead poisoning, in addition to the personal suffering, fell upon Schroeder. Most men will agree that such financial losses should fall upon the employer. In this case the employer was the Nation, which means all of us, you and me.

"We owe Schroeder something more than an apology. While the Federal Government is publishing excellent reports on lead poisoning in the factories of private employers, and is translating and distributing in fat volumes the workmen's compensation laws of European countries, can the United States afford to do less than make provision for reasonably safe work places in the Government service? And can this country afford to ignore the good example of those European laws which provide compensation for such victims of occupational diseases?

"After more than four years of experience under the present law the Government recently published the first official report upon its operation. Sixty-six closely printed pages of this report are devoted to embarrassing questions which have arisen because of claims arising out of occupational diseases. The administration of awards has been as liberal as could be expected under the unfortunate legislative restrictions. The solicitor for the department has taken a keen interest in its operation. He has been faithful and alert. One of his most urgent recommendations for a change in the law is that it be extended to embrace occupational diseases.

"The present Federal Workmen's Compensation act of May 30, 1908, is America's pioneer compensation law. It was a step forward, but only a step. It applies to only about one-third of our 350,000 civilian employes, and is so deficient that its original sponsors now waste no words in its defense, but frankly apologize for its shortcomings. 'Not a revision,' says one in a position to know, 'but a new law is needed.'

"The draft of a new law, prepared after months of careful investigation of experience of this and all other compensation acts, and drafted with infinite care at the instigation of the Association for Labor Legislation, has been introduced in Congress by Senator Kern. Surely the United States should provide now for its own Government employes incapacitated by industrial accidents and occupational diseases a system of safety and sanitation coupled with compensation at least equivalent to that furnished by the most progressive nations of the world. The bill now before Congress offers this immediate opportunity.

"Nor can the State Legislatures longer ignore the injustice of this arbitrary distinction between accidents and diseases due to the peculiar conditions of employment.

"One of the three National political parties now pledges itself to work unceasingly in State and Nation for trade disease compensation. Wisconsin, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, and several other States are planning laws or preparing the way. The experience of Great Britain, Germany, Switzerland, and other European countries which already have laws covering trade disease compensation is being studied.

"The arguments used so effectively by advocates of compensation for accidents, and now so generally accepted by all men, apply with even greater force in the consideration of relief for the victims of occupational diseases. No one will doubt, for example, that placing the financial cost of lead poisoning upon the lead industry will promote greater cleanliness in the lead trades. It will pay to clean up. A considerable part of the money now paid to employers liability companies and to ambulance chasers could, under a just system of compensation, go where it belongs—to the injured workman or his family. Expensive, annoying, and unsatisfactory litigation could be reduced to a minimum. Information concerning special danger points in industry would be automatically pointed out to the factory inspectors in a manner both prompt and sure. Unnecessary occupational diseases would then be prevented, and that is the real problem."

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Drug Prices Weaken.

Prices in the local drug market showed a slight downward tendency last week. One of the most important declines was in Canadian fir balsam, which again dropped $1 a pound, to $10. Oil bergamot was also lower at $6 a pound, and quicksilver was down to 57 cents. The principal advance was in opium, which, in jobbing lots, advanced to $6.30, an increase of 15 cents. Benzoin gum was higher, at 31 cents. In the chemical market a slight advance in nitric acid was reported, and bleach went up a little owing to its well sold-up condition. Oxalic acid was down an eighth of a cent, to 7⅞ cents. The strike of the silk dyers is making itself felt in houses catering especially to the textile trades.

Printcloth Market Unimproved.

Quiet again marked the week with local sellers of printcloths. The dullness at Fall River was reflected here, and the small business done in New York was got only by continued shading of prices. As yet there is no indication as to when the demand will pick up. The principal sales were in 38½-inch 64-60s, at 4⅞ cents, and 60-52s in the same width at 4⅝. There was plenty of bidding by buyers, but the figures they offered were too low for many of the mills. Drills, twills and sheetings were also off an eighth of a cent. The week's comparative prices follow:

	Open.	Close.
27-inch, 56-56s	3⅛c	3c
27-inch, 64-60s	3⅝c	3⅝c
28-inch, 64-60s	3⅝c	3⅝c
28-inch, 64-64s	4c	3⅞c
38½-inch, 64-60s	4⅞c	4⅞c
38½-inch, 64-64s	5 1-16c	5c
39-inch, 68-72s	5⅝c	5⅝c
39-inch, 72-76s	5⅞c	5⅞c
39-inch, 80-80s	7c	7c

California Cherries Coming In.

Initial 1913 shipments of California cherries were received here during the last week, but did not command the usual high prices because of their lack of size and quality. Receipts of California oranges were not heavy, and most of the fruit was of good quality. The demand for them was not large, however, and prices showed declines from levels of the previous week. The finest grades brought $4.75 a box. Apples were stronger in price, and brought as high as $6 a barrel in many instances. Porto Rico and Cuban fruits were practically unchanged as to price and quality, but Sicily lemons were higher. Some of this fruit brought $5.75 a box.

Potters Catching Up on Deliveries.

Domestic potters and glass makers were rushed with orders last week. Shipping facilities were greatly improved in the flood belt, and the factories caught up well on deliveries. Reports from Pittsburgh told of an excellent demand for glass souvenirs and specialties for the Summer resort trade. Mail and road orders received in the local crockery and glass market were heavier than usual at this season, but house trade was generally light. Toys were the most active merchandise here, according to the Crockery and Glass Journal.

Crude Rubber Prices Soften.

In sympathy with the reaction of the London market, prices on crude rubber broke here about midweek and closed from 1 to 4 cents a pound lower. Manufacturing interests were reported more active at the advance early in the week, but after the break buying dropped off sharply. Among dealers speculative tendencies were reported on the strength of rumors that Brazilian rubber was being held back at Para to stimulate prices and the demand. Buyers showed little disposition to anticipate future needs, however. An auction of plantation rubber is scheduled to begin in London to-morrow.

GOOD TWO-DAY AUTOMOBILE TRIP

Route Through New Jersey and New York an Alluring One—Road Conditions Elsewhere.

For motorists who may desire to spend a couple of days en tour, the Touring Department of the Automobile Club of America has prepared a route through an attractive section of New York and New Jersey, on which road conditions will be found good and hotel accommodations available at several points. The course lies along Broadway to the 130th Street ferry and then from Edgewater along the Shore Road up the hill to Fort Lee, from which point the Hackensack Turnpike is followed to Leonia. Along the Hackensack River the route then leads through Cherry Hill, River Edge, New Milford, Oradell, and Etna, all pretty little settlements, to Westwood. Then follow Hillsdale, Woodcliff, Pearl Ridge, Montvale, and Pearl River. From this place the motorist passes through the towns of Nanuet, Monsey, Suffern, and Ramapo to Tuxedo.

Next the road leads through Arden, where is the Harriman estate. Central Valley, Highland Mills, Woodbury, Mountainville, and Vail's Gate to Newburg. Here the Hudson is reached, and the course then leads along the river through Milton, Highland, Ulster Park, Sleightsburg, and several other small farming settlements to Kingston. Then it swings to the left and takes a southwesterly direction through Marbletown, Ellenville, Wurtsboro, Cuddebackville, Godeffroy, and Huguenot to Port Jervis, at the junction of the Neversink—the famous trout stream—and the Delaware. From "the Port," as it is locally called, the route is through Tri-States, South Centreville, Slate Hill, and Denton to Goshen, noted for its live stock, and then to Chester, Greycourt, Monroe, Harriman, and Arden to Tuxedo once more. The return run from Tuxedo lies through Ramapo, Suffern, Mahwah, Hohokus, Arcola, Hackensack, Little Ferry, and Ridgefield to the ferry at Weehawken.

Construction work on the road from Patchogue, L. I., through Medford to Port Jefferson, where it connects with the ferry for Bridgeport, Conn., has now been completed, and the stretch provides good going.

⁂

It is no longer necessary for motorists to follow a roundabout route from Harrisburg to Altoona, Penn., as the direct course through Duncannon, Huntingdon, and Hollidaysburg is now in shape, save for a few worn stretches.

⁂

The Touring Department of the Automobile Club of America advises the following detours on the Boston Post Road between New Haven and New London. Between East Haven and Brantford the road is closed, and the stretch may be avoided by way of Totoket and North Brantford, where a sharp turn brings one back to the main route. Between Flanders and New London construction work is in progress, and a turn-off just before reaching the former place is advised. Good country roads will be found to Niantic, whence New London may be comfortably reached by way of Graniteville and Waterford.

⁂

Word comes from Indianapolis that a practical kerosene carburetor has been put through a long test by its inventor, Ray Harroun, ex-racing driver. Consumption of low gravity kerosene, such as is found on the market at 10 cents a gallon, on a run from Chicago to Indianapolis by way of Logansport and Kokomo, is given as 17.25 miles to the gallon. After the road test a number of tests were conducted on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway with four different grades of petroleum fuel products. These tests were made with a driver and one passenger in the car and with the top down and the windshield up. The result of these tests, as published in Motor Age and Automobile, and attested to by D. S. Hatch of the staff of those papers, shows an average of 50 miles an hour on 43 grade kerosene, as against 47.8 miles on 69 grade gasoline; 22.2 miles a gallon, as against 20 with these two fuels, and a cost per ton mile of $.0029, as against $00.67.

⁂

The new clubrooms of the Manhattan Automobile Club, 222 West Fifty-ninth Street, will probably be opened to members on May 1.

⁂

Twenty-two cars have been entered so far for the secret time run to New Rochelle, which is to be held on Friday under the auspices of the Motor Dealers' Contest Association for the benefit of Orphans' Automobile Day. The run will start in front of the Manhattan Automobile Club. For the accommodation of the orphans, who are to have their outing on June 5, touring cars and motor trucks have now been lent in sufficient numbers to provide for about 1,000 persons. About 3,300 children, however, must be taken care of, according to the returns of the twenty-one institutions heard from. Cash donations of $416 have been received.

WHOLESALE PRICE CHANGES

Week's Advances and Declines Nearly Equal, According to Dun's.

The declines shown last week in Dun's list of wholesale prices again exceeded the advances by a small margin. Forty-nine changes marked the week's trading in the various fields, and of these twenty-six showed levels lower than those of the previous week. Foodstuffs showed a tendency to advance. There were twenty changes in this market during the week, of which eleven were upward. The strength of grain and the weakness of the hide and leather markets were the only other features.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale quotations on forty-one leading commodities at New York last week, the previous week and last year:

FIND CO-OPERATION PAYS.

Australian Farmers and Growers Joining Hands—Get Better Prices.

In a recent issue the Sydney (Australia) Herald, after contrasting the extent of rural combination in the various States of that Commonwealth, describes the situation in Victoria this way:

"The example of Victoria is striking. Not only are the co-operative butter factories joining hands in whole districts to economize in management and marketing, but the recent movement for the establishment of bacon factories has been rewarded with success. When the farmers in the Dandenong district commenced their campaign of co-operation, pigs were practically unsalable, though retail prices for bacon were high. The breeding industry was in a parlous condition. As a result of the impetus which this gave to the movement there are two very large factories now in existence in the Western and Northwestern districts. Although only in operation a few months, it is said that the increase in prices paid to the farmers, compared with those before the project was undertaken, amounts to more than enough to pay the whole cost of the plants. Other dairy districts in the same State are preparing to begin similar work. The mutton growers of Victoria have also joined hands."

Weather in Cotton and Grain States.

PAID FOR BOGUS DEATH.

Insurance Concerns Charge Man and Wife with $15,500 Fraud.

MARSHFIELD, Ore., April 27.—J. C. La France, alias A. J. Fergor, and his wife were arrested at Coquille late yesterday, charged with insurance frauds.

La France is alleged to have obtained a policy for $10,000 in the Postal Life Company of New York, another for $3,000 in the Modern Woodmen of America, and a third for $2,500 in the United Artisans at Portland previous to going on a hunting trip on the Clackamas River. A few months later a badly decomposed body was found which, through clothing and papers in the pockets, was identified as that of La France.

The insurance was paid. Then it was discovered, it is alleged, that La France had substituted another man's body for his own, leaving his wife to collect the insurance. He was located here some time ago, but eluded the officers. He returned to visit his wife yesterday, when officers arrested both.

A Vacation in the REAL OUT-OF-DOORS

Forest Lakes of MAINE

SEND for the booklet. It tells of a vacation land more wonderful than you can imagine.

Thousands of square miles of fresh and beautiful forest where deer and moose are browsing.

EXQUISITE, WILD LAKES many of them almost unknown to the outside world.

Canoe trips, some of them 200 miles long, down marvelous forest rivers. The finest game fishing in America.

You live at one of the log-built, permanent camps whose comfort and good fare are one of the wonders of this country.

Or set up your own camp with an Indian or white guide, sleep in a tent on hemlock boughs, eat campfire cooking, breathe pine-spruce-laden air.

Every day will be filled with wonderful new experiences. You will come out brown, clear-eyed, steady-nerved—and with memories you wouldn't sell.

Isn't it the vacation you've been ACHING for? You can take it easily and at surprisingly small cost.

Three solid through express trains from New York daily.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 27.—The winds along the New England Coast will be moderate to brisk east and southeast.

Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate to brisk north and northwest; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate west; Gulf Coast, light, variable; on the lower lakes, moderate north.

The disturbance that was over the Middle Atlantic States Saturday night is now central off the Virginia Coast. This disturbance has increased considerably in intensity and area, and during the last twenty-four hours it caused general showers in the Atlantic States, except New England, and in the region of the Great Lakes, the Ohio Valley, and Tennessee. Temperature is considerably lower over much of the country east of the Mississippi River, and in the Pacific States considerably warmer weather prevails over the plains States and the Rocky Mountain region. The weather will be unsettled, with probably showers Monday and Tuesday in the North Atlantic States, and Monday in the Middle Atlantic States, the Upper Ohio Valley, and the lower lake region. In all other parts of the country the weather will be fair Monday and Tuesday, except that showers are probable in the far Northwest.

Steamers departing Monday for European ports will have strong east winds and overcast weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND TUESDAY.

Eastern New York—Showers and cooler Monday. Tuesday probably showers; moderate to brisk variable winds, becoming north.

Western New York—Cloudy, with local rains Monday. Tuesday fair; moderate north winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1912.	1913.		1912.	1913.
3 A. M.	54	54	4 P. M.	66	63
6 A. M.	55	53	6 P. M.	61	61
9 A. M.	60	55	9 P. M.	61	58
12 M.	66	62	11 P. M.	51	56

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 58; for the corresponding date last year it was 57; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 53.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 54; at 8 P. M. it was 59. Maximum temperature, 64 degrees at 2 P. M.; minimum, 53 degrees at 4:30 A. M. Humidity, 84 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 90 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.90 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.71 inches.

POLICE SURGEONS GET 'EASY MONEY'

Bureau of Municipal Research Recommends They Be Forced to Earn Their Salaries.

AND BAR PRIVATE PRACTICE

They Get More Pay for Less Work Than Any Other Municipal Doctors, the Investigators Say.

There are twenty-six surgeons in the Police Department. The annual cost to the city, exclusive of pensions, is $91,000. In a report made yesterday by the Bureau of Municipal Research to the Curran Aldermanic Committee on Police Investigation it is proposed to make the Police Surgeons put in all their time for their $3,500 salaries, thus depriving them of the private practice which, it is feared, is the main consideration with some of the surgeons.

The investigators of the Bureau of Municipal Research, Dr. E. C. Bray, Dr. C. McCoombs, and F. S. Staley, asked Chief Surgeon Marvin R. Palmer whether his twenty-five associates were always subject to call at any time of day or night. Dr. Palmer said they were. On this point the report made to the Curran Committee, however, makes this drastic comment:

"The statement by Chief Surgeon Palmer, that the surgeons are always subject to call, means that the surgeon is subject to call providing he happens not to be attending to his private practice. Note the following example:

> On March 14, 1911, according to the record of the Telephone Bureau, a call for a police surgeon was received from Lieut. Hall of the Oak Street Police Station at 4:22 A. M. The Telegraph Bureau called the following surgeons without result: Drs. Brouner, Donlin, Nammack, De Forest, Johnson, Jennings, Hubbard, and Schoenenberger. Dr. Vosburgh was finally obtained.

"District surgeons are not required to serve a given number of hours daily," the report continues. "An examination of the office hours shows that they range from one to six hours daily. The office hours as shown on the private cards of these doctors, as well as in the records of the Police Department, are not times especially set aside for receiving and treating policemen, but are none other than the regular office hours of the surgeons, during which time they attend to private patients as well as to policemen. No rule or custom could be found in the department providing that a policeman receive preference over private patients when he calls at the office of his district surgeon for treatment."

A second recommendation, which is not likely to meet with much favor among the surgeons, many of whom have been over ten years in the service, and hence well on their way to the ultimate $1,750 annual life pension, is that requiring each surgeon to live in the district to which he is assigned. Here is the table showing the lack of uniformity of the surgeons' work, and how some patrolmen must come 25 miles to get a bottle of medicine:

Name of Surgeon.	Office Hours.	Uniformed Force.	Sick Days.	Miles to Surg'n.

F. J. Murray	3	415	4,409½	14

"This evil of outside residence is not academic but practical," says the report. Thus, note the following:

> James C. B. Mullin, Shield 1,609, reported sick by the Lieutenant of the 276th Precinct, March 22, 1912, at 2:15 A. M. The surgeon's report (Form 10) made to the chief surgeon by District Surgeon H. P. de Forest shows report of sickness was received March 23, 1912, at 5 P. M., thirty-nine hours after the patient had reported sick. The daily report of the district surgeon shows that this man suffered from contusion of the abdomen and was treated at 11:30 A. M., or nine and one-quarter hours after he was injured. The above shows a discrepancy of twenty-nine and three-quarter hours between the two reports made by the district surgeon. In this instance the patient's home was in Flushing, L. I., while the surgeon attending the case resided in Forty-seventh Street, New York City.

Here are some of the other recommendations and suggestions made to the Curran Committee:

> The district surgeons should be required to make monthly sanitary inspections of each station house in their respective districts.
>
> There should at all times be a police surgeon on duty at Police Headquarters, particularly during the night.
>
> Police surgeons should be prohibited from including among their private patients the families of any member of the force.
>
> The surgeons should be required at least once a year to make a physical examination of every member of the force.
>
> The assignments of surgeons to serve on the examining board, known as the Survey Board, should be made by the Police Commissioner and not by the chief surgeon. Each surgeon should serve an equal number of times on the board, and the members of the board should be held responsible for the findings in any physical examination.
>
> Members of the force retired on disability pensions should be subjected to periodical physical examinations so as to determine the question of the continuance of their disabilities. They should be required to make affidavit annually as to their physical inability to perform police duty.

Referring to the faulty method of selecting surgeons to serve on the Board of Survey for examination of applicants for retirement, the report says:

> Previous to this administration, the Chief Surgeon determined just what members of the staff should serve on the Board of Survey. Under the present administration the First Deputy Police Commissioner makes the assignments. Out of 219 cases of disability pensions examined, it was found that three surgeons served on the board fifty times or more, four surgeons served between forty and fifty times, and eight surgeons served less than twenty times. The chief surgeon's explanation for this was that the Commissioner selected surgeons who were not busy at the time. This is irregular, because all surgeons are supposed to be on duty and at the disposal of the department at all times, and when called upon should be able to take their turn on the Board of Survey.

From July 1, 1911, to June 30, 1912, the total number of days lost on account of sickness among the 10,000 policemen of the force was 79,788. Tonsilitis headed the list as the most costly to the service in point of view of days lost, with 1,929 days. Neurasthenia was a close second, with 1,821 days. Tuberculosis cost 1,592; lumbago, 1,463; pneumonia, 1,055, and nervousness, 166. The report observed that there were only 396 days of sick leave during the twelve months as a result of illness due to alcoholism.

"The records show a great many retirements because of flat feet," says the report, "and defective vision, and in one year there were 167 cases of sick leave due to defective teeth. There was no evidence to be found of any general examinations of the feet, eyes or teeth of the members of the force. The department has no dentist, oculist, or chiropodist. Nothing was found in the way of general medical observations of the members of the force. When they report sick they are examined as to their specific ailment, but apparently without the object of general health in view.

"A thorough search of the records reveals no comprehensive study of causes of illness, general causes of disabilities and such other objects as would provide a basis for making recommendations concerning the welfare of the force. There was no evidence that all or any of the twenty-five surgeons of the department have ever made a general medical survey of the force. There were no evidences of a comparative study of general causes of illness in other large bodies of men, such as the army, navy, and other police forces. Nothing indicates that the surgeons have performed any duty other than the mere disciplinary functions defined in the rules."

In conclusion, the report comments on the comparative ease of the police surgeon's duties. It says:

"The police surgeons receive an annual salary of $3,500. They are ranked as uniformed members of the force and are eligible for pensions, but they are free from the hazardous risks and the arduous duties of policemen. In comparison with the medical men in other city departments, the police surgeons receive greater compensation for less work. In the Fire Department the maximum annual salary for medical officers is $3,600, but they are required to attend all two-alarm fires in their districts and are often exposed to danger. The maximum annual salary for medical examiners in the Street Cleaning Department is $1,800. The maximum salary for physicians in the Department of Correction is $1,500, while the average salary of medical inspectors in the Health Department is $1,196 per year."

SAVES HOME FROM BOMB.

James Larosa Grabs One and Throws It Into the Street.

James Larosa, who has a fish store at 756 Second Avenue and lives above it with his family in the three-story tenement, picked up a bomb in the hallway of the tenement late last night, as the sputtering fuse was almost burned away, and threw it to the street. It exploded before it touched the ground, and blew itself to atoms. Windows of the tenement and of a house across the street were broken by the force of the explosion.

The bomb was discovered by Agnes Halpin, the daughter of the janitor of the house. She remembered a bomb explosion outside Larosa's store on March 6, and ran upstairs screaming. Larosa rushed from his apartment to the ground floor hallway, where he saw the lighted fuse. He picked up the bomb and hurled it to the street.

On the other side of the hallway, on the ground floor, is the barber shop of Valenza Sebastino, but the bomb was placed against the wall separating the hall from the fish store, and the police believe it was intended for Larosa. He was the chief sufferer from the bomb which exploded a few weeks ago. He denies having received any threatening letters.

Dies in Duane St. Restaurant.

While waiting to be served in the restaurant of Hall's Hotel, 21 Duane Street, a neatly dressed unidentified man of middle age died suddenly yesterday morning. The man was found at his table by a waiter, who summoned Patrolman Dineen of the Elizabeth Street Station. Dr. McPheeters of the Hudson Street Hospital pronounced the man dead. The body, which weighed about 190 pounds, was 5 feet 8 inches in height and was clothed in a gray suit. With the exception of a card engraved "J. W. Madison, Machinist and Millwright," there was nothing on the body to identify it.

PRIZE FOR SUFFRAGE HATS.

Mrs. Butterworth's First, Cost $1.10 —Sixteen Contestants.

Mrs. Henry Butterworth carried off the first prize for the best parade hat trimmed in purple, green, and white, the Women's Political Union colors, at the rooms of the union, 46 East Twenty-ninth Street, yesterday afternoon. Miss Ena Lithaur took second prize and Mrs. Cyrus W. Field third.

Carroll Beckwith, Irving R. Wiles, and Miss Adelaide Johnston, the sculptor, were the judges, and it was a serious contest. The only conditions were that the women should trim the hats themselves and use the regulation forty-two-cent parade hat.

The hats were not trimmed yesterday. The union received many reproving letters from societies that did not know this. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the Christian League, and the Society for the Keeping of the Sabbath had written saying that the women would not be prospered in their cause if they trimmed hats on Sunday.

Malcolm Straus was to have been one of the judges, but was not able to be present, and Miss Johnston took his place. Mrs. Rheta Child Dorr gave a talk upon Finland, and every one had tea before the great event of the day came off. Sixteen contestants were on hand.

The judges consulted seriously and had the contestants pass before them a second time. D, P, L, N, C, and B were called back. One letter was dropped because the hat was trimmed with black. The judges consulted seriously again, and D, P, and B were announced as the winners.

Mrs. Butterworth's hat, which took first prize, was trimmed with purple ribbon, with a straight bow off at one side of the front and with a little bunch of green silk apples nestling at the side, and cost, all told, $1.10, including 10 cents for lining.

Miss Lithaur's hat, with the rim turned down over her face, was the kind of a hat the other women called "sweet." There was a deep purple ribbon on this over one of a flowered purple, green and white ribbon, and a row of deep purple velvet pansies. The prize for this was a "Votes for Women" pin in solid silver and purple, green, and white enamel.

ADVISE "DIRECT ACTION."

Paterson Strikers Urged to Keep Strike-Breakers from Mills.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., April 27.—Trouble is expected to-morrow between the striking silk workers of this city and the police if the strikers follow the advice given them at the meeting at Haledon to-day by the I. W. W. agitators.

The strikers were advised to go to the homes of "scabs" to-night and warn them not to go to work to-morrow morning, and if they did go to work to-morrow morning to prevent them entering the mills. The speakers were cheered lustily by the foreign strikers, for this is the first time in the entire strike that "direct action" has been advocated.

About 5,000 persons attended the meeting to-day, many of them drawn to the Haledon Woods by curiosity, for many believed that "Big Bill" Haywood, for whom a bench warrant has been issued, would make his appearance at the meeting.

Haywood did not appear, but both Miss Elizabeth Gurley Flynn and Carlo Tresca addressed the meeting and received noisy welcomes.

Louis Magnet, who has been addressing the meetings of the ribbon weavers at Helvetia Hall, despite the fact that he is not affiliated with the I. W. W., and who has a large following among the strikers, has called a meeting of the independent weavers for to-morrow morning at Probst's Hall, for the purpose of forming an independent union. It is expected that the Magnet organization will draw hundreds of the English-speaking weavers from the Helvetia and Turn Hall meetings, and, as Magnet is considered to be a sane, sensible leader by the manufacturers, it is more than likely that they will offer to settle with any union that Magnet heads.

CHURCH SOCIAL WEEK.

13 Episcopalian Parishes in the Bronx in Forward Movement.

Nine Episcopal churches of the Bronx last night ended a church social week, a forward movement for missions, education, and financial strength and increase of workers. The nine were St. Ann's, Morrisania; St. Alban's, at Highbridge; St. James's, Fordham; Holy Nativity, Bedford Park; St. Martha's, Van Nest; the Advocate, Tremont; St. Edmund's, Mount Hope; St. Margaret's, in East 156th Street, and Emmanuel Mission, Melrose. A total atendance of almost 12,000 persons was recorded. In most of these churches at consecration services held last night promise cards were signed and presented committing the signers to larger efforts during the year ahead.

Four other Bronx churches will enter upon the social week next week. These are Holy Spirit in the Hunt's Point section; St. Simeon's, Melrose; St. Stephen's, Woodlawn, and Grace, City Island. A final rally, with Bishop Greer as the speaker, is to be held at the Bronx Church House on May 28.

Correctness —But Never Sameness

The one mighty objection to the average New York fine clothes shop is the deadly sameness of its offerings.

All seem to be cast from the same mould.

Consequently, a reflection has been cast upon all ready-for-service clothes—and unjustly so.

For Hackett-Carhart clothes do not limit any one to set ideas in style. They give scope to individual selection always.

To do this, Hackett-Carhart styles are shown in more than triple the number of models that may be found in any other fine clothes shop in New York.

It is the policy of the Hackett-Carhart stores that every man be given the right to indulge his own individuality—to exercise his own judgment.

And to this end, the Hackett-Carhart experts each season glean their ideas from more than a dozen correct style sources.

As a result, there are here today more than a dozen interpretations of English and Continental models. An equal number are adapted from the smart Fifth Avenue tailors' showings.

And fully 20 variations of young men's models have been adapted from the creations of the most famous of young men's and college tailors.

All these are in addition to the Hackett-Carhart distinctive models that have been the choice of well dressed New Yorkers for more than three score years.

The diversity of exclusive fabrics is fully as great as the assortment of models.

So when you have tired of clothes sameness you will find fit—both in person and in personality—at any one of the four Hackett-Carhart stores.

Have Your Country Togs Made for You—Have Them Right—and Save 30%

Summer enjoyment is doubled for the man who has just the right garment made in just the right way.

Before you go to the seashore, before you go to the mountains, visit Broadway and 9th St.

Golf clothes that will add fifty yards to your drive and accuracy to your put. Tennis clothes for play, or loafing on the side lines. Blue serges and gray and white flannels for the board walk or the country ramble.

Riding togs, shooting togs, boating and fishing togs.

Tuxedos and Full Dress

Made from specially imported light-weight drapes, just what one needs to add comfort to the enjoyment of the strenuous and popular turkey trot and other new dances.

In fact, if there's anything you need, you can have it made to your measure, every detail correct, fit and finish and satisfaction absolutely guaranteed.

And, remember, you pay no more than ready-to-wear garments would cost and 30% less than you would be asked for equal value by equally high-class tailors.

Big business makes our low prices possible.

ON TIME

(From the Boston News Bureau, April 18th, 1913.)

Steady improvement is being made in promptness of their passenger traffic movement by the New England Lines, both north and south. At the South Station the time-record for the fast trains from New York is especially interesting. With the Bay State (which, by the way, enjoys the reputation for the best record of any "limited" in the United States), there has not during the current month been a minute's delay in bringing this train into the South Station. In the case of the Merchants train—the entire equipment of which is now all-steel—there have been only two April delays, of one and four minutes, in its arrival at Boston.

Since February 1, tickets for the New Haven's "limited" service between Boston and New York—consisting of the Bay State, Knickerbocker and Merchants, three daily trains each way—have carried a provision for a $1 price-rebate for a delay of over 30 minutes in reaching destination. During this period, however, there have been but 10 "excess" delays, seven of which were in February, and the trains for the most part have been kept practically on time. During the present month, for instance, their delay in arrival at Boston has aggregated but 23 minutes, consisting of seven, eleven, one and four minutes, respectively.

THE FIVE-HOUR TRAINS BETWEEN NEW YORK AND BOSTON AT 10:00 A. M., 1:00 P. M., AND 5:00 P. M., TRAVEL ONE OF THE MOST PICTURESQUE ROUTES IN AMERICA—THE SHORE OF LONG ISLAND SOUND, WITH ITS SANDY BEACHES, MOVING SAILS, PROTECTING LIGHTHOUSES, RIVER, HARBOR AND ISLAND VISTAS.

THIS TRIP ITSELF IS WELL WORTH A HOLIDAY.

THE NEW FIVE O'CLOCK FIVE-HOUR STEEL TRAIN IS THE FINEST IN THE WORLD, WITH ITS TAPESTRY UPHOLSTERING, INDIRECT SYSTEM OF LIGHTING, AND NEW SYSTEM OF VENTILATION—FEATURES FIRST INTRODUCED IN THIS TRAIN, AND NOT YET AVAILABLE ELSEWHERE.

IT PASSES OVER A ROADBED UNSURPASSED IN THE WORLD.
